

Thirteen NHS Seniors Are Scholarship Semifinalists

Newton High School added to its academic laurels this week with the announcement that 13 seniors qualified for the semi-final examinations in the National Merit Scholarship Competition, outscoring some 479,000 of the nation's best high school seniors to find places among the 10,000 students eligible to continue in the test series.

The National Merit awards, now in their fourth year and involving some five million dollars in scholarships, will be presented to a field of approximately 735 students who receive the top marks in the rigorous series of exams.

The program, which was first started with grants from the Ford and Carnegie Foundations, is open to all seniors in public, private and parochial schools. This year's program, the most extensive yet, affected nearly one third of the entire national senior class.

There will be another three-hour examination held on December 6, and the winners will be selected from among the remaining finalists. Since approximately 95 per cent of those now remaining in the competition are expected to pass the December exam, factors such as high school grades, extra curricular activities, citizenship and leadership will play a large part in the final selection.

Students from 14,000 high schools took the first test on April 29, and the semi-finalists were determined by taking the highest scorers in each state and pro-rating these according to the state's population. Even if a student is not selected for one of the merit scholarships, a certificate is awarded to finalists which will aid them in securing other scholarships offered by individual colleges and universities.

The rewards awaiting the winners are well worth working for. The maximum grant offered to students who need little financial assistance is $100 per year for a full year course of study, and the maximum sum available to students who need it is $1,500 per year, also for four years.

The student awarded the scholarship may pick his own school and pursue whatever course of study he or she prefers. To help defray the cost of educating the scholarship winner, the college or university.

Problem of New Taxes Rated As Major Issue of Campaign

It appears that the rental of equipment by the State public works department has been pretty well written off as a major issue in the gubernatorial campaign.

Unless someone can disprove the figures issued by State Public Works Commissioner Anthony N. DiNatale, most persons are likely to accept them as showing that DiNatale has followed the established procedure in his department and has done exactly the same thing as his predecessors did before him.

In fact, the evidence now available seems to indicate that DiNatale has done a creditable job as the State's public works head but has been the victim of some rather inept public relations by those around him.

Of greater significance, however, is the fact that the candidates for the Governorship as well as the voters now are likely to turn their attention and their arguments to other matters than the rental of lawn mowers and station wagons.

What should be the overriding issue of the campaign is the financial problem confronting the Commonwealth and how it is going to be solved.

At the present time no one knows where the necessary funds are coming from to balance the State budget or, for that matter, if they are going to be obtained at all.

With the defeat this week of Governor Furcolo's withholding tax bill for the third—and presumably final—time, the financial plight of the Commonwealth will be brought into sharp focus.

It seems virtually certain that when the Legislature winds up its affairs and prorogues its session for the year, it will leave a State budget that is out of balance.

That means that the Governor who assumes office in January will have to face up to the hard, cold question of getting additional money to finance the operation of the State government—and getting it in a hurry.

He'll have to find millions of dollars to balance the budget for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

Where will the money come from? What new taxes can be enacted? Will a majority of the legislators still

Friday Deadline To Register For Coming Election

A reminder that tomorrow (Friday) night is the deadline for persons planning to register as voters for the coming Nov. 4 election, was issued today by City Clerk Monte G. Basbas.

Basbas emphasized that persons whose names do not appear on the city's voting rolls when the lists are closed at 10 o'clock tomorrow night will be ineligible to cast ballots in the November election.

In addition to the regular business hours during which registration is held at City Hall, persons desiring to enroll as voters may do so from 7 to 9 p.m. tonight (Thursday) at room 101 in City Hall and in the Newtonville Library and from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) night at room 101, City Hall.

City Clerk Basbas declared that young men and women who aren't yet 21 but will celebrate their 21st birthday on or before Nov. 4 may register now as voters.

Girl Scouts Seek Leaders

Four Newton women responded to the call for help as Adult Volunteers in the local Girl Scout organization, and spokesmen for the group said that this was a very encouraging response for so early in the campaign. The Girl Scouts are seeking 100 volunteers for "bigger and better" scouting in Newton.

Enrolling at the Recruitment Training Institute were Mrs. Edward Filiurin, of 30 Shady Hill road, Newton; Mrs. Charles Fielder, 36 Regent street, West Newton; Mrs. Charles Govatsos, 123 Russell road, Newton; and Mrs. Paul Mavridis, 256 Lake avenue, Newton Centre.

Thirty-three key women representing leaders, committee and council personnel attended the two day training sessions last Thursday and Friday, held at the YMCA in Newtonville. The purpose of the training program is to teach the ladies to become more effective as Girl Scout recruiters.

Special emphasis was placed on the Council's needs, selection, interviewing and the placement.

Mr. Dennard will be introduced by Haskell C. Freedman, chairman of the School Committee, who will discuss the required qualifications of a superintendent and tell how Mr. Dennard was selected.

The meeting is to be at the Meadowbrook Junior High School and is scheduled for 8 p.m. Irving Helman, Council president, will preside.

Also planned are a group of organization discussions to

Drinking Motorists Set To Lose Their Licenses

Victim's Shout Routs Burglar

A prowler who gained entrance to the home of Jack Freedman, 81 Cloverdale road, Newton Highlands, through the front door, got all the way to the owner's bedroom and was reaching for Freedman's wallet, before he was discovered.

He fled. Freedman, awakened by the burglar's noise, although it was only 6 a.m., gave voice to a stentorian shout. The burglar made it down over the stairs to the street in swift fashion.

He made his escape in an automobile. Nine police officers under the direction of Sergeant William F. Quinn, arrived quickly in the area, but found no trace of the burglar.

Protest Petitions On Pine St. Dump Continue to Grow

Opposition to the Pine street dumping site continued to grow during the week among residents in Auburndale and West Newton, and petitions containing between 800 and 1000 names are expected to be ready for filing at City Hall.

Mrs. Joseph Walsh of 163 Pine street, West Newton, a leader in the drive for signatures, was amazed by the response in support of the protest.

The residents of the area plan to demand a public hearing on their protest and they believe that a large number of those seeking elimination of the dump will appear.

Meanwhile, Willard S. Pratt, Newton director of public works, attempted to clear up what he believed to be a mistaken belief of many persons concerning the dump. He said that when the city started dumping in the swampland near Pine street in the early 1950's, it had been hoped to use it for 25 years. Now the expectancy of use is feared to be less than 10 years more.

Newton police are planning a series of early morning roadblocks at the request of Registrar of Motor Vehicles Clement A. Riley to determine whether motorists are driving after drinking or are operating automobiles without proper safety equipment.

The so-called road watches will be held without advance notice at strategic points in Newton where traffic ordinarily is heaviest.

While Police Chief Philip Purcell is not even disclosing at what time the road blocks will be conducted, it is expected that they will be held between 1 and 3 o'clock in the morning after drinking establishments have closed for the night.

Motorists who are found to be driving after drinking, even though they are not actually under the influence of liquor, will be reported to the Registry of Motor Vehicles and will face the suspension of their licenses.

Also in for trouble will be those who do not have their licenses in their possession or who are driving automobiles on which the safety equipment is not in proper condition.

A formal request that the after-midnight surprise roadblocks be held in Newton has been made to Chief Purcell by Registrar Riley as part of his

"Ranny" will make a brief appearance as band leader when he directs the 18-piece University orchestra at the ball. The week-long homecoming celebration ends on Sunday.

NHS Loses, 19-18 In Real Thriller

Although one point meant the difference between victory and defeat for Newton High School's football team Monday afternoon, the local fans who saw them bow by a score of 19-18 to Everett came away from the game with the sure knowledge that they had seen what may turn out to be one of the toughest, best played games of the season.

The game had everything that a fan could ask for, good running plays, pin-point passes, a last minute touchdown and that spine tingling moment when the outcome of the games rests on one man's ability to kick a foot-

Classroom TV Is In Effect

Newton parents who have trouble getting their children away from the television set long enough to do their homework may be surprised to learn that from now on every child in grades 2 through 6 in Newton schools will be learning by television.

Parents may share in their children's television classroom experience by simply turning their set on at home, as Newton Public Schools have joined with 66 school systems in bringing in-school television into the classroom via educational TV station WGBH.

The first in a series of fall programs is "Building Blocks of Matter," a natural science course for sixth graders. Eu-

League of Women Voters To Hold 8 Meetings Next Week

The Newton League of Women Voters will devote this year's first series of unit meetings next week to a discussion on "Candidates and Issues." Mrs. Richard Mintz, unit resource chairman of the Voters Service Committee, has planned the eight meetings to provide an opportunity to discuss the duties of the elective county offices, the General Court, and the Executive Council plus the governmental issues at the county and state levels.

These meetings will enable the women of Newton to better understand candidates' abilities, and to aid them in voting in the coming election.

League members and their friends are cordially invited to attend any of the following informative meetings:

Tuesday evening, October 7th — 7:45 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Karl Joslow, 1370 Walnut street, Newton Highlands.

MISS SUSAN MACK

Those Newton women who plan to be in attendance at the big Newton-Graphic-Boston Gas free cooking school to be held at the Warren Junior High School on October 15 are in line for the greatest thrill of their homemaking lives with free prizes, lectures and demonstrations on tap.

Promising to be the greatest cooking school ever put on in this area, the lecture-demonstration will give local ladies an opportunity to not only see demonstrated the latest cooking techniques and equipment but also to have their cooking problems answered by qualified experts.

Included in the discussions and demonstrations will be such popular Gas Range features as The Burner With The Brain, the thermostat-controlled top burner that raises and lowers the flame automatically while cooking... clock controlled ovens that cook complete meals perfectly without the housewife even being in the kitchen... and the new built-in meat roasting thermometers and automatic rotary roasting spits.

In addition to new cooking helps and food ideas, the newest laundry equipment will be on display with experts to advance their own favorite tips on home laundering while lucky ladies among the expected large crowd will walk away with some valuable merchandise as well as valuable home-making ideas.

In charge of the novel cooking school is Miss Susan Mack, head of the Home Service Department of Boston Gas and her staff experts, who are no strangers to Greater Boston women. They talk to some 80,000 women each year, and in the last year alone passed out more than 100,000 excitingly different recipes to women all over the New England who requested them.

Congressman Bates Says Herter Is "Outstanding Young Public Leader"

Congressman William H. Bates of Salem today praised public leaders in Massachusetts. Governor's Councillor Christian A. Herter, Jr., Republican candidate for Attorney General, as sturdy integrity which we need in the office of Attorney General of our Commonwealth."

"I heard many times in Washington," Bates said, "of the excellent job he did during the two years he served as general counsel of the Foreign Operations Administration."

"Many difficult and complex legal problems arose while Christian Herter, Jr., was serving as general counsel for that highly important federal agency," Congressman Bates stated, "but he was equal to them."

"Officials of the Foreign Operations Administration expressed keen regret to me when Chris Herter resigned as general counsel for that branch of the federal government and came back home to stand for election to the Governor's Council in Massachusetts," Bates asserted.

"But they agreed," Bates said, "that the federal government's loss was the gain of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

"The thing which stood out about Chris Herter in Washington, apart from his natural qualities of leadership," Bates stated, "was his character and integrity, his unswerving adherence to the principle of honorable public service."

Bates said that Herter "gained the admiration and respect of all who came to know him in Washington."

"I understand he has made the same kind of record in the Governor's Council and before that in the Massachusetts House of Representatives," Bates observed.

"Without hesitation I recommend the candidacy of Christian A. Herter, Jr., to my fellow citizens. I am certain that as Attorney General he would serve us with great ability and staunch integrity for that is the only way he knows," Congressman Bates declared.

Newton Educator With Committee

The committee has been established as a phase of the University's long range $660,000 development campaign. It will seek $10,000,000, including $3,000,000 for a medical research building, a substantial part of which has already been raised; $3,000,000 for a classroom building with teaching laboratories, a $4,000,000 in endowment for scholarships, salaries and operating costs.

Senator Douglas of Illinois To Speak at Kennedy Dinner

U. S. Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois will be the principal speaker at a dinner honoring U. S. Senator John F. Kennedy in Boston on Saturday, Oct. 18, it was announced this week by the Massachusetts Citizens Committee for Minority Rights.

The announcement was made by Herbert Tucker, chairman of the Committee. Mr. Tucker said that the dinner honoring Senator Kennedy will be staged at the Statler-Hilton Hotel at 8 p.m. on October 18th.

"Senator Douglas, a native of Massachusetts and one of the great liberal voices of our time, will discuss the continuing battle to extend civil liberties to all Americans. Senator Douglas, a close personal friend and legislative colleague of Senator Kennedy's, also will document the continuing need for social and economic legislation to advance and protect the welfare of individuals in all walks of life," Tucker declared.

Mr. Tucker also said that the Massachusetts Citizens' Committee for Minority Rights will present to Senator Kennedy a citation honoring his contribution to the cause of human welfare. The Committee chairman explained that prominent leaders of government, labor, religion and business will attend the dinner, at which at least 600 guests are expected.

"We regard it as a great privilege to be able to honor our own United States Senator, John F. Kennedy, who has fought ceaselessly in Congress for the past 12 years to raise the economic and social standards of all Americans. We also are greatly honored that Senator Douglas will take time out from his busy schedule to discuss with us the most vital domestic issues of the day," Tucker stated.

Real Thriller

ly hurt by the departure from the game of Thompson, quarterback Buddy Russo did a magnificent job of taking up the slack. Russo passed for two touchdowns and 162 yards during the final quarter, but even this was not enough.

With Newton leading 18-12 in the final period, Everett halfback Len Young carried the leather 15 yards on the kickoff to the Everett 29. DiPari and halfback Jim Medugno each picked up two yards before Evans rifed a pass 16 yards down the middle to end Charlie Barabaro.

Two Evans passes failed, but a fullback-draw play pushed DiPari up the center for 16 more of the precious yards. While Newton frantically tried to dig in their heels and hold at all costs, Young reeled off another 14 yards to put Everett on Newton's 21 and "knocking at the door."

With a third and 12 situation confronting the Tide, Evans faded back, carefully selected the most likely receiver, and nailed halfback Jim Medugno with a perfect pass into the end zone. DiPari made the point after touchdown, assuring himself a place in Everett's all-time football hall of fame, and after one good pass before an interception by Everett, Newton's fate was sealed.

Rawson Cites Know-How And Experience

Representative George E. Rawson declared today that there is no substitute for legislative "know-how" which is gained only by the experience of having served in the State Legislature and having handled important matters there.

Rawson, Newton Republican, who is standing for reelection from the 4th Middlesex district, which comprises Wards 1, 2, 3 and 7, cited that he has the "know-how" and experience valuable to the district he represents.

He said he is running for reelection on his record of "sound accomplishment," adding that he always has been a full-time Representative, that he has been continuously on the job and in the past 10 years has missed only five roll calls. Those absences, he explained, were due to circumstances beyond his control.

Rawson has been chairman of the election laws committee whenever the Republicans have controlled the House and in the 1953-54 session was also chairman of the committee on public safety.

First as clerk and then as chairman of the committee on election laws, Rawson had a major part in the first real revision of those laws in over three years. He is regarded as an authority on election laws by Republicans and Democrats alike.

In his first term in the House Rawson and former Senator Ralph Clampt wrote the Public Safety Act of 1943 as an aftermath to the Cocoanut Grove disaster.

Rawson has worked for and secured the passage of legislation assisting voluntary hospitals, the medical profession and in providing a adequate training to protect the public health.

He has been in the forefront of fights in behalf of Newton, opposing the extension of the Toll Road through Newton and the discontinuance of the Highland branch of the Boston & Albany railroad. The relocation of route 128 to bypass Newton resulted from his constant efforts to that end.

Representative Rawson led successful fights to defeat an inheritance tax on life insurance proceeds as well as efforts to tax savings bank and cooperative bank deposits.

Deputy Secretary Francis X. Ahearn looks on at right. Standing are Assistant Attorneys General Fred W. Fisher and Joseph H. Elcock, Jr.

McCormack Supporters Commend His Decision in Gibbons Case

In the first critical opinion he was called upon to render since taking over the office, Attorney General Edward J. McCormack, Jr., displayed remarkable legal ability and a deep sense of responsibility, his supporters declare.

McCormack, a lifelong Democrat, is his party's nominee for Attorney General in the November election.

His decision in the Gibbons case attracted widespread attention throughout the Commonwealth. McCormack's ruling made it possible for the Republican party to pursue its own political campaign without fear of further disruption.

The matter concerned the eligibility of Charles Gibbons to run for Governor on the GOP ticket. The question was raised by Secretary of State Edward J. Cronin, who wanted the situation clarified before proceeding with the printing of the November election ballots.

After a thorough search of the laws pertaining to the case and careful interpretation of them, Attorney General McCormack came to the only conclusion he believed he could conscientiously reach. Then he informed the Secretary of State: —

"It is my opinion that Mr. Gibbons was duly nominated at the recent primaries... and that his name should be printed on the ballots..."

Attorney General McCormack said he was prepared to defend his decision personally in any court of the Commonwealth.

He made it clear in his exposition of his opinion that he was basing his findings on a "liberal interpretation" of the election laws.

"This is an unusual case," Attorney General McCormack declared. "George Fingold, the only duly qualified candidate for Governor died on the eve of the primary election."

"The opportunity and right of the voters in the Republican primary were on the verge of being eliminated. To deprive the voters of one of the major political parties of their right to express their choice for a gubernatorial nominee is in violation of deep-rooted constitutional principles."

"No provision of the statutes should be construed to accomplish such a result. It is clear beyond peradventure that the General Court never intended such a result."

drive to curb the number of early morning accidents.

Two such road watches already have been held in Newton by police and registry inspectors.

The most recent roadblock in Newton netted 16 motorists for speeding, failing to obey traffic signals or being unable to produce licenses or registrations when requested to do so.

A patrol team made up of Registry Inspector George F. Prescott, Police Sergeant William F. Quinn and Patrolmen Robert E. Wargin, Harry G. Cooper and Joseph A. Arnold of the Newton police operated from 1 a.m. to 3 a.m. at Washington street and Commonwealth avenue in Auburndale.

A total of 150 cars were stopped at that point during the two-hour period. Because of the number of officers on duty those motorists who were sober, had their licenses, and whose equipment was in satisfactory condition, were allowed to continue on their way with only a momentary delay.

Indications are that the next roadblocks ordered by Chief Purcell will be staged solely by police officers.

Sen. Gibbs Says Melia's Son Rented Station Wagon to State

State Senator Donald L. Gibbs declared today that the son of John F. Melia, his Democratic opponent in the State Senate race, is among those who rented a station wagon to the State Public Works Department this year.

Gibbs asserted that State House records show that a station wagon owned by Gerard Melia of 27 Faneuil street, Brighton, was rented by the Public Works Department starting last March 15. Senator Gibbs said that Gerard Melia is the son of John F. Melia who won the Democratic nomination for the State Senate in the September primary.

Gibbs stated that records at the State House show that between March 15 and June 2 Gerard Melia was paid a total of $2072 for the rental of his station wagon. This was at the rate of $140 per week, he said.

The Newton Senator said he does not have any information as to what sums, if any, have since June 2.

"I don't say that this was illegal," Gibbs emphasized, "but I do think that it was a little imprudent."

Gibbs further charged that Melia's answers to questions addressed to him by the Newton

League of Women Voters were "evasive."

"My record is well known, and I am prepared to stand on it in this campaign," Senator Gibbs stated. "During the past two years I have been recorded by rollcall on practically every major issue which has come before the State Legislature."

"But I don't think people know where Mr. Melia stands on anything."

Gibbs alleged that Melia answered with "double-talk" when the Newton League of Women Voters asked him from what source he felt the State should obtain any additional revenue it needs.

Senator Gibbs said that the answer made by Mr. Melia is a matter of record but that it doesn't mean anything.

Gibbs also reported that the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority has paid $4,000,000 to the State Public Works Department as a result of the fight he waged to force the payment of that sum.

EDMUND C. BUCKLEY Buckley Says Democratic Tide Running

Edmund C. Buckley, Democratic nominee for the office of Registry of Deeds in Southern Middlesex County, claims that his poll of opinion workers indicate a massive trend toward the Democratic Party in the 44 towns and cities comprising the district.

Speaking at a house rally in Newton Monday night, Buckley gave a brief sketch of the history and evolution of the office of Registry of Deeds from colonial times to the present and emphasized that it is the oldest elective office in the State. He stated that he would "organize the office into an efficient unit."

Political Highlights

stand adamant against a sales tax? Those are questions which will have to be answered a few months from now.

Politicians don't like to talk about such unpleasant subjects as taxes in a campaign. That apparently is true of both Foster Furcolo and Charles Gibbons.

Furcolo hasn't mentioned the sales tax so far in his campaign for reelection and evidently doesn't intend to do so.

Gibbons declared, in answer to a question the other day, that he would sign a sales tax bill if one were passed by the Legislature but only if the measure provided that the money raised went to the cities and towns.

The disposition of Messrs. Furcolo and Gibbons to talk about something else does not obliterate the blunt truth that right now the State is living beyond its means. It is spending more money than it is taking in, and it must face a day of financial reckoning some time between now and next June 30.

Governor Furcolo presumably will have a ready answer when that question is put to him on some public platform, as it undoubtedly will be before the end of the campaign.

In all likelihood he will argue that he proposed a withholding tax bill which would have met the situation for this year but that the Republican-controlled Senate killed it. He'll probably accuse the GOP solons of obstructionism on the ground that they rejected his program without advancing any substitute for it.

In fairness, Furcolo last year also made a tremendous fight for the enactment of a sales tax which probably offers the only real solution to the financial dilemma confronting the Commonwealth.

The fact, however, is that the voters have a right to expect the candidates for Governor to tell what they will do about the problems confronting the State if they are elected. And the most urgent, pressing and critical problem is taxes.

The financial experts on Beacon Hill must be pretty nearly running out of the stop-gap gimmicks and book-keeping maneuvers which have been used to balance the State's ledgers.

Pretty soon the Commonwealth either is going to have to levy more taxes or spend less money. The big issue of this campaign is as simple as that.

If Governor Furcolo and former Speaker Gibbons are going to engage in any debates, one of the subjects they surely should cover is where they're going to get the money to run the State.

Gibbons Aided By Publicity On Legality of Nomination

One of Secretary of State Edward J. Cronin's aides helped to give GOP gubernatorial nominee Charles Gibbons an unexpected life by asking Attorney General Edward J. McCormack, Jr., for a ruling on whether Gibbons is legally the Republican candidate for Governor.

All that accomplished was to place Gibbons' name on the front pages of the newspapers for several days, push him before the public eye and give him publicity he couldn't have bought.

It must be obvious to almost everyone that under our system of elections in Massachusetts the basic and fundamental right of nominating the Democratic and Republican candidates for Governor—and then of deciding which of the two should serve in the office—rests with the voters.

If a majority of the Republican voters had written Foster Furcolo's name onto their ballots as their choice for Governor, he would have been the GOP as well as the Democratic candidate, if he had accepted the nomination, and there wouldn't have been a thing the Republican State Committee or anyone else could have done about it.

The voters, if they had so chosen, could have nominated Charles Gibbons for 10 offices, and he could have picked the one he wanted to run for.

What some politicians are inclined to forget is that the voters are the real bosses. The funny thing is that the voters sometimes forget it, too.

Lt. Gov. Race Follows Trend Of Battle for Governorship

Only once in the last 12 State elections have the voters of Massachusetts picked a Governor of one party and a Lieutenant Governor of the other.

That lone exception in the last quarter of a century to the established political pattern came in 1944 when the late Maurice J. Tobin was elected Governor and Robert F. Bradford won the Lieutenant Governorship.

Aside from that one instance the closest Bay State voters have come in the last quarter of a century to splitting their ballots in the fights for Governor and Lieutenant Governor was in 1936 when the late Charles F. Hurley won the gubernatorial race and Francis E. Kelly barely nosed out Leverett Saltonstall for the Lieutenant Governorship in a tremendous upset.

Because the records show that the voters have a tendency to cast their ballots for candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor of the same party it is anticipated that the fight between Robert F. Murphy and Elmer C. Nelson for the right to serve as Lieutenant Governor will pretty much follow the trend of the gubernatorial battle between Governor Furcolo and former Speaker Gibbons.

That means that if Furcolo is reelected the likelihood is that Murphy will be returned to office with him, while if Gibbons succeeds in defeating Furcolo the probability is that Nelson will be the next Lieutenant Governor.

Some political experts have expressed the conviction that the Democratic candidates for lesser offices such as Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, State Treasurer and State Auditor may profit to a greater extent than Governor Furcolo from the Democratic trend which apparently prevails.

Election records, however, indicate that is not the case as far as the Lieutenant Governorship is concerned.

Some outstanding vote-getters, among them Leverett Saltonstall, the late Paul Dever, Laurence Curtis and even Charles Gibbons, present GOP nominee for Governor, have gone down to defeat with their gubernatorial running mates, after finding themselves unable to break the pattern mentioned earlier.

The contest between Lieutenant Governor Murphy and former GOP State Chairman Nelson is, nevertheless, an interesting one.

Both Murphy and Nelson are what is known as party workhorses. Murphy had a long career in the House of Representatives, rising to the rank of Democratic leader and becoming his party's nominee for Governor in 1954.

He is a staunch, down-the-line Democrat who carries his party loyalty to the point that early in 1957 he refused to vote for the confirmation of certain of the Republicans whom Governor Furcolo appointed to high State posts.

Nelson is a more controversial figure in the GOP than Murphy is in the Democratic party. He also is a more colorful and fiery orator with a flair for coining ear-catching phrases and for instilling a tremendous enthusiasm in those working with him.

As chairman of the Republican State Committee, Nelson was an outstanding organizer, and he presumably is utilizing those same talents for himself and his running mates on the GOP ticket. His mere presence on the Republican firing line will help enliven the campaign of the next month. A debate in which the two-fisted, hard-hitting Nelson was one of the principals would be worth hearing.

Rudolph F. King Newton Men Take Part in Meeting Is Seeking Seat In Exec. Council

Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles Rudolph F. King of Millis is making a vigorous campaign for election to the Governor's Council in the third councillor district which takes in Newton.

An ex-speaker of the House of Representatives, King is one of the best known Republicans in Massachusetts.

He served as Registrar of Motor Vehicles under six governors, being re-appointed by Republicans and Democrats alike.

King was appointed Registrar in August, 1944, by the then Governor Leverett Saltonstall, was reappointed by the late Maurice J. Tobin in 1946, by the late Paul A. Dever in 1951 and by Christian A. Herter in 1956.

He represented the Commonwealth of Massachusetts at the first President's Highway Safety Conference in Washington in 1946. He also represented the State at the President's Highway Safety Conference of 1947 and 1948 and was executive director of the President's Highway Safety Conference from 1949 to 1952.

During 1951 he received two national awards for outstanding accomplishments in promoting highway safety.

The Massachusetts Senate and House passed resolutions in 1950, 1951 and 1953 honoring him for his leadership in highway safety.

The American Automobile Association gave him its Outstanding Leadership Award in Pedestrian Protection for nine consecutive years.

Active in town affairs in Millis, King served for eight years as a Selectman and for four years as chairman of the Board of Selectmen, was also president of the Norfolk County Selectmen's Association, a member of the School Committee for nine years and chairman for five years, a member of the Finance Committee for three years, an assessor for two years and chairman of the assessing board for two years.

He is presently serving his 30th year as town moderator in Millis, is serving his 25th year as cemetery commissioner and is co-director of civil defense.

At the present time King is president of the Medway Cooperative Bank, a director of the Joseph C. White Campaign Director For Atty. John L. Saltonstall, Jr.

Boston City Councillor Joseph C. White this week assumed the position of campaign director for Suffolk County for John L. Saltonstall, Jr., Democratic candidate for Congress in the 10th District.

"John L. Saltonstall, Jr., is eminently qualified by his background of federal public service and his record as a civic leader to represent the 10th District in Congress," Councillor White declared upon his appointment as campaign director.

"His broad experience," he continued, "working with Congressional committees and negotiating with the NATO nations is the kind of experience needed to meet the great domestic and foreign problems of our time."

Councillor White cited Saltonstall's service in Washington under Presidents Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower, referring to his most recent assignment with the Department of the Army in 1952-53 when Saltonstall completed a mission to the nations of the North Atlantic Pact to evaluate the arms procurement program.

"Saltonstall's knowledge of our defense needs will be invaluable in the next Congress," White asserted. "He gained much valuable know-how, also, working with Congressional committees while with the War Department and the National War Labor Board," White pointed out.

Saltonstall hailed the decision of Councillor White to enter his campaign.

"I am honored that Mr. White has accepted my invitation to aid me in the campaign," Saltonstall said. "He has built a solid reputation as a lawmaker and public servant in the Boston community. His active participation assures a Democratic victory in November and the election of a Congressman who will actively represent all the people of our district."

Councillor White, a resident of Ruskin street, West Roxbury, has held elective office for 29 consecutive years, as a member of the Massachusetts House, the State Senate, on the Boston School Committee for 14 years; and as a member of the Boston City Council since 1951.

White has served as president of the City Council. As five times chairman of the Council's Executive Committee, he has never permitted a closed-door session. His chairmanship of the committee has been marked by "tact and fairness in steering heated issues through that body," the Boston Traveler has commented.

Councillor White was joined by several other Democratic leaders this week in predicting victory for Saltonstall.

Saltonstall, a Brookline resident and Boston lawyer, specializes in his law practice in Federal litigation. He has been active in several civic and charitable organizations in Brookline and Greater Boston, including the United Fund, Red Cross, and Greater Boston Girl Scout Council.

His service to the Democratic Party includes organizing the Young Democrats of Middlesex County and the Brookline Democratic Club. He has served as an elected member of the Democratic State Committee. He was a campaign associate of the late Gov. Paul A. Dever and in 1952 was state chairman

'SHOPPING AROUND WITH RITA'

If there is anything more adorable than a little boy with a giant sized love for a dog... it's two boys... Little Billy and Donny Bryson wander over to Debby's Pet Land most everyday to visit their pal "Rex" who is staying at Debby's until he finds a new home... Rex is a mongrel, but is he cute with a smooth sand colored coat with just a touch of white and soft brown eyes... Mrs. Raphael is another constant visitor at the Pet Shop and her hobby is tropical fish... yesterday she picked out a pair of Angel Fish that she has been wanting for a long time... This is the pet land for everyone who loves pets...

If there is anything more beautiful than the gifts you find along Fifth Ave... it's the gifts you find at Allets... and they are so different... For instance the "Tobe" jugs imported from England. I have never seen anything like them anywhere... and I visit many gift shops... They are colorful jugs and pitchers with lifelike faces of the characters from 'Dickens'... They also carry a wonderful assortment of Eagles (wall plaques) in gold leaf... and also a nice array of wall planters with one, two or three plant pots... You drop in at Allets the next time you are out shopping and get acquainted... find it near the corner of Washington and Walnut Streets in Newtonville.

Say, if there is anything that is more like fall than brilliant foliage... it is the shiny gourds, and huge pumpkins at Esty's Farm... Real country atmosphere... and a wonderful harvest of good eating... Look for Esty's near the West Roxbury and Newton line, where Dedham and Baker Streets meet...

If there is anyone happier than the lucky motorists at this time of the year... it is the smart one who remembered to bring a camera to take plenty of pictures of the gorgeous autumn foliage... By the way you know our wonderful Atwood's Camera Shop in Newton Centre now can laminate snapshots to carry in your wallet... This is also a mighty handy way to carry important cards that you carry with you like social security, credit cards and such... You know it keeps them clean and neat without dogeared corners and wrinkles... Remember that is Atwood's for every picture taking service.

You know if there is anything smoother than silk... it is the new smooth non-sticky surface that E-Z Glide puts on grill, oven fry pans or clothes iron... Yes, this is the same new product that sprays on a smooth surface to window and drawer runners to end sticking and jamming forever... It is a marvelous product and you can purchase it at Sumner Frame Shop, 210 Sumner Street, Newton Centre, or call DE 2-2420... And while you are there look at those Cork Bulletin Boards. I had a friend say to me yesterday... "I have been meaning to go to Newton Centre for one of those bulletin boards. You are so enthusiastic about them..." Well, I am, I use one in my own home and would be lost without it... and these are so sturdy and well made... and also reasonable... But don't just think about getting one... do it today... Find the Sumner Frame Shop, opposite the Newton Centre Post Office.

Backers of Gibbons Declare He is Symbol of Steadiness

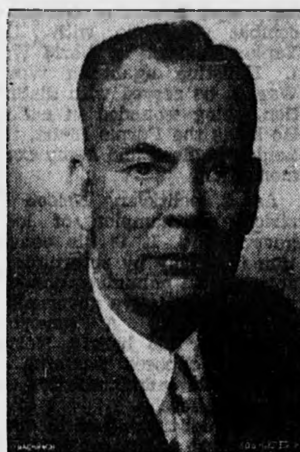

Democrats who take comfort in Charles Gibbons being the opponent of Foster Furcolo because "nobody knows Charlie" are indulging in a dangerous illusion, supporters of Gibbons declare.

His determination to avoid any sort of "razzle dazzle" in either politics or in private life has been a source of dismay to some of his followers who fear that there isn't sufficient time left before the election for the voters of Massachusetts to "get to know Charlie."

The trouble with both theories is that a great many more people know — and respect — Gibbons than is generally realized. Positive proof of that is the fact that in his quest for the Lieutenant Governorship two years ago, Gibbons rolled up a surprising million-plus votes; even though the contenders for Governor monopolized the spotlight with charges and countercharges, his backers state.

From whence does this awareness of Gibbons originate? Who are the people who do know Gibbons?

The answer to both of these questions is from "The solid citizens." The much-maligned and joked about solid citizens are those who feel genuine anxiety about the men who occupy public office; they are the broad segment of our population which ardently advocates progress, but who want to "make haste slowly" but surely; they are the people who budget their own resources to provide for the future and who become angry when governing bodies — on any level — do not do the same.

These people are the hard core of Gibbons' support. Significantly, although Gibbons received a record-breaking, history-making sticker and write-in vote following the sudden death of George Fingold, the true measure of his support among the "solid citizens" was not reflected in the tally, according to some observers.

This was mainly due to the fact that a large portion of this group seldom enrolls in the membership of either of the major political parties — although there are some of them in both. Without question, the November 4th vote will more truly reflect Gibbons' strength.

Those who did and will vote for Gibbons do so because he has become a symbol of steadiness and sureness of purpose. He is a fighter who characteristically lives up to this symbol by refusing to engage in his-trionics and bombast which many politicians consider indispensable if you want to capture the attention of the voters.

To Gibbons, government — especially in these days — is a serious occupation and requires unflinching alertness and attention to detail. Although he himself disclaims the appellation of "Lincolnesque" which his admirers are prone to use, it is unanimously agreed that he does resemble Lincoln in approaching all problems with a clear eye and mind and a determination not to grasp at temporary expedients but, rather, to search for a solution of long-range impact and effectiveness.

His ability to deliberate stems from the variety and extent of his service on various levels of government. As a Selectman, as Town Meeting Moderator, and as Chairman of many town committees in his home town of Stoneham he became adept handling local problems. Such experience was valuable in that the towns are the units which make up the sum of State government.

As a State representative — and membership on the Committees on Counties and Transportation, the powerful Ways and Means Committee (of which he became Vice Chairman); as Floor Leader of the House — Gibbons was able to build a vast reservoir of facts, figures, and experience relating to every state agency and involving the day-to-day lives of the people of the Commonwealth.

That his knowledge and experience was valuable to Governor Christian A. Herter from 1953 to 1958 is freely acknowledged by Herter, who credits Gibbons for the impressive total of Herter sponsored bills which were enacted while Gibbons was Speaker of the House of Representatives — in 1953-54 — and as Minority Floor leader during 1955-56.

Furcolo Campaign Director Says Democrats Are United

GOV. FOSTER FURCOLO

Democratic city and town committees of Massachusetts are working together as never before, according to James J. Landers, director of Governor Foster Furcolo's reelection campaign.

"The health and vigor of the Democratic Party this Fall are reflected in the drive and unanimity shown by the local leaders," Landers stated.

"Every city and town organization is going in the same direction, joining with Governor Furcolo in focusing on the same genuine and important issues."

"City and town committee chairmen by the score came to the kickoff luncheon and head-quarters in Boston, and all participated in the decisions made there. It was the first time in the state's Democratic political history there had been such a demonstration of absolute unity."

Landers contrasted the "fatality of the Democratic organization with 'the lethargy and confusion of the Republicans.'"

"I am sure the people of Massachusetts will not be fooled by their attempts to minimize the progress and

'heart' that have always characterized the Democratic Party," he asserted.

Congressman Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Cambridge, general chairman of the campaign, gave a fight talk to key personnel of Democratic State Campaign Headquarters at 777 Boylston street, opposite the site of the Prudential Center.

Despite Democratic successes everywhere, there is never a time for overconfidence in politics, Congressman O'Neill told the gathering. "We'll put on a hard, driving and thorough grassroots campaign," he said.

He promised that Governor Furcolo would go to every section of the state on his campaign tours, to point up the achievements of his administration in the past two years and to outline his plans for the future of the commonwealth.

"This is a service headquarters," the Congressman told his staff. "All of us are here to assist the city and town committees—to strengthen them and enable them to do a better job."

He called attention to the fact that the time for voter registration was getting short, and he deputized every headquarters worker to "Go through your own neighborhoods and get everyone on the voting lists."

"This is the most important single aspect of the campaign at this stage," Congressman O'Neill said.

"It wasn't too long ago that you could finance a pretty good war for what six months of peace costs today."—6809, publication of Rapid Service Press, Boston.

Senator Saltonstall Endorses Congressman Laurence Curtis

U. S. Senator Leverett Saltonstall today warmly praised the record Congressman Laurence Curtis has made during the past six years and vigorously urged that Curtis be re-elected to represent the 10th congressional district and its residents for another term.

Saltonstall declared that Curtis' integrity, character, intelligence and capacity for public service, coupled with his experience in both the State and Federal governments, "make his continued service in Congress of value to every citizen of the tenth district and throughout the Commonwealth."

The senior Massachusetts senator expressed the hope that the people of the tenth district would join with him in supporting Congressman Curtis and in re-electing him to another term "which he has earned by excellent service to the district and its people."

Senator Saltonstall's ringing endorsement of Congressman Curtis was a significant one since Curtis' opponent is a distant cousin of the senator.

In his statement calling for the reelection of Congressman Curtis, Senator Saltonstall said: "I strongly endorse Laurence Curtis for reelection to Congress. His integrity, character, intelligence and capacity for public service, coupled with his experience in both state government and the Congress, make his continued service to Congress of value to every citizen of the tenth district and throughout the Commonwealth.

"He has a distinguished war record of active service during which he was seriously injured. He has a full and sensitive understanding of the problems of our veterans.

"He has been a friend of mine since college days when we both played on the Harvard hockey team.

"I hope that the voters of the tenth district will join with me in support of his candidacy and re-election for another term which he has earned by excellent service to the district and its people."

State is Robbing Grass Roots Of Necessities, Claims Nelson

"Grass roots" taxpayers are being milked to feed the patronage hunger and extravagance of irresponsible State administration, charges Elmer C. Nelson of Mendon, Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor. This, says Nelson, is a practice to which the voters of Massachusetts must call an immediate halt, or continue to live in want of necessities.

A veteran state official and top strategist of the Republican Party, Mr. Nelson has lived close to the grass roots himself. An active member of service clubs (Elks, Lions) and of civic and fraternal organizations, Elmer Nelson has been a community worker and booster all his life.

His reputation as a political expert includes prominence in the affairs of the American Legion—he is a past commander of the ment, American Legion—and as the successful promoter of two of the most spectacular Republican campaigns in Massachusetts history.

As State director, Nelson organized the Saltonstall-for-Governor campaign of 1956 and was chairman of the Herter-for-Governor campaign of 1952. He was top man in the 1954 setup as well, as chairman of the Republican State Committee, when Mr. Herter was elected to a second term as Governor. Mr. Nelson's state service includes several terms as a member of the Legislature and a term as chairman of the State Racing Commission.

As a boy actually under military age, Nelson served as a combat veteran with the Yankee Division in World War I. Enlisting again in World War II, he served with distinction, being wounded in action. He holds the Purple Heart, the Legion of Merit and Army Commendation.

As a politician, Nelson is strictly a champion of local government. It is his conviction that only by returning to strong local administration can true representative government be preserved. A tenacious fighter for his beliefs, Nelson strongly opposes wasteful, irresponsible administration at the state level.

"This debauching of the public interest on Beacon Hill," he says, "wastes more of every tax dollar on unnecessary luxuries and leaves less of it available for services no local community can do without, namely:—better schools, better police and fire protection, better sanitation, water supply, and maintenance."

His service in the Legislature helped to convince Nelson of the absolute need for greater local autonomy. He served on the committee on taxation, on counties, on election laws and he was House Chairman of a special recess commission on taxation.

In this latter capacity, he proposed and fought through to enactment a law (ch. 143, Acts of 1956) placing a limit of $5 per $1000 of valuation on industrial machinery. Previously machinery had been taxed at prevailing local tax rates—a prohibitive levy which caused textile and other industries to move out of the state. This one amendment did more than any other to arrest the flight of industry from Massachusetts, he declares.

Nelson fathered the Teachers' Tenure law, prior to enactment of which teachers often were dismissed for capricious reasons. The Nelson act provides that no teacher with three years of service in the job may be fired except upon adequate proof of charges.

While chairman of the Committee on Counties, Mr. Nelson, in behalf of Massachusetts selectmen, brought pressure for better distribution of Chapter 90 road-building funds. A rule was forced through for an equitable distribution—½ by the Commonwealth and ½ each by the county and the town. Prior to this, Chapter 90 money was subject to a great deal of political "horse-trading," often with damage to communities most in need.

Ennis Stars as Arrows Defeat Thayer, 26-0

St. Sebastian's gave promise of a strong season in its opener, against Thayer Academy, brushing aside the visitors with ease as it ran up a 26-0 victory. Eddie Ennis was outstanding for the Arrows. He scored the Saints' first TD on a 20-yard romp and added a second score in the second period on a 40-yard romp.

In the third period the Arrows scored twice, Halfback Harry Roche going 20 yards for one and Joe Corsetti getting the final of the day on a 25-yard dash. Ennis converted with a two-pointer after Roche's score by slashing over the goal line on a rush.

Edw. J. Sullivan Campaigning For Court Clerk Post

Cambridge City Councillor Edward J. Sullivan, Democratic nominee for the office of Clerk of Courts of Middlesex County, is waging a vigorous campaign.

It is Sullivan's second bid for that office. He fell short of victory in 1952 by only a comparatively small margin after amassing the unprecedented total of 241,369 votes.

Sullivan is now serving his ninth year as a member of the Cambridge City Council and during 1956-57 served as Mayor of Cambridge.

For the past 12 years he has held the offices of president and general manager of the M. S. Sullivan Transportation Com-

"I feel that my experience gained through business and civic management amply qualifies me for the position I seek, and I promise the voters that with youth and vigor in my favor I will carry on the duties of clerk of courts in a highly intelligent, efficient and impartial manner, with courtesy ever prevalent throughout the entire office," Sullivan stated.

TELEVIEWING THE NEWS

By LEE LOUMOS

Most of us think of television in terms of its entertainment and educational values in our homes. I think we all agree that those values have come a long way in recent years — and that they have assumed a greater and greater importance in our lives.

But it pays now and then to give TV the full benefit of its definition: as a means of communication — possibly the greatest ever devised. When we think of it this way, we can quickly see that "communication" from the studio into our homes — including the newscasts, prize fights, dramas and variety shows — is just one piece in the big pie of communication possibilities.

We've already been prepared for the day when our telephone calls will let us see as well as hear the person at the other end of the line. We've heard, too, how a TV camera placed in the nose of a robot plane has been used widely in aviation research. Heavy use of television in industry, schools and department stores seems to be a sure thing in the near future. In New York's Pennsylvania Station a closed-circuit installation is now in use, speeding up the sale of passenger tickets by displaying up-to-the-minute train reservation charts on a big bank of TV receivers.

Yes, there's no doubt about it — television is here to stay. And, while there may be some startling developments in the future of the TV field, we feel it'll be a good long while before there are any finer examples of TV set manufacturing than the 1957 SYLVANIA models. Come in soon... see if you don't agree...

Headlights and Highlights From Newton High School

By JUDY ARNOLD

HIGHLIGHTS . . . The first meeting of the 1958-1959 Legislature was called to order a week ago today by the new president, Larry Yeo. Plans for this year were briefly discussed. Assisting Larry are Mary Ellen DeStefano, girls' vice-president; Neil Driscoll, boys' vice-president; Nancy Preston, secretary; and Susan Fowler, treasurer. Acting parliamentarian is Carol Chandler. This year, Mr. Rogers, faculty member of the Legislature, will be aided by Dr. Robinson.

The Legislature is also faced with a slightly irregular situation. It will be operating for this school year under a new constitution. The new body of laws was passed rather hurriedly at the end of last year as extensive work had gone into their preparation and they were not ready to be ratified until the last meetings of the 1957-1958 Legislature. Because of this unusual situation the members of this group and the school are on the alert to watch for any pitfalls or good points in the new laws, so that in April a decision can be made as to any changes necessary in this new constitution that future Newton High School Legislatures will follow.

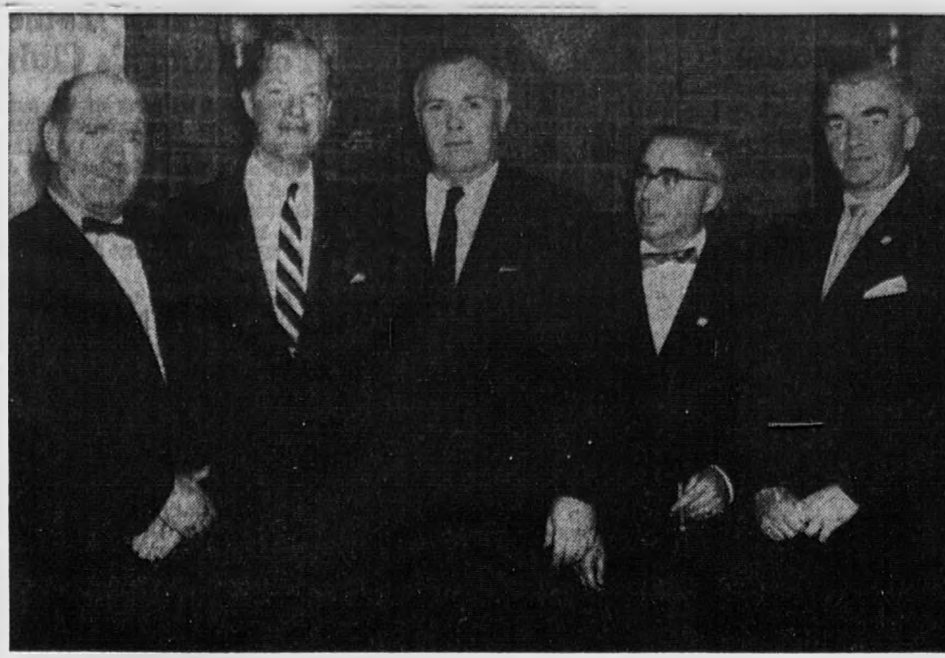

Of course, there is the chance that Newton High School will be completely reorganized into a house-type system and then the entire government laws would have to be changed again and a completely new constitution written. The decision about the organization of NHS for the next few years will be made within the next few months.

The Century Committee, a group of volunteers, is presently working under the direction of Miss Creedon to plan and organize the activities concerned with the centenary class and all previous graduates. The tedious job of addressing and stuffing envelopes to be mailed to thousands and thousands of past graduates of Newton High is being undertaken by Barbara Adolph, Robert Levenson, Mark Zimmerman, Priscilla Beckwith, Ginna Barnes, Carol Panagga, Sondra Barkin, Leah Kahalas, Diane Lerkowith, Judy Balkan, Sylvia Keller, Ruth Solomon, Joel Feldstein, Carol Bean, Judy Arnold, Brooke Kruger, Mary Auryanson, Betty Banquer, Irma Barron, Yvonne Bauduin, Arleen Bergart, Katherine Carleton, Elaine Cohen, Paul Daly, Geoffrey Davidson, Bill Doyle, Judy Dean, Diane Fay, Dick Geagan, Francis Hunt, Wendy Hyman, Fred Jarrett, Danny Krinsky, Liz Lubell, Lydia Malony, Amy McAuliffe, Gladys McCullough, Linda McKenney, Charles Murphy, Ivy Nesson, Sue Simonds, Emily Newton, Marion Tabor, Fred Posner, Mark Walsh, Meg Rapp, Steve Rosenberg, Sue Williams, Kathleen Ryan, Linda Wolf, and Maryann Schiavone. This is an all-senior committee.

For the past few weeks, Barry Wish, Mary Ellen DeStefano, and Neil Driscoll, along with Mr. Rogers, have been very busy sorting out applications from students for membership in the Civics Committee for this year. A great many pupils applied to help this committee in its efforts to perform services for the benefit of the school. Some of these services include running elections, planning assemblies for student benefits, running a clean-up and other campaigns around the school, etc. Good school citizenship is a major requisite for membership.

At the first meeting of the Senior Class Committee last Thursday, a major item of business was the election of a second vice-president for the class.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS UNITING and closing ranks for coming campaign are, left to right, Lawrence C. Sullivan, John L. Saltonstall, Jr., candidate for Congress; John F. Mella, Democratic nominee for State Senate; Alfred R. Guzzi, House candidate; and Robert W. Gallagher. Sullivan and Gallagher, both of whom lost to Mella in Democratic Senate primary, are now supporting his candidacy.

The person elected was Fred Posner.

This year, because of the many activities that Newton High will be undertaking in connection with its centennial celebration, it has been decided that there will be no School and School Exchange, such as there has been for several years past. Last year's exchanges were to Washington, D.C., Putney, Vermont, and Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. However, Newton High is still playing host to an A.F.S. student from Germany. His name is Hans Worwag and he is living in Waban at John Derr's home. Hans has been here since August, is now attending classes at Newton High like a regular student, and will return to Europe some time next summer. Gitly Tamadon from Iran is also here in Newton.

THE OUT-DOOR TYPE . . .

The Newton High School Physical Education Departments operate for the enjoyment as well as the benefit of all students. Students are now in the process of signing up for and starting fall intra-mural teams. Every boy is given the opportunity to develop himself physically and he finds excellent facilities and equipment. The teams are coached by men "who really know their game and love to teach their skills to young men."

The girls' program gives the females the chance to learn the skills of a wide variety of sports. The activities give the beginner and the expert the opportunity to participate in her favorite sport.

The boys' department has expressed a desire to have as many boys out for teams as are really interested in learning the fundamentals of the various sports. Also, boys who for some reason cannot be active in sports are still able to render a great service to NHS and to earn their school letters. They may participate as managers for various teams.

Some of the fall sports are cross-country, riflery, indoor and outdoor track, and of course, football, for the boys. For the girls, the fall offers modern dancing, tennis, archery and field hockey.

THE GREAT BIG WONDERFUL WHIRL . . . Last week, home-room managers were active with their first main duties of the year—selling Student Activities' tickets. The purpose of the ticket is that this one ticket only is necessary for student events. It therefore eliminates many ticket-selling campaigns and decreases the total cost to high school pupils who attend school activities. The value of the S.A.T. is listed at $14.50 although it sells for $5.00.

THE MARQUEE . . . The Drama Club stimulates interest in good drama and provides an opportunity for students to participate in worthwhile dramatic activities. Some of its activities are a theatre party, assembly program, spring party, talent programs, and guest artists.

The members are chosen from all classes by competitive try-outs. Those students whose membership holds over from last year are Joanne Abrahams, Carol Alban, Marcia Bailey, Rowena Balos, Susan Calender, Ellen Cerf, Lucy Colten, Gloria Dashesky, Donna DeMarco, Kerstin Ferre, Barbara Hayes, Sue Hein, Selby Hickey, Sylvia Huberman, Natalie Jarosh, Leslie Kah, Fred Lee Kaplan, Judith LaRue, Cecilia Lyons, Ken Malkin, Kathy McDonough, Judy Malone, Mary Melvin, Leone Netzorg, Rose Rizza, Liz Plotkin, Joan Popper, Judy Reiner, Donna Richmond, Diane Rote, Louisa Schell, Andrea Schwartz, Elcha Shain, Candida Smith, Joseph Schneider, Ann Marilyn Steinberg, Jane Sussman, Jane Sutherland, Martha Tepper, Betsy Weinberg, Peggy Wells, Kayla Wyman, Judy Arnold, Arlene Bergart, Julie Bergmark, Jan Lee Clement, Betsy Cohen, Linda Cohen, Susan Cohen, Joel Dorgan, Ken Flanagan, Dorothy Gurvitz, Adele Lerman, Liz Lubell, Carl Savitsky, Dolores Signore, Mimi Shaw and Ruth Shepard.

Rosenwald Cites Qualifications For Legislature

Harold Rosenwald of Newton, one of the Democratic nominees for Representative in the Fifth Middlesex District, ran ahead of the other candidates in the Democratic primary, polling a total of 1311 votes against 1071 for the second candidate and 1034 for the third candidate.

Mr. Rosenwald was born in Cambridge and attended the public schools there. He attended Harvard College, receiving an A.B. degree cum laude, and Harvard Law School, where he received an LL.B. degree, cum laude. At Law School he won the honor of serving as an editor of the Harvard Law Review.

He cited the following qualifications for the General Court. For about ten years he was employed in Washington as counsel for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and later as Special Assistant to the Attorney General of the United States. He is presently engaged in general law practice in Boston.

A veteran of World War II, Rosenwald served with the Navy in the Southwest Pacific Area. He acted as judge advocate of the General Court Martial, Seventh Fleet. At the present time he is a Lieutenant Commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve.

Mr. Rosenwald lives at 14 Greenwood street, Newton Centre, with his wife, the former Betty Booth, a daughter and two sons.

The principal problems confronting the General Court are in the area of fiscal policy, according to the views of Rosenwald. He has frankly stated his conviction that all necessary steps should be taken to arrest inflation and to provide adequate funds for the needs of the Commonwealth. He believes that the administration of the State income tax law should be improved, by withholding provisions and other effective collection measures, and that if these reforms fail to produce adequate revenues, a sales tax should be adopted as a disagreeable necessity.

Fall Culinary Classic Gives Gas Range Award

The annual Cooking School sponsored jointly by the Boston Gas Company and The Newton Graphic will be the mecca for enthusiastic homemakers from this area when the fall's most exciting event takes place in the auditorium of the Warren Junior High School next Wednesday evening starting at 7 o'clock.

GOP Candidates Will Speak In Newton Tonight

Former Speaker Charles Gibbons, Republican candidate for Governor, will deliver a major address in Newton tonight (Thursday) at the Beethoven School at a giant GOP Candidates Reception sponsored by the Newton United Republican Victory Committee.

Appearing on the platform with him will be Congressman Laurence Curtis, Vincent Celeste, candidate for U.S. Senator, and members of the entire state ticket, as well as Republicans running for county office.

A specially warm ovation at tonight's big rally is expected for Newton's favorite son candidate on the GOP State ticket.

— SPEAK TONIGHT —

First in importance on the agenda is the cooking demonstration. In a handsome all-gas kitchen setting, the Home Service Department of Boston Gas Company, under the direction of Miss Susan Mack, will present seven gourmet dishes, using the most modern cooking techniques.

After a brief intermission in which arrangements will be made to award the many door prizes now being gathered by a crew of busy workers, A&P Stores will give an interesting presentation of their Super-Right Meat Department. After she sees this demonstration, no housewife could possibly think buying and cooking meat is a dull matter.

The fresh meat cuts which will be used to illustrate the Super-Right story will be awarded as door prizes to some lucky ladies in the audience. It's a good idea to get husbands to come along because

Local School Children To Assist Smith House Drive

Newton school children have been assured of the opportunity to participate in the movement to save the Smith House at 1181 Centre Street, home of the author of the patriotic hymn, "America."

The Newton School Committee, Haskell C. Freedman chairman, has made such participation possible by its unanimous vote to permit contributions for this purpose by students in the Newton schools and by providing for the observance in the schools of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Samuel Francis Smith (October 21) by special projects and assemblies.

This was disclosed in a letter from Superintendent of Schools Dennard, read by Walter J. Kreske, president of the Smith Homestead Association at the second campaign meeting at the Playground House, Tyler Terrace, Newton Centre for the purpose of raising funds to save the property. Mrs. Leonard Baker of 888 Beacon street, Newton Centre, has been selected chairman of this important portion of the campaign program.

Television coverage of the Smith House restoration progress has been assured by two Newton residents, William Swartley, vice president and Herb Cahan, program director

$3,900 Gets Okay For School Head's Moving Expenses

The Board of Aldermen voted 20-1 at their Monday night meeting to approve a School Committee request for $3,900 expense money for Superintendent Eric N. Dennard, incurred in moving himself, his family and his belongings from Waco, Texas, to Newton. The money granted the new school head is in addition to his annual $18,000 salary.

The favorable vote was taken after a closed door session with City Solicitor Matt B. Jones concerning the legality of the expenditure. The lone negative vote was cast by Alderman Leo M. Cannon.

Hirsch Sharf, acting chairman of the finance committee, said his group was "surprised" at the sum of money involved, but that conferences with the mayor and others indicated it was not unusually high.

Alderman Sharf added that it is customary to move the superintendent of schools or other officials and, since Mr. Dennard moved from Texas, "He had a long way to go."

Further comment on the Aldermen's action was offered by Wendell R. Bauckman, presi-

Tigers Face Brockton Here Saturday; Thompson Stars In Victory Over Cranston

Determined to stay on the victory road now that it had found the recipe for success, the Newton High School football team plays host next Saturday afternoon to an old, always-tough playmate from Brockton.

The game to be played at Dickinson Field will be one of the top football attractions in the Greater Boston area. It always is, for you can throw the form books away when the card reads Newton and Brockton.

Like Newton, the Shoe City boys do not yet know their potential for '58.

The Tigers untracked by Everett High in their opener, last week appeared to have found some of the form predicted for them before the season opened.

Against a fast, well-drilled team from Cranston, R.I., the Tigers showed flashes of power on offense while their defensive walls proved much less vulnerable than against surprising Everett.

Against Cranston Coach Bud Hawkes used 28 men, substituting frequently as he sought to determine the identity of the players who'll be carrying the brunt of the load later in the season.

Former Boston Post Political Editor

Voter Apathy May Be Problem To Top Democratic Candidates

One of the things about which the top Democratic candidates may have to concern themselves is the apparent apathy on the part of members of their political party.

Figures which have been reported thus far indicate a sharp drop in the number of enrolled voters in many of the cities and larger towns which are the centres of Democratic strength in Massachusetts.

The registration of voters between a primary and an election usually is considered a fairly reliable barometer of the public interest in a forthcoming election.

The enrollment was lighter than usual in many areas this fall despite intensive drives which were staged. Democratic leaders conducting the registration campaign reported they encountered a decided apathy in their efforts to persuade prospective party supporters to have their names added to the voting lists so they may cast ballots in the November election.

That should be disquieting news for the Democratic strategists if they take the time to analyze the situation. Any widespread public apathy toward the present campaign and the coming election would well tend to blunt the Democratic tide which apparently is running.

Public apathy, of course, presents a problem for Republicans as well as Democrats. But every experienced politician knows that it's usually easier to persuade a person to vote against a candidate than for him.

In this State-wide campaign the Democratic candidates are all the "ins." The Republicans, on the other

Volunteers Needed For United Fund

The Newton United Fund residential campaign organization still needs more than 1,700 volunteer solicitors before the drive opens Sunday, October 26.

Charles Garfinkle, Newton residential chairman, noted that "Our residential division has now reached 20 percent of our total required enrollment. During the past week we secured 22 captains and 131 solicitors."

Robert Crooks of Newton Lower Falls has already attained 97 percent of his needed enrollment and Mrs. R. Jones of Newton Center has secured 74 percent of her workers.

More than 30 district leaders and village chairmen attended a Disaster Dinner, Wednesday, October 1 at United Fund headquarters which is located in the Newton Civil Defense headquarters building at 383 Langley road, Newton Center.

Four Local Civic Leaders Named To Foundation Board

Four Newton civic leaders were elected to the board of the Suffolk County Chapter of the National Foundation at its annual meeting held recently at the Hotel Somerset.

William R. Coleman of 50 Janet Road, and Benjamin T. Kaplan, of 104 Hammondswood Road, elected vice chairmen; and Colonel Margaret McGovern, 310 Commonwealth Avenue, and Harry Sher of 38 Clements Road are among the slate of 28 new officers who will spearhead the Suffolk County Chapter's program for the coming year.

Re-elected president was Reuben B. Gryzmish of Brookline who announced that intensive plans are being set to launch the Foundation's expanded health program into the fields of virus diseases, arthritis, birth defects and disorders of the central nervous system.

With the incidence of polio virually eliminated by the Salk Vaccine, the National Foundation will now turn its vast organizational and research resources to the defeat of other major diseases affecting the lives of millions in the nation.

Suffolk County Chapter will conduct its March of Dimes campaign in January to support the expanded program. Funds will go toward the development of patient aid programs for victims of arthritis and birth defects through age 18; for research into the causes and prevention of virus diseases; and for the continued care and treatment of polio victims still on its rolls.

John L. Saltonstall, Jr., Raps Policies of Eisenhower Regime

John L. Saltonstall, Jr., Democratic nominee for Congress, in talks this week throughout the 10th District, leveled sharp criticism at the Eisenhower administration's defense and foreign policies.

Speaking before the State Club, he took to task the Republican administration for its failure to keep the American people informed that the United States has steadily fallen behind the Russians in "several key areas of defense and that they continue to gain on us in other areas."

"It is quite clear that we have dropped behind on ballistic missiles—the most important single aspect of modern warfare. We have not yet successfully tested an intercontinental missile," he asserted.

"Furthermore, we have an imbalance in our military establishment. The administration has placed too much reliance on the concept of massive retaliation and has left us woefully unprepared to fight the brush-fire wars of our time.

"This over-emphasis on special armaments means too high a ratio of atomic armaments to conventional arms, leading to inflexibility in our diplomacy," Saltonstall declared.

He cited the current Quemoy crisis as illustrative of the inflexibility resulting from a lack of sufficient conventional forces to fight small wars.

The United States, Saltonstall said, is only spending 10 per cent of its gross national product on defense under the present Republican administration, while 14.6 per cent was spent in the last year of the Truman administration.

"The Russians are spending between 50 and 60 per cent," Saltonstall stated.

Saltonstall speaks on defense policy from a rich background of experience in the War Department, the National War Labor Board, and most recently in the Department of the Army where he served as Associate General Counsel in 1952-53. In this latter post he completed a mission to Europe to evaluate the arms procurement program of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

board of trustees to succeed the late Harold A. Wooster.

He brings to his new post a working knowledge of the Newton Library system having worked here for a year under Mr. Wooster in the book processing department and more recently in cooperation with Miss Bertha Cain, assistant librarian.

The Newton Library department is the State's second largest.

Mr. Kunkel was born in Munich, Germany, in 1925. He came to New York in 1929 and resided in that city until 1945. He received his A.B. degree from Union College in 1950; his A.M. from Western Reserve University two years later, and Master's Degree in Library Science at the same University in the following year. While completing his studies he was employed as circulation assistant at the university library, but after receiving his degree became reference and periodicals librarian at Ohio State University.

In 1957 he became general assistant to the librarian at Harvard's Lamont Library, doing work in re-classification, reference and book circulation. Before coming to Newton Mr. Kunkel had assumed the responsibilities of assistant chief of circulation and stack at Harvard's Widener Library, where he was in direct supervision of 12 full-time employees, in addition to assisting in the formulation of technical policies and scheduling work.

Mr. Kunkel has shown proficiency and progressive thinking in every branch of library work, in the opinion of the Newton library trustees.

A screening committee consisting of E. Graham Bates of Auburndale and Mrs. George F. Brewer of Newton Highlands, made the necessary preliminary studies.

Mr. Kunkel is married, has a daughter and currently makes his home in Furlington.

Auburndale Woman Is Fined After Police Raid on Home

Mrs. Ursula Basinow of 1904 Washington street, Auburndale, was fined $500 and given a suspended jail sentence of six months when she was found guilty of vice charges brought before Judge Donald E. Mayberry in Newton District Court.

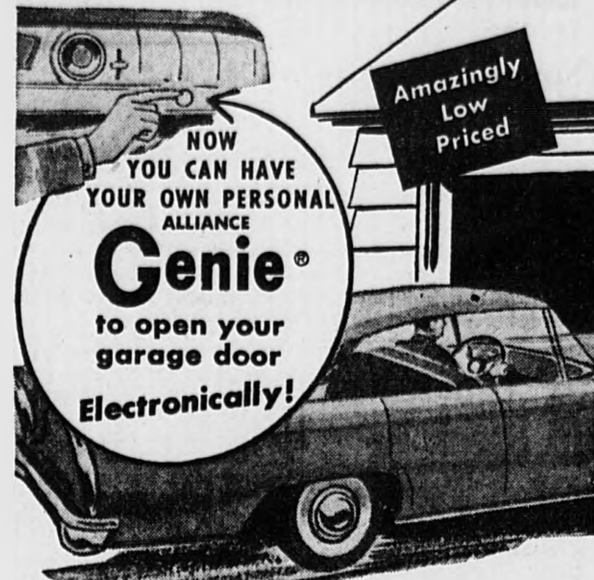

The charges stemmed from an investigation and raid carried on by State and Newton police. The investigating officers used a color moving picture camera to record the visits of men to the Washington street address, one of the city's better residential structures.

Mrs. Basinow admitted to a finding of guilty on a charge of maintaining a house of ill repute. On a second charge she was given a suspended sentence.

The movies which were taken by both the State and local police were not shown in court.

Savings help you bail out of difficulties

You never know when you'll have to jump out of trouble — illness, accidents, loss of income or loss of a job — which hit all of us sooner or later.

And that's when we're mighty glad we have something in Watertown Federal to take the jolt out of landing on hard ground.

It's wise to save for a home, a vacation, a trip or education, but it's also wise to save for safety — to put away a pile for you-don't-know-what.

Parents Return To Country Day School Classes

The second of two evenings of classes for parents of boys in the Upper School at Rivers Country Day will be held on Monday evening, October 20th.

When the schoolbell rings promptly at 8 p.m., mothers and fathers, whose sons are in Classes I through IV, will be seated at the school desks. Parents whose sons are in Classes V through VII attended a similar evening on October 6th, and those who have more than one boy in the Upper School will attend again on the 20th.

Joseph C. Skinner, West Newton, current president of the Parents' League, will attend with Mrs. Skinner. In order that all mothers will be on time for each class, the hospitality of the evening is in charge of Mrs. George H. Blackwell, wife of the headmaster.

She will be assisted in serving by faculty wives, among whom are Mrs. Otto A. Alcalde, Waban, and Mrs. Francis G. Collier, Newton Highlands. Mrs. Robert C. Appel, West Newton, a member of the school's secretarial staff, will also assist. At the end of the classes, which will be shortened into the schoolboy's dream of fifteen minutes each, Mr. Blackwell will address the parents in the study hall.

For the past five years these evenings in which the teachers outline their methods and objectives for the school year have met with great success.

dent of the board, who pointed out that the figure granted Mr. Dennard was in proportion to the sum paid by a school system which moved a former Newton school official to New York.

The legality of such an expenditure was questioned by Alderman Cannon, who wondered if state authorities would approve the $3,900 figure. He also was concerned about setting a precedent.

A move was made to table the School Committee request by Alderman Harry H. Ham, Jr., and seconded by Cannon, but this was amended to consideration by the Aldermen as a group. After lengthy deliberation behind closed doors it was voted to authorize the payment to Mr. Dennard.

In other actions the Board of Aldermen tabled a request for permission to replace an old gasoline station and restaurant at Commonwealth avenue and Washington street with a new gasoline station.

Ten petition which was twice considered by the Aldermen in August, concerns a request by William A. Conte to build a modern filling station on two tracts of land at the above location. Two structures which presently occupy the site have a non-conforming use variance in a Single Residence C district.

Saying that "no more gasoline stations are needed on Washington street," Finance Chairman Earl D. Wood commented that to grant permission would be an abuse of the extension of non-conforming use.

Alderman Cannon, speaking as chairman of the Committee on Claims and Rules, reported that residents of the area were in favor of the new station and that favorable consideration of the request would be "to the advantage of all those abutters."

There was a slight flareup after Alderman Cannon reported that the city solicitor had told the committee that non-conforming use applied to the lot where a station is now located and could also include the lot where the restaurant is located.

City Solicitor Jones was asked for his opinion and said that in his opinion granting the petition would not be a legitimate extension of non-conforming use. In his words, "I don't think it is an open and shut case."

After Cannon said that it was the first time he could recall, a committee report submitted by him being questioned, it was decided to continue to hold the gas station request for further consideration.

A group of abutters and residents of the area near the gas station site said they had a petition with more than 200 names opposed to the requested change, although no public hearing had been scheduled.

In a move to replace obsolete equipment which at present requires a great deal of manual work, the Board of Aldermen paved the way for two book-keeping machines worth $5,500 each to be purchased by the comptroller's department.

A generator for Civil Defense headquarters at the Rice School, Newton Centre, will be purchased for use when public power fails with $800 transferred from another account.

The Health Department will be able to winterize its three cars and a fourth belonging to Dr. Harry T. Phillips, head of the department, which he uses in the work of the department, with $400 transferred from another account.

A request by the Recreation Department for $100 so that

The Fire Department will receive $1,000 for an air recharger. Thirty to 40 of the department's tanks must now be filled at Neddham through the cooperation of that town's fire department or in Boston at $3 to $4 per tank. As many tanks are sometimes used at a fire, the piece of equipment was badly needed by the local firefighters.

A request for a generator to be built at Crafts street for Civil Defense was turned down for the present.

A reception from 8 to 9 will be followed by a program featuring Gibbons, Curtis, Celeste.

Mrs. David Schulman is chairman of tonight's program, and Norman E. Moore will act as master of ceremonies. James K. Fitzpatrick, Republican Club president, is in charge of arrangements, and Mrs. Edward C. Becherer will supervise the staff of hosts and hostesses for the affair.

Robert S. Jones heads the decorating committee, and Carleton Merrill is chairman of the "GOP Cavalcade of Candidates."

"This is the only opportunity interested citizens of Newton will have to meet the candidates and hear their views firsthand," said Merrill. "and we sincerely urge all the voters of this city to attend and hear the issues discussed."

A reception from 8 to 9 will be followed by a program featuring Gibbons, Curtis, Celeste. Elmer Nelson, candidate for lieutenant governor; Marion C. Boch, candidate for secretary of state; and Christian Herter, Jr. Also Thomas Adams, candidate for state auditor; John Yerxa, candidate for state treasurer; and Senator Donald Gibbs, Rep. Irene K. Thresher, Rep. Arthur Heaney, Rep. John Whittemore, and Rep. George Rawson, all of whom are seeking re-election.

and fourth quarter touchdowns by Pete Thompson, the Tigers continued their mastery over Rhode Island teams, when they took Cranston High School into camp as they got started on the win trail. Final score was 12-0.

In the game played at Dickinson Field, Thompson took a pitchout from Buddy Russo and scampered 29 yards down the sidelines for the first score early in the second period. After the Orange and Black recovered a poor Cranston punt on the Rhode Islanders' 26 and moved the ball to the 11, Thompson took another pitchout and went all the way.

Newton failed to score on either conversion attempt.

The Newton defense appeared much stronger than in the Everett game and the Tigers controlled the Rhody boys' offense pretty well. In the final period Cranston got as far as the N.H.S. seven-yard line but was obliged to surrender the ball there. That was the visitors' most serious scoring threat of the day.

Special Consideration For Gifted Teachers Is Asked

Pointing to the growth of optional selected study courses and secondary services such as guidance in the Newton public schools, the Newton Taxpayers' Association has called for salary recognition for the "better" teachers linked more closely to performance.

In its October bulletin, the Association also noted that City Hall last year adopted the group's long standing recommendations for more detailed accounting. The Association now suggests similar treatment for the school department's accounts.

Purposes are to obtain "better control, and a better basis on which the policy makers can make the critical intramural financial decisions," states the bulletin.

The local Taxpayers' Association asks that the report of the 1956 Committee to Study Merit Rating be adopted into this year's budget. According to the bulletin of the organization "essentially the idea is to give additional financial rewards to exceptional teachers; that is, beginning to apply the principle of selectivity with respect to teacher performance."

Continuing, the bulletin states, "without even considering salary policies linked to developments in teacher utilization, the proposal seems to us to be one which holds promise right now for those exceptional teachers one would like to encourage."

The Association feels that the attempt to provide more flexible individual treatment for students even in the face of great administrative problems arising from the expanding school population should also be attempted with respect to the teaching staff.

"What is sauce for the goose could be made to be sauce for the gander, to the advantage of both," the bulletin concludes.

Political Highlights

hand, are running hungry. They're the challengers who are out and are trying to get in.

Some of the Democratic apathy may have resulted from the fact that Democratic voters have been told repeatedly that most of their top party office-holders are virtually certain of achieving reelection. They've been sold the idea that there's nothing to get excited about. Consequently, they're not getting excited.

While the sudden and tragic death of the late Attorney General George Fingold caused a certain amount of chaos within the GOP, it also served to shock many Republicans out of any apathy they may have felt. That was reflected in the big sticker vote polled by former Speaker Charles Gibbons.

An up-to-the minute sizeup of the political picture in Massachusetts leaves a definite impression that certain of the major State-wide races may be closer than they appeared to be a few weeks ago. One reason for that belief is the slump in the voting lists in the Democratic centres.

U. S. Senator John F. Kennedy, for example, seems certain of reelection. But unless there is a great pick-up in public interest his margin of victory is not likely to assume the landslide proportions predicted two or three months ago.

Governor Furcolo is considered by most observers to be leading in his contest with ex-Speaker Gibbons. But he could be in for a much stiffer fight than is generally assumed, especially if the turnout of Democratic voters falls below expectations. Furcolo probably does not have the same reservoir of Republican and Independent support as Kennedy and he has a much more formidable opponent than Kennedy.

Attorney General Edward J. McCormack, Jr., of course, has the toughest battle of any member of the Democratic State ticket and is pitted against the strongest man on the Republican slate in Governor's Councilman Christian A. Herter, Jr.

One of the many things which may be hurting the Democratic party in a State such as Massachusetts is the stand by Arkansas Governor Faubus against the integration of Little Rock High School and the insistence by the Eisenhower administration that the school must be integrated in accordance with the Supreme Court decision.

It's possible that the Democratic candidates may be relying too heavily on the Democratic trend. All the indications are that a Democratic tide is flowing, that is at least as strong as it was in 1948 and perhaps much stronger.

Massachusetts, of course, is affected by a political trend. But different States can be affected in different degrees. A Democratic trend prevailed in 1954 of sufficient proportions to allow the Democrats to regain control of Congress and of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

But Massachusetts that year reelected a Republican Governor and a Republican U.S. Senator. And the danger signal for the Democrats in 1954 was provided by the fall-off in the voting lists in the centers where much of the party's voting strength was concentrated.

Republican Ticket Hampered By Lack of Campaign Funds

It is gradually becoming apparent that the Republican State ticket is being hampered by the lack of adequate campaign funds.

That, coupled with the tardy start of the GOP drive as a result of the illness and subsequent death of the late Attorney General George Fingold has placed the top Republican contenders at an obvious disadvantage.

Political observers generally were disposed to discount and brush off statements by GOP fund-raisers that the Republican party was up against it financially and to regard them mostly as a sales pitch and "come-on" to promote additional contributions.

Now, however, it seems clear that the GOP really is plagued by money troubles and is short of cash.

Otherwise there would be no plausible explanation for the fact that with the election less than a month away the Republican campaign has not been stepped up to a much swifter tempo.

Charles Gibbons, the GO nominee for Governor, is an astute and sound politician and a solid candidate who knows how to mount an effective election drive. Elmer C. Nelson, his running mate and the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor, is one of the shrewdest political strategists in Massachusetts.

That they haven't got their campaign moving in more spectacular fashion means that they have been unable to overcome the handicaps confronting them, not that they don't know what to do.

Most election fights are won or lost in the final three weeks so that there is still time for Gibbons to make a strong finishing surge in his race with Governor Furcolo.

Up to now, however, the Republican campaign has been rather flat and has lacked the fire and force which would normally be expected in a drive to unseat a sitting Democratic Governor.

Gibbons unquestionably benefitted from the State-wide publicity and newspaper headlines produced by the spectacular sticker-drive which made him the Republican gubernatorial nominee. He attracted greater attention than if he had been nominated at the GOP pre-primary convention last June.

But then he was confronted with the problem of raising money, organizing his campaign and doing the

Academic Honors For Local Girls

Miss Camille Baller, 9 Kirkwall Road, and Miss Linda Fay, 40 Bemis Street, both of Newtonville, received recognition for outstanding academic achievement at the convocation which began the 84th annual session of Wellesley College.

All students and faculty attended the opening assembly, at which were announced the names of new members of Phi Beta Kappa, and recipients of freshman honors. The latter award is made to members of the previous year's freshman class who had excellent academic records during their first year at Wellesley.

Miss Baller was elected to membership in Eta of Massachusetts Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. A senior and a zoology major, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin D. Baller.

Miss Fay, who received freshman honors at the convocation, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur C. Fay. She is a sophomore this year. Both students are graduates of Newton High School.

Thick barbecue sauces used for basting chicken during cooking, either indoors or out, should be diluted with water to a thin, watery consistency. Thick sauces tend to burn or hasten browning before the chicken is done.

things which normally would have been done back in July and August.

That has tended to slow down his drive and, in addition, the lack of sufficient money apparently has prevented him from moving his campaign into high gear.

A Governor in office under most circumstances has an easier time raising the funds to finance his campaign than does the candidate challenging him.

It would be logical to assume that the fact that a Republican President is sitting in the White House would cause some contributions to flow to the GOP candidate for Governor in a State such as Massachusetts. But it doesn't seem to be working out that way.

The cost of conducting a State-wide campaign for a high office such as the Governorship has jumped enormously in the past decade, one of the reasons being the increased use of television for electioneering purposes.

An ironical aspect is that fairly substantial evidence exists that some candidates have lost their fights on television by irritating and annoying their watchers and that they might have achieved election if they had appeared on TV less often.

The fact remains, however, that under present-day conditions hundreds of thousands of dollars are needed to finance an effective gubernatorial campaign in Massachusetts.

The trend of the Furcolo-Gibbons battle in the weeks Republican leaders have in persuading their party adjust ahead will depend to some degree on the success herents to dig down into their pockets for campaign contributions.

Should Governor Furcolo make any further attempt to bring the budget into balance, which is highly improbable at this stage of an election year, his move almost surely would keep the Legislature in session until after election day.

The mere fact that legislative leaders are even discussing the possibility of proroguing this weekend means that they intend to put off the problem of balancing the budget until early next year.

As far as veteran observers on Beacon Hill can recall, no Legislature in modern times has concluded its proceedings and prorogues for the year without balancing the State budget.

Prior to the administration of the late Governor Maurice J. Tobin the budget was balanced by the convenient expedient of assessing any deficit against the cities and towns. There is no prospect of that being done this year.

Early next year, however, the Governor and Legislature will have to agree on some course of action unless there are to be payless pay days at the State House.

As matters stand right now, the State has a deficit of slightly more than $23 million.

How much of an issue that will be in the closing stages of the gubernatorial campaign remains to be determined. Both Governor Furcolo and former Speaker Gibbons may make it one. It certainly is the major problem confronting the Legislature, but everything indicates that the law-makers are going home without solving it.

Newton Halloween Plan Now Is Pattern for Other Cities

One in every five residents of Newton will be participating in one way or another in the 1958 city-wide Halloween celebration, according to Recreation Commissioner C. Evan Johnson.

After 18 years the celebration hasn't palled. It has become bigger and better with the passing of each year and there is general agreement now that this year's celebration will be the finest ever.

Already the Newton observance has been adopted as a model by other cities and towns across the nation. However, Newton keeps on improving it each year.

Today it's the largest single civic enterprise in the city.

Sponsored by the Recreation Department, the celebrations are accorded widespread support from hundreds of individuals and organizations, including the school department, Parent-Teacher Associations and the Newton Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Emerson Sylvester, general chairman, believes that the hundreds of volunteer workers are the secret of the success of the parties. This year there'll be 40 parties and more than 16,000 children will participate in them.

One of the key workers, says Dr. Sylvester, is Mrs. Regina Hovgaard, who is serving again as program chairman this year.

At a recent organizational meeting, films of last year's activities were shown by City Clerk Monte G. Bashas, vice chairman of the Halloween committee. Many volunteers reported that these films would be extremely helpful in planning this year's programs.

Following the business meeting, the hospitality committee of Hyde Park PTA directed by Mrs. Charles Thompson served refreshments. The pourers were Mrs. Howard Whitmore, Jr., Mrs. Worthing L. West and Mrs. R. Emerson Sylvester.

Members of the Executive Committee include Dr. Sylvester, Clerk Bashas, Mayor Whitmore, Commissioner Johnson, Eric Dennard, Justin T. Horan, Mrs. West, Mrs. Hovgaard, N. P. Tedesco, James E. Murphy, Mrs. Genevieve Oncley, Charles E. Brown, Raymond F. Cook, Harold Howe II, Paul Scarborough, Donald K. Davidson, Ralph Morse, Miss Bettina King, Robert C. Jackson and Ray J. Lund.

Also, A. Raymond Rogers, Miss F. Eleanor Elliott, John E. Gilleland, Joseph M. Carrol, Irving J. Helman, Bishop Eric MacKenzie, Dr. Albert Gordon, the Rev. John M. Inspection Of All Vehicles Now Required

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Clement A. Riley today announced the second motor vehicle inspection for 1938 will take place during the month of October. The law requires every vehicle to be inspected, with an inspection sticker displayed on the windshield by Nov. 1.

The Registrar pointed out that there are more motor vehicles registered in Massachusetts than ever before and that inspection stations and personnel will be overworked during the latter part of the inspection period. He suggested early inspections be made to prevent delays later in the month.

Plan Reception For U.S. Senator And Mrs. Kennedy

A reception to U.S. Senator and Mrs. John F. Kennedy will be held at the Newton High School on Walnut street in Newtonville from 8 to 10 p.m. a week from Sunday night, Oct. 19.

Plans for the reception were announced today by Mrs. Betty Taymor of 44 Fairfax street, West Newton, and Mr. George F. Cahill of 74 Manet road, Chestnut Hill, co-secretaries of the Newton Kennedy Campaign Committee.

Mrs. Taymor and Mr. Cahill are in charge of the Senator's reelection campaign in the Newton area.

They issued a warm invitation to all Newton residents, Republicans and Independents as well as Democrats, to attend the reception a week from Sunday.

Mrs. Taymor is vice-chairman of the Democratic State Committee and in 1956 was co-chairman of the Newton Stevenson-Kefauver Committee.

Mr. Cahill, a lifelong resident of Newton and a graduate of Holy Cross College and Northeastern University Law School, is president of the Greater Boston Young Democrats. He was a candidate for the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1956.

Mr. Cahill, like Mrs. Taymor, has been extremely active in civic and benevolent affairs in the community.

The fall meeting of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs on Oct. 23 at Eliot Church and the Massachusetts State Federation fall meeting on Oct. 29 at Dean Academy, Franklin.

Superintendent To Speak To PTA

Eric N. Dennard, recently appointed Superintendent of Schools in Newton, will address the inaugural meeting of the newly formed Burr-Murray Road PTA this evening (Thursday) in the auditorium of the Burr School in Auburndale at 8. Mr. Dennard, who replaced former superintendent Dr. Harold Gores, will discuss how "Schools and the Community Share Responsibilities." The Auburndale group is among several local organizations who have taken the opportunity to meet and hear Mr. Dennard.

Carlton P. Smith, program chairman, said that the evening's program will be preceded by a benefit Food Sale, under the direction of Mrs. Charles Butler, wife of the former Auburndale PTA president.

Officers for the new divisional Burr and Murray Road association for the coming years are as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Mitchell, president; assisted by a pair of vice presidents from each of the two schools. Burr School will be represented by Mr. and Mrs. John E. Pierce and the Murray Road School by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stone. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Alsmeyer will perform the secretarial duties and the treasury will be managed by Mr. and Mrs. John Palen.

CURTIS WINS PRAISE — Congressman Laurence Curtis, center, was commended for his outstanding record in Congress by Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter, left, Curtis' predecessor as the Congressman from the 10th district. Mrs. Curtis at the right shares her husband's honors. Said Undersecretary of State Herter: "When I left Congress in 1952, I had every confidence that Laurence Curtis' experience and ability would enable him to render outstanding service as my successor in Congress from the 10th district. My confidence in him has been fully justified."

New PTA projects under consideration for the two schools are the teaching of French to all six grades and the establishment of a school library in each building. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Capon are chairmen of the Library Committee.

Fire Chief In Warning About Damaging Fires

Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr. today announced the Fire Department's cooperation with other civic groups in using simple precautionary methods to prevent many damaging fires as Fire Prevention Week is observed here. The Fire Chief discussing replacement costs, said that "even in small fires, where the firemen are able to confine the flames to one room, it costs property owners two to three times as much to refurbish the burned-out areas as it did ten years ago."

The Chief particularly emphasized the following points:

1. Great damage to our city is caused by rubbish fires. If we remove the rubbish from our cellars, attics and closets, fire losses will come down and many alarms will be eliminated.
2. Buildings classified as conflagration hazards should be protected by automatic sprinklers. Such installations will pay for themselves out of savings in insurance premiums and as a result our conflagration areas will be eliminated.
3. Basement fires are the hardest to fight. Firemen have difficulty fighting their way in and often do not know what the conditions will be when they reach the basement. Since a large percentage of all business fires originate in basements, if these also were protected by automatic sprinklers, our country's nearly one billion dollars in fire losses would be greatly reduced.

Cornell Grad At Ithaca Conference

Walter P. Phillips, 15, of 50 Hunt street, Newton, president of the Phillips Association, Inc., was among the 250 distinguished alumni of Cornell University who attended a two-day conference of the Cornell University Council on the Ithaca school's campus.

The Council provides leadership in the development of the human and material resources of the University and in continuing the interpretation of the University to the alumni and the general public.

The Chief particularly emphasized the large number of fires caused from carelessness in handling matches and smoking. "Matches should be kept where small children cannot reach them and a liberal supply of ash trays throughout the house would reduce fires," the Chief said. He particularly emphasized that, "If you value your life, do not smoke in bed!"

Library Board Honors Memory Of H. A. Wooster

Harold A. Wooster, was memorialized in a resolution passed at a meeting of the Board of trustees of the Newton Free Library.

The resolution read as follows: "On the death of Harold A. Wooster, the Newton Free Library and the profession lost a respected librarian and a good friend, and the City of Newton, a man devoted to his community, church, and the public interests.

"With a zest for living, a rare New England humor, a great love and appreciation of books, he was a leader in his profession for many years, and a friend to many young people.

"Mr. Wooster came to Newton in 1942 and gave unstintingly of his time and boundless energy to the Library and the community of Newton. It was in this period that the Main Library was enlarged, the Annie Corey Plummer Room was added to the Auburndale Branch, the remodeling of Highlands Branch was completed, the Nantum Branch built in 1957, and dedicated in 1958.

"The Board of Trustees desires to enter in the records of this meeting its appreciation of those qualities which made him an esteemed man, and one whose passing is a distinct loss to all."

His outline included a motion picture study of the Smith Homestead property at 1181 Centre street in its present state of disrepair, followed by an exciting artist's conception of its appearance as it is brought to life in its restoration. It will even include interior scenes of the library with the "America" author at work on his many literary projects.

Along with encouraging donations of money, original manuscripts and other materials, formerly the property of Samuel Francis Smith are already being offered for the restoration. One such proffered gift is a leather bound Bible to be donated by the Reverend Robert W. Woodroffe, Jr. of the Grace the men seem very lucky at getting meat prizes. Some women's clubs are organizing group attendance. Neighbors and friends are arranging baby sitters and car pools. Doors will open at 7 p.m. and the Cooking Party gets under way at 7:45 p.m. Each lady will receive a menu-program on which she can follow the progress of the cooking demonstration as the spectacular dishes are prepared by Boston Gas home economists. A special mirror on stage will permit all in the hall to see everything that takes place on stage.

At the close of the cooking and meat demonstrations, Jeanne Ambuter, who will act as Mistress of Ceremonies for the Newton Graphic will conduct the drawing of door prizes. All food cooked at the Cooking Party will be awarded. Some foods will be packed in hand-some Pyrex containers.

There will be many bags of groceries for lucky ladies, many individual food packages and gift certificates. Everyone who attends will receive free samples and money-saving coupons.

The major door prizes are very exciting this year. First, there is a modern Caloric Gas Range. This is the handsome and popular 36" model with spacious oven and waist high broiler. All four top burners are instant lighting and one of them is equipped with a modern Thermo-set control, the famous "burner with the brain" that turns itself up or down automatically to maintain the temperature you set. Foods will not burn because this thermo-statically controlled burner ends scorching, sticking and burning.

It automatically takes the guess work out of everyday cooking jobs like warming up leftovers, frying bacon and eggs. Even deep fat frying is easy, and the thermo-set burner makes your own pots and pans automatic.

Come yourself and bring your friends and neighbors. Remember the date, ladies. Wednesday, October 15 in Warren Jr. High School Auditorium, Newton. Doors open at 7 p.m. and Party starts at 7:45 p.m. Admission free and everyone is invited. This will be the Party of the Year!

One chicken sandwich, containing a quarter pound of meat, will supply more than one-half of the daily protein requirements of an adult man or woman.

Hints On Meat Offered By A&P Expert

This year, a major attraction at the Newton, Graphic-Boston Gas Cooking School will be the widely acclaimed A&P Super-Right Meat demonstration. The A&P experts will show homemakers how to identify the top grades of beef and how to select the more economical cuts.

The government inspection and grading systems will be explained and many valuable shopping hints will be given.

Various wholesale cuts will be reduced to the familiar retail size roasts, steaks and other specialties for home consumption.

At the close of the session, several meat prizes will be awarded by A&P. The appetizing array will include roasts, steaks, half-hams and poultry. Each prize will be neatly packaged and cellophane wrapped.

A&P's reputation for quality meats at low prices is widely acclaimed by thrifty housewives throughout New England and elsewhere in the United States. The company buys only the best grades of beef and insists that all its markets merchandise the product according to uniform standards.

The same policy applies to pork, poultry, prepared meats, lamb and cold cuts. A&P's experienced buyers select the best and buy in such large quantities that prices at a narrow profit margin are available to consumers.

The company also follows a strict practice of advertising and listing uniform prices for different meat items. A&P advertises boneless sirloin steak, for example, at one price and never has the same commodity at varying price levels.

A typically American family and the only one in television in which every member plays himself is Ozzy Nelson's. Hard-working Ozzy stars produce, directs and is chief writer of the show. Harriet not only runs her home but also stars in the TV series and besides supervising the wardrobe for the whole family, she finds time for interior decorating, cooking and knitting. David and Ricky have a love of athletics and sue business to match their dad's. The Nelsons are a happy family. We try to be likeable, too... by giving you TV service that is speedy, economical and thoroughly dependable. We feature GIP, RCA, SYLVANIA... BIG NAMES that stand for quality and outstanding performance.

"The Adventures of Ozzy and Harriet" made its radio debut in 1944 on the Nelson's ninth wedding anniversary. Today on TV, with material gathered from the staff of itself, watching the likeable Nelsons is quite often like participating in the happy activities of our own families. We try to be likeable, too... by giving you TV service that is speedy, economical and thoroughly dependable. We feature GIP, RCA, SYLVANIA... Newton League of Women Voters: Non-Partisan Facts on Political Candidates

To acquaint Newton voters with the candidates standing for election to Congress, the State Senate, the Governor's Council, the Massachusetts House of Representatives and various county offices, The Graphic this week is publishing material which has been assembled in an objective and unbiased manner by the Newton League of Women Voters.

The purpose of the League of Women Voters in gathering this information and of The Graphic in devoting several columns of news space to print it is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government.

The League is a non-partisan organization. It prepared and distributed questionnaires to the candidates for the offices listed and then compiled the answers which are printed below.

To the voters of Newton the League issues a reminder that even though the city is technically divided into 8 wards and 33 precincts for municipal elections, the voting in the coming election is on the basis of the old arrangement of 7 wards and 30 precincts.

In addition to the data printed in this issue of The Graphic, the League also has compiled information on the candidates for Statewide Information. It may be obtained from Mrs. Lester Radio, chairman of the Voters' Service Committee of the Newton League of Women Voters.

Following is the information on the other candidates whose names will appear on the ballot in Newton:

U. S. Congress (10th District)
LAURENCE CURTIS BOSTON (Republican)
Education: Harvard A.B. 1918; LL.B. 1921. Age 64.
Occupation: Lawyer and Politician.

What particular training and experience have you had that would qualify you for this office? Boston City Councillor, State Legislature, both branches. State Treasurer, Congressman, 6 years.

Please indicate the aspects of U. S. foreign policy with which you are most in agreement; those of which you are most critical: As a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee in Congress, I have supported President Eisenhower's foreign policies, including mutual aid security. I believe that the United Nations should be supported and strengthened as the best means of finally attaining the rule of law among nations. The free world must stand together to meet present threats, and emphasis must be placed on economic, political and moral military rather than too greatly on military pacts. The free world must take all possible steps to show uncommitted and impoverished peoples that they can raise their standards of living in the ways of freedom rather than of tyranny.

In what domestic legislation are you especially interested? Please state your support or opposition: I have supported the President's major policies—trade, housing, education, labor and immigration. I favor further civil rights legislation, upholding the integrity of the Supreme Court; maintenance and strengthening of social security legislation, curbs on excessive spending, especially excessive farm subsidies, that federal grants-in-aid must be fair to Massachusetts, that inflation and further devaluation of the dollar be resolutely fought and present oppressive taxes reduced at the first sound opportunity.

JOHN L. SALTSTADL
Brookline (Democrat)
Education: Groton School; Phillips Exeter Academy; Harvard College (1938); Yale Law School (1941). Age 42.
Occupation: Lawyer.

What particular training and experience have you had that would qualify you for this office? Five years in Federal Government, largely in Washington. As Associate General Counsel of Army worked closely with Congressional committees. Extensive participation in work of private organizations concerned with national and international issues. Professional specialization in Federal problems.

Please indicate the aspects of U. S. foreign policy with which you are most in agreement; those of which you are most critical: Approve atoms for peace; multilateral disarmament; extending reciprocal trade; increased foreign economic aid. Oppose propping up colonial and dictatorial regimes; favor self-determination of peoples everywhere. Oppose foreign policy improvisation and "brinkmanship". Advocate enlarging, not undercutting, authority of U.N. and admitting all bona fide nations to membership. Favor cutting foreign military aid, placing arms embargo on Middle East, and underwriting safety of genuinely democratic nations like India and Israel.

In what domestic legislation are you especially interested? Please state your support or opposition: Favor Douglas bill to extend civil rights; Kennedy-McCarthy bill to increase unemployment compensation; civilian space agency; substantially increased appropriations for national defense, both active and passive; federal aid to education and housing; increased Social Security taxes, coverage and benefits; improved conservation of natural resources; increased urban redevelopment and public works; plugging loopholes in internal revenue code. Oppose: Restricting jurisdiction of Supreme Court or reducing taxes at this time except as temporary recession measure.

State Senators and Representatives were asked the following questions:

1. Massachusetts has not called a constitutional convention since 1917. Is it important to have one now, and what changes would it be important to make?
2. If Massachusetts needs more revenue, from what sources do you think it should come?
3. What recommendations do you make for improving Metropolitan Boston transportation problems?
4. What in your background and experience qualifies you for the office you seek?

Experience, seniority and legislative "know how" attained in sixteen years service in the House of Representatives. A business man's approach to legislative problems. Former chairman of both of my committees, Election Laws and Public Safety; author of many important statutes in both fields. When on a weight-losing diet, nutrition experts tell us that we must be careful not to cut down on needed nutritional elements when we're cutting down on calories. It is still essential to maintain a balanced diet. The secret is, of course, in selecting versatile foods which are high in nutrients and low in calories. And of all foods, chicken rates about tops by this definition.

Aid to Bombed School from Local Couple

Harold R. Isaacs of 92 Varick road, Waban, former associate editor of Newsweek Magazine and research associate for the past five years at the Center for International Studies at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, focused the outrageous attentions of many Americans on the school bomb outrage at Clinton, Tenn.

With Mrs. Isaacs he not only sent a contribution to help rebuild the bombed school but wrote to 40 friends in various parts of the country urging them to do likewise and to write to other friends.

The Clinton school was demolished after steps had been taken for the integration of 11 Negro students with 850 white students.

Newton's Political Front Humming With Activity

Alert Action By Postal Clerk Aids Suspect's Arrest

Paul Emerald Evans, 49, claiming residence in a Brockton hotel, was held in bail totaling $20,000 in Newton District Court, after an alert postal clerk had brought about his capture following an alleged attempt to burglarize the safe in the Chestnut Hill postoffice.

James Foley, 50, 283 Summit avenue, Brookline, the clerk, was just coming to work at the post-office for his 11 p.m. shift. He told police that he spotted two men in the shadows within the darkened office.

"Don't move," barked one of the men as he stepped toward the pair. Foley risked the chance that the command would be made authoritative by a bullet. He slipped quickly out of the postoffice and ran into the home of Mrs. Bertan Yaffee at 533 Hammond street, Brookline, to call police.

Both Brookline and Newton police arrived at the scene within seconds — so quickly, in fact, that only one of the pair inside was able to get out.

Herter Campaign Arousing Widespread Local Interest

Newton's political front was beginning to hum with activity this week as the candidates for State, national and county offices stepped up their drives for the election now less than three weeks away.

Office-seekers, their supporters and leaders in both parties were planning a series of rallies, receptions, house parties and meetings, with prospects for plenty of excitement as the embattled contenders come down the home stretch of their races.

Public interest in the campaigning was heightened by the fact that two Newton residents are on the rival State tickets.

Governor's Councillor Christian A. Herter, Jr., of Newton, battling for election as the next Attorney General, is widely regarded as the strongest vote-getter on the Republican slate.

Governor Foster Furcolo, the State Senate, the House of Representatives and other State and county offices, also were helping to build public interest and enthusiasm.

A big reception for U. S. Senator and Mrs. John F. Kennedy will be held at the Newton High School next Sunday night, and elaborate arrangements for the event are being made under the direction of Mrs. Betty Taylor and George F. Cahill, co-

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

BY JAMES G. COLBERT

An Air of Uncertainty Hangs Over State's Political Scene

A great air of uncertainty hangs over the Massachusetts political scene as the candidates for major public offices swing into the crucial stretch of their race to election day.

Governor Foster Furcolo is believed by the political experts to be leading former Speaker Charles Gibbons—perhaps substantially—as they move into the last three weeks of their fight to determine which of the two will be the next Governor.

U.S. Senator John F. Kennedy is rated as an overwhelming favorite to gain reelection to a second term over Attorney Vincent J. Celeste of East Boston.

Governor's Councillor Christian A. Herter, Jr., is the only member of the Republican State ticket considered to have a good chance of emerging a victor from the Nov. 4 election, and Herter has a formidable adversary in Attorney General Edward J. McCormack, Jr.

Yet, there are factors, which could influence the outcome of this election, which are puzzling the political pundits, and there are apparent developments which don't fit together into any clear pattern. Some, in fact, run counter to others, or at least appear to do so.

Governor Furcolo seems to be quite stronger than he was two months ago, Senator Kennedy not quite as strong as he appeared to be in mid-summer.

That would be surprising, if it is a correct analysis, because of the two Kennedy has much the easier fight, and he should be the one gaining ground, not Furcolo.

Political observers are uncertain what impact the Democratic trend will have in Massachusetts.

They know that a Democratic tide apparently is running. That has been made plain by the tests of voting sentiment in Maine and elsewhere in the nation. They know, too, that political tides usually don't stop at State borders.

Yet, there is some evidence of apathy on the part of Democratic voters. The voting lists in the Democratic

Mayor Gives Ruling On Burning of Leaves Here

Mayor Howard Whitmore, Jr., announced today that the burning of leaves is strictly forbidden on 79 Newton streets which have been resurfaced during the past year.

The Mayor emphasized that leaves may not be burned anywhere in the city without first obtaining a permit from the fire department, and he said that no permits will be issued for streets on which new surfaces are installed.

Persons who desire to get rid of their leaves were informed by the Mayor that large burlap bags costing 15 cents will be on sale starting Saturday at the various fire stations throughout the city.

Householders were urged to purchase one or more of the bags, to fill the bags with the fallen leaves and then put the bags out with their trash barrels for the rubbish collectors to empty.

Mayor Whitmore also called attention to a city ordinance which forbids the sweeping of any kind of litter, including leaves, into the roadway.

He appealed to residents to cooperate in keeping their city in a neat and tidy condition and urged them to make the proper arrangements for disposing of

Pope Pius 1936 Visitor Here; Guest of Cardinal Spellman

Pope Pius XII, then Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Papal Secretary of State, was a visitor to Newton 22 years ago this month.

He remained here for two days, celebrating masses on each day at the Sacred Heart Church. Highlight of his visit was at Boston College where he was tendered a reception attended by 1400 B. While he was in Newton, the Pope-to-be was the house guest of Cardinal Spellman, auxiliary bishop of Boston.

Sacred Heart Church was crowded by more than 1000 parishioners for a first communion mass attended by Cardinal Pacelli. He led the congregation in prayers for Pope Pius XI whom he was to succeed as Pope.

The visit also included a trip to the home of Cardinal O'Connell and St. John's Seminary in Brighton.

Suspect's Arrest-

Nally and Brookline officers J. J. Tona, Jr., and Joseph Green found Evans on the ground floor. "I give up, don't shoot," he pleaded as the rays of the officers' flashlights were directed upon him. His hands were in the air. He wore gray gloves. At his feet was a sturdy steel pinch bar.

Search of the rest of the post-office failed to disclose his partner's whereabouts. A search of the entire area outside was also unproductive and Evans insisted to police he had been alone. However, Clerk Foley was certain two men were in the office when he arrived.

Evans said he had hitchhiked a ride from route 128 to a point near the postoffice. He said that after some difficulty he had found an unlocked window and gained entrance. He said that when Foley came in he heard someone shout, "Don't move."

He said he was trying to chisel a door open when Officer Nally corralled him.

Near the safe police found a second steel pinch bar and sledge hammer.

Two charges of breaking and entering were lodged against him and two of possession of burglary tools. Bail of $5000, double surety, was fixed on each charge.

A hearing on the charges is scheduled for tomorrow (Friday) in District Court.

Herter Challenges McCormack On 1956 Attacks on Fingold

Governor's Counsellor Christian A. Herter, Jr., declared today that by his own actions Attorney General Edward J. McCormack, Jr., has repudiated the attacks he made two years ago upon the late Attorney General George Fingold.

"In the 1956 campaign," Herter said, "Mr. McCormack directed a series of violent and vitriolic attacks upon the late, beloved George Fingold."

"It is not my purpose to quote those attacks which were made upon the character and ability of George Fingold and the quality of service he provided as Attorney General of the Commonwealth. But I am certain that many voters throughout Massachusetts will remember them and will agree with me that they were completely unwarranted."

"Now, ironically Mr. McCormack by his own statements and his own actions has, in effect, repudiated what he did and said just two years ago," Herter asserted.

"He assailed the late George Fingold and the members of his staff in vicious terms, yet he has introduced no innovations whatsoever since his election as Interim Attorney General by the Legislature. He has retained those Assistant Attorneys General who were willing to continue in their jobs—the men whom he had attacked in the 1956 campaign," Herter continued.

"I consider that it is fortunate, indeed for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts that these men and women consented to complete their unfinished work, but I wonder how Mr. McCormack can possibly reconcile his allegations of two years ago with his present statements."

"It seems to me that Mr. McCormack should tell the people of Massachusetts whether he meant what he said in the 1956 campaign or what he said in this campaign. It further appears, that Mr. McCormack owes a public apology to everyone who was associated with the late George Fingold."

Mr. Herter went on to say that if he is elected the State's next Attorney General he will give the people of Massachusetts "the same kind of incorruptible administration as did the late George Fingold."

In outlining his qualifications for the office of Attorney General, Herter in speeches this week cited his record as a member of the House of Representatives and the Governor's Council and as general counsel for the Foreign Operations Administration.

U. S. Senator Leverett Saltonstall and Congressman William H. Bates are among those who have issued statements asserting that Herter did an outstanding job during the two years that he served as general counsel for the Foreign Operations Administration.

They said that he attracted widespread respect in Washington for the manner in which he handled difficult and intricate Problems which confronted him while he was serving as general counsel for that important agency.

Meanwhile, members of several veteran organizations who are campaigning for Herter pointed out that he had an outstanding record during World War II.

Herter served overseas with the 14th armored division, was wounded in action and received several decorations for bravery. He enlisted in the army as a private and held the rank of major at the time he concluded his military service.

Mrs. Charles Brown were guests at a tea given by the Horace Mann PTA in honor of the teachers. The event was held in Centra, Congregational Church, Newtonville, with Mrs. John Sexton as chairman.

Powers were Mrs. John Canha, PTA president; Mrs. Edward Callanan, Jr., vice president, and Mrs. Robert Frost, past president. Guests of honor also included Principal and Mrs. Kenneth J. LaFlamme and School Committee members, Mrs. Genevieve Oncley and Mrs. Grace Whitmore.

True Man of Peace

To the throne of St. Peter, Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli brought a deep love of God and of his fellow man.

And with that love he knew a humble devotion and willingness to serve that made him a figure unique in a world turned to violence. . . a world gripped in the senseless ambitions of men who knew neither love nor humility.

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli assumed the Papal Chair just as the world was becoming bathed in the fierce fires of the greatest war ever visited upon it.

He chose as a motto for his reign—"Opus Justitiae Pax . . . The Work of Justice Is Peace."

As the flames of war rose higher; as the passion of men spread the flames to every corner of the world; as thousands died in Nazi-built furnaces and American soldiers tramped in marches to which only death brought an end . . . his voice remained calm, his counsel unwavering.

"Opus Justitiae Pax."

Measured by the pitifully limited standards of frail man, Pope Pius XII's reign was a failure.

For when Hitler was no more and the Japanese war lords had reached the end of their power to create horror . . . there was no peace.

Representatives of exhausted peoples signed papers. Peace treaties they were called. Yet, even as the ink dried on the parchments new threats; new scourges were threatened; new and mightier weapons were planned.

World War II left the world smaller. Distant capitals once separated by tortuous miles; by high mountains and capricious seas were now within hours of each other.

In the laboratories of science men sat down to outdo each other in compounding bombs which would wipe out whole peoples and rend to poisonous dust the most mighty of their cities.

The man who sat on St. Peter's Throne knew once again the living words that were the symbol of his pontificate—"The Work of Justice Is Peace."

History will evaluate the work of Pius XII.

History will tell how maddened men rejected his pleas to stop and meditate the truths of his injunction that all men were children of a Common Father.

History will tell of his post-war pleas pointing the Supreme Laws of God to men who plotted new wars and new slaveries.

And history will one day emphasize the truths he expressed in the simple words of a true man of peace and justice.

Pope Pius XII was not a failure. While he lived, the maddened men of the world rejected his voice. Yet, they, too, knew and go on knowing the truth of his simple admonition "The Work of Justice Is Peace."

By his work, his prayers and his example, Pius XII offered the world the only true formula for human salvation.

His life and his pontificate will not be in vain if peoples everywhere, regardless of religious convictions, shall one day follow his injunction with true devotion to their Maker and honest love of their fellow man.

In his prayers Pius XII pleaded with Francis Assisi—"Lord, make me an instrument of Your Peace."

His prayers were answered.

He was a true man of peace. When a world bent on destruction pauses in its flight to moral oblivion; the complete effacement of its acknowledgement of its Maker, and of neighborly love—his words will still live.

Pope Pius XII was one of the truly great men of a century into which far too much evil has flowed.

Political Highlights

cities have dropped off much more sharply than in the Republican towns.

And there is the knowledge, too, based on cold facts and figures that in Massachusetts the Democrats usually make their strongest show in the Presidential years, while the Republicans have fared best in the State elections when no President was being chosen.

Up until now, at least, former Speaker Gibbons has been handicapped by the lack of sufficient funds to finance the kind of campaign he should be waging.

Political reporters who have travelled across the State have reported back the impression that Gibbons is not as well known as a gubernatorial candidate should be.

That, too, is surprising. Gibbons served in the House of Representatives for 14 years. He was the Republican leader of the body for six years, the Speaker for two years. He was the GOP nominee for Lieutenant Governor two years ago. He was chairman of the Republican State Committee for a year. The big sticker vote he polled in the September primary was given tremendous publicity. Gibbons should be as well known as was Governor Furcolo when he ran for the Governorship in 1956.

But seasoned political reporters, who go out to ascertain how the election straws in the wind are blowing, have learned by hard experience to assess what they find, not what they think they should find.

The most puzzling factor of all to appraise in an election campaign such as this is the number of people who are voting AGAINST candidates—the men and women who make up the so-called anti-vote.

They are usually the most difficult people to shift or change in an election campaign. Often they hold their counsel and do little talking about their intentions. But they can have an explosive impact on an election.

Those are all factors—some working counter to each other—which are puzzling the political experts as they try to gauge the trend of this campaign and put together the pieces which should make up the election pattern. The trouble is some of the pieces don't fit.

Withholding Bill Seen Issue In Final Stages of Campaign

Governor Furcolo apparently intends to hitch part of the closing portion of his campaign for reelection to an all-out attack upon the Republican-controlled State Senate and especially its failure to enact a State income withholding tax.

Whether that is sound strategy depends on how the wage-earners of the Commonwealth feel about the idea of paying their State income taxes under a withholding plan.

There actually is no way of determining where the weight of public opinion rests on the question or even if it is an issue which has made a real impact upon the people.

Some persons would prefer to have their State income taxes deducted in weekly installments rather than be forced to pay it in a lump sum on April 15 each year. Others feel that the Governor's plan would be a nuisance and would take another little bite out of their pay envelopes.

A vast number don't care one way or another because they don't earn enough money to be required to pay a State income tax.

Governor Furcolo probably has no alternative but to open fire on the Senate for rejecting his withholding measure on three different occasions because it is his only defense and explanation for allowing the Legislature to prorogue without balancing the budget.

The Governor undoubtedly will argue that the passage of his measure would have enabled the State to snare thousands of tax dodgers who are now evading their lawful obligations.

Former Speaker Gibbons, if he meets Governor Furcolo on the issue, as he unquestionably will be obliged to do, presumably will accuse Furcolo of seeking to use the withholding tax plan as a device to eliminate the need for enacting any new taxes in the election year.

As in almost any dispute of this kind, there is some merit on each side. One weakness of Furcolo's standpoint is that he didn't muster solid Democratic support in the Senate. However he did get the withholding bill through the Democratic House of Representatives, and a large majority of the Democratic Senators also voted for it.

Senator Donald L. Gibbs of Newton, who represents a fairly close senatorial district, is one office-holder who declares from hard experience that the bulk of public sentiment is against the withholding system.

Gibbs was one of the sponsors of the withholding measure which was defeated in 1957. He asserts, however, that he encountered so much opposition to the plan from his constituents that he shifted and voted against the Governor's bill this year in order to reflect the views of the people he serves on Beacon Hill.

With the prorogation of the Legislature, the debate over the State financial picture, to which the withholding tax is closely tied, probably will assume tones of rancor and bitterness as each side blames the other for the situation which exists.

Celeste a Political David Matched Against a Goliath

Fiery, flamboyant Vincent J. Celeste isn't likely to defeat U.S. Senator John F. Kennedy in the coming election, but everything indicates that Celeste will get a lot more votes and make it a much closer race than anyone would have believed possible two or three months ago.

Of all the candidates on the two major State tickets, Celeste has the slimmest chance of winning election. He's a political David challenging a mighty Goliath, and in the cold, hard business of politics the little David's don't win many elections.

But of all the candidates on the two slates Celeste is the most rugged, two-fisted fighter. He's overshadowed even as robust a political battler as Elmer C. Nelson, the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor, who is very deft at parting an opponents hair with a political hatchet.

Celeste obviously is not in the least awed by the fact that his opponent not only is heavily favored to win reelection but may well be the next President of the United States.

The hard-hitting lawyer from East Boston, who was the surprise choice of the Republican State convention last June, has been raking Kennedy with searing blast after blast.

A victory for Celeste would be the political upset of

Around The World Theme Of Church Fair In November

The women of the First Church, Congregational, in Newton Center, are planning a colorful Around The World Fair to be held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday, November 19th from 8:30 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

Tea will be served in the Boynton Room, which will be decorated like a Japanese Garden. The Fair will close with a dinner on shipboard returning to the United States in sight of the Statue of Liberty.

The first meeting for the 1958-59 school year of the Parent-Teacher Association of Clafin School, Newton, will take place next Monday evening, at 8 p.m. in the school's auditorium, 465 Lowell Avenue, Newtonville.

Organized around the theme "This Is Clafin School," the meeting, according to the executive board of the P.T.A., will be a reception and "open house" to introduce to the members of the association the newly appointed principal of the school, the new teachers, and parents of children attending the school for the first time this year.

The principal, Donald T. Welch, was named to head the school following the resignation last June of Dr. Harry V. Anderson. Brown, Helping Teacher.

Arrangements have been made for classrooms at Clafin School to remain open a half hour before the meeting begins so that interested parents may visit them. "Room mothers" will be on duty during this period in each classroom to collect annual P.T.A. dues.

Answers John Saltonstall

It was with more than usual interest that I read the remarks made by John L. Saltonstall as reported in the Graphic of Oct. 9th. During election campaigns there is of course sometimes an excess of partisan politics. Yet, we do draw a line at how much fiction and rhetoric a voter will swallow.

If the Democratic nominee for Congress chooses to rehash the distortions provided by Democratic machine's propaganda mill, he does so at the peril to his own word and reputation. Day to day events in themselves reveal the truth and offer convincing evidence that, now more than ever, the United States offers an effective challenge to Communist expansionism.

Indeed, it is United States might built up to its present great deterrent strength by the current administration that prevents the outbreak of hostilities. The administration has given ample demonstration of this power and its timely application in Lebanon, and more recently in the Far East.

The Democratic nominee offers a comparison of defense expenditures under this administration and under Truman in the last year of his term. He conveniently forgets to mention that under Truman we were then involved in the Korean War from which we were extricated by President Eisenhower.

A singular lapse of memory occurs when the Democratic nominee omits all reference to the fact that just last year, a Democratic Congress ignored the President's warnings and slashed his Defense budget. It comes with ill grace for any Democratic candidate to accuse this administration of reducing defense expenditures.

Another lapse of memory to conveniently overlook the Eisenhower Administration's accomplishments in reorganizing the Defense Department despite seemingly overwhelming partisan opposition. The President prevailed because of his sound judgment and determination to strengthen our defenses.

The record is very clear; no amount of rhetoric can cloud the facts.

Congressman Curtis Blasts Defiance of Supreme Court

Congressman Laurence Curtis declared this week that the United States faces anarchy unless the orders of the Supreme Court on school desegregation are carried out in the deep South.

The Congressman, who is standing for reelection to a fourth term, made that statement in addresses at meetings where he discussed the major present-day problems confronting the national government.

Curtis also emphasized the serious propaganda effect news stories on events such as occurred in Little Rock have in countries in distant parts of the world.

"Southern obstruction to the abolition of segregation in the public schools and such disgraceful events as took place in Little Rock are fully reported in countries in Asia and Africa and arouse intense interest and emotional feelings," Curtis told his listeners.

"They create prejudice against America and are harmful to our foreign relations," Curtis asserted. "There was evidence of this before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs on which I served."

"The law of the land as declared by the Supreme Court must be enforced," Congressman Curtis emphasized. "If Federal Court decrees can be disregarded or evaded, we face anarchy."

"The integrity and jurisdiction of the Supreme Court must be upheld," he said.

Congressman Curtis himself at one time served as secretary to the late Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Congressman Curtis also discussed the situation in the Far East and declared that he differed with his Democratic opponent on the question of recognizing Red China.

He expressed the belief that the policy of firmness at Quoy is paying off, adding that firmness is the only language the Soviet leaders understand.

Although Curtis is being opposed by Attorney John L. Saltonstall, Jr., another Saltonstall—U. S. Senator Leverett Saltonstall—reiterated his endorsement of Congressman Curtis and urged his reelection.

Senator Saltonstall voiced the opinion that the people of the 10th congressional district and of Massachusetts will need Laurence Curtis in Congress for the next two years.

"His integrity, intelligence and capacity for public service, coupled with his experience in both the State government and Congress, make his continued service in Congress of value to every citizen of the 10th district and throughout the Commonwealth," was the way Senator Saltonstall put it urging the reelection of Congressman Curtis.

The senior Massachusetts Senator pointed out that Curtis had "a distinguished war record of active service, during which he was seriously injured" and added that Curtis, a former State commander of the Disabled American Veterans, "has a full and sensitive understanding of the problems of our veterans."

Congressman Curtis in one of his straight-from-the-shoulder speeches told a local gathering that the people of the United States can expect no real progress on civil rights as long as Democratic Senator Eastland of Mississippi is chairman of the Senate Judiciary committee.

Curtis said further that it will be virtually impossible to obtain a fair and just immigration law while Democratic Congressman Francis Walter of Pennsylvania is chairman of the House subcommittee on immigration.

He explained that as matters now stand Southern opponents of both civil rights and a just immigration law control both committees.

Curtis reviewed his record of service to the 10th congressional district during the past six years and declared that the experience he has gained should enable him to be of even greater value to his constituents during the two years ahead.

"In Congress there is no substitute for experience," Curtis said succinctly.

Newton Children Are Consecrated

Sixty-six students of the kindergarten and first grade classes of the Sunday School of Temple Emanuel, Newton, were consecrated in a special ceremony on Simchat Torah morning by Rabbi Albert I. Gordon. The children received miniature scrolls of the Torah as mementos of the occasion.

The students of the Heh Gimel class delivered brief talks on the significance of the Sukkoth and Simchat Torah festivals. They included Beverly Cogan, Dana Freedman, Nancy Postar, Judith Cohen and Jody Rosenberg.

Participating in the celebration also were students of the Aleph classes of the Hebrew School Department, to whom this ceremony was a preview of their own consecration service scheduled during the Chanukah season.

Preceding the consecration service, all children entered the temple in a colorful procession, each carrying an attractively decorated basket of fruits which was deposited on a triple tier in front of the pulpit. These Sukkoth offerings were later sent to the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children.

Newton High Show Started Local Boy on Stage Career

From the stage of the Newton High School auditorium to a name-in-the lights spot on Broadway—it's a long jump.

Something like pole-vaulting from a high school diadem to an all-star rating with a major league team—it's almost never done these days.

Bob Morse did it. With elan, too. If you're doing New York in the near future and pass the Anta Theatre where "Say, Darling" is playing, you'll see the Mazdas spelling out his name.

And if you can get yourself some tickets, you can see a masterful performance by a young actor who figures to improve as the years go by—a young actor whose star is becoming bigger all the time.

Come to think of it, though, that's the way it should be. Bob has been dealing in success in his chosen field ever since Henry Lasker and Wesley Merritt, instructors in the music department at Newton High School, decided he was a natural.

They chose him to direct and sing "Barnaby Rudge" when they needed that piece for student production just a few years back.

Faculty members at N.H.S. recall that student show as one of the finest they've ever seen by a group of high schoolers.

Bob Morse is the youngest son of Charles and May Silver Morse. He was born on May 18, 1931, while his family lived on Cotton street, Newton Centre. When he was 5 the Morses moved to 75 Hammond street and where he had achieved the age of 15 they were residents of Waban.

Before Messrs. Lasker and Merritt tabbed him for "Sing Out, Sweet Land," Bob was able to give his family and friends an idea of the talents he possessed. He could do imitations. He could sing.

However, it wasn't until after his appearance in "Sing Out, Sweet Land," that he began to think seriously of an acting career.

While he was still in high school he got a job with the Peterborough Players. Later he went to New York and worked with the Children's World Theatre, delighting small fry in "The Pied Piper."

He had that role for four months when the navy called him. He became a sonar man in the anti-submarine service and forwent his stint in January, 1955.

He recognized that starring in The Children's World Theatre was only a bottom rung on the ladder to stage success. He doffed his naval blues for the whites of a counter-terman in a "quickie" eating place almost next door to the American Theatre Wing.

His income as a counter-terman wasn't calculated to make him wealthy, but it provided enough ready cash to pay his tuition at the Theatre Wing. During that period a few stand-in jobs with TV shows added a bit to his meagre income.

One day an agent happened to be idling back stage when Bob was doing a bit of clowning while awaiting the rehearsal of the TV show, "Name That Tune." Bob tossed in a bit of clowning with his clowning.

The agent saw possibilities. He arranged an audition for the Newton boy with Director George Seaton. Seaton liked what he saw and signed Bob for a bit role in "The Proud and the Profane."

"I've always had good fortune in getting jobs," Morse recalled recently.

"I called on Dr. Tyrone Guthrie when 'The Matchmaker' was being cast. He looked at me once and then said, 'This is my boy.' I played the part in New York and on tour for two years. Producer Don Hartman saw me in the role at the Huntington Hartford Theatre in Hollywood and signed me up immediately for the film version. I am the only member of the original New York cast to appear in the motion picture."

Bob's parents now live in Florida, where his sister, Barbara teaches school. Bob himself shares a New York apartment with his brother, Richard, who has appeared in several TV shows and recently completed a film in France.

Tigers Face Watertown In Big Centenary Homecoming

Before the most critical jury any Tiger team has been called upon to demonstrate a case, the Newton High School football eleven will attempt to get back on the winning trail Saturday afternoon in a game with neighboring Watertown.

Seated in the stands at Dickinson Field will be a homecoming crowd—that's more than just a homecoming crowd. It will be the first outdoor observance of the 100th anniversary program of the founding of Newton High School.

The jury will consist not alone of the undergraduates of the present generation of Newton High. Invited guests will include the captains of previous Tiger teams—scintillating backs and star linemen of other years, for whom defeat was a word in somebody else's dictionary.

It's no secret that the present Tiger squad expected to come down to this Centenary game with a clean record. The boys expected to trot out on the floor of Dickinson Field a nice winning streak in being. They won't.

The Tigers stand 1-2 for the season thus far, and their only win was against an out-of-state team, not one of the traditional rivals the other captains loved to toss around on an Autumn afternoon.

Against the sole win acquired over Cranston, R.I. High, the Tigers must confess a couple of surprising defeats. One of them was the close but stunner, the second came last Saturday against a powerful Brockton team that has all the trademarks of one of the best Hemorrhoid Shoe City teams of the somewhat distant past. Watertown had also looked forward to this homecoming game with some gusto before the season opened. It's no secret that the lads from the shades of the Arsenal felt they could hog-tie their tough neighbor this year.

Over in Watertown square they had been saying all summer long—"This team is going to be loaded this fall, wait and see." The Watertown eleven started out as though it was going to live up to the promise, too.

It raced through its first two games with ease. Then as N. H. S. was getting the shock treatment from Brockton High to the tune of 28-8 last Saturday, Watertown was being subjected to a surprising 20-6 upset at the hands of Cambridge Latin over in Cambridge.

Accordingly, the battle on Saturday afternoon looms up as an even better attraction than it would be if both teams were carrying unbeaten slates into the contest.

Mayor Howard Whitmore, Jr., and the Centenary Committee have invited Newton alumni as well as the captains of yore to be on hand.

Until the second period was well under way Newton looked as though it would be able to hold its own against Brockton. The Shoe City scored six points and added a two-point conversion in the opening stanza and Newton had come right up to tie it all at 8-8 early in the second quarter.

Then the roof fell in—sort of. Brockton came equipped with a powerful line and a flotilla of nice-looking backs.

Among the backs was a senior of recognized hall-toting abilities named Archie Magee. Coach Bud Hawkes and his boys were expecting plenty of trouble from him. He supplied it, too. Not anticipated, however, was a wraith-like, 158-pound sophomore, Walter Shanks, who took charge when Magee was catching his breath.

Magee scored once and put on a couple of more scoring runs which were beautiful but nixed by the officials. Shanks scored twice, once on a 74-yard scamper which was a thing of spine-tingling character. It was the 74-yarder which stowed the ball-game in the Brockton locker beyond any possibility of recall as far as the Tigers were concerned.

Newton's sole touchdown was pretty much an individual accomplishment by Peter Thompson. It came at the end of an 11-play, 66-yard march, and although the ball was carried over from the two-yard line by Dave Connor, it was Pete who did most of the bread-and-butter carrying up to that point.

The boys on both sides allowed temperance to interfere with business at times in the second half, but the officials maintained control and the incidents remained of the non-serious quality.

Vern Rollins and Buddy Russo were outstanding for the Tigers. Pete Thompson hung up a total of 106 yards on 19 carries.

It was apparent that until his replacements pick up a bit more game experience, Dick Perkins' place in the forward wall will be hard to fill. Dick, out for the rest of the year, with a recurrence of an old eye injury, was severely missed against the tough Brockton outfit.

DEMOCRATIC STANDARD BEARERS — John L. Saltonstall, Jr., centre, Democratic nominee for Congress, chats with two of the Democratic candidates who also will be on the ballot in Newton. They are Alfred R. Guzzi, left, candidate for the House in the Fourth Middlesex district, and John F. Melia, Democratic Senate nominee. Both Guzzi and Melia pledged their support to Saltonstall.

Melia and Guzzi Endorse John L. Saltonstall, Jr.

Two Democrats engaged in hard campaigns for office in next month's election, took time from their busy schedules this week to endorse the candidacy of John L. Saltonstall, Jr. for Congress and predict an overwhelming victory for the Democratic candidate in the 10th District.

John F. Melia, candidate for Senate in the Middlesex and Suffolk District, and Alfred R. Guzzi, Fourth Middlesex District Representative candidate, expressed the belief that Saltonstall would become the first Democrat to win in the district since it was established.

"Saltonstall has a program which is designed to build a stronger America," Melia said. "His views on defense and military policies, foreign policy, and such domestic issues as housing, education, civil rights and the recession are finding great favor with the voters."

"In addition, Saltonstall's valuable experience in federal posts under President Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower appeals to the voters. We dare not let such ability be wasted. Saltonstall will become the first Democrat to win in the district."

"I believe the people are attracted to Saltonstall because of his service as associate general counsel with the Department of the Army," Guzzi said. "Saltonstall knows his district and he knows Washing-

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY HAVE PROVIDED OVER 41,000 NEW JOBS FOR MASSACHUSETTS WORKERS

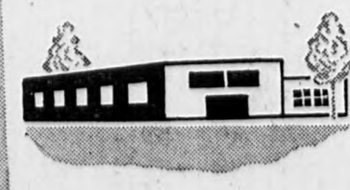

Official statistics of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, the United States Department of Commerce, the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, and the U.S. Department of Labor show that over 8,000 new manufacturing jobs have been established in Massachusetts since January, 1957. In the same period, over 33,000 additional jobs were established in trade, construction and other non-manufacturing fields — creating more than 41,000 new jobs during 1957-58.

OVER 250 NEW FIRMS HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED

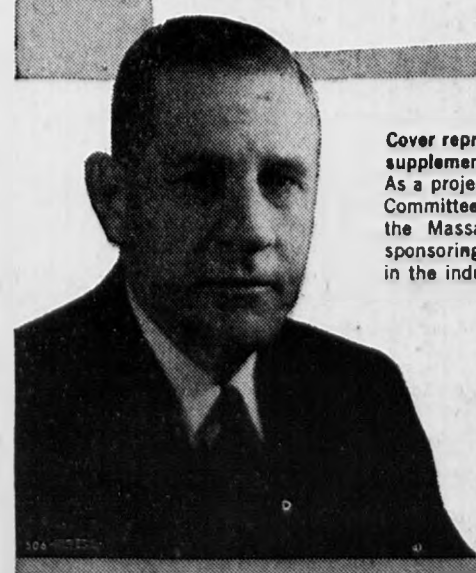

New companies are being formed constantly within our state by leading industrialists. The aggressive promotion and publicity programs under the Furcolo administration have played an important part in this development. A big factor, also, has been the informed, cooperative assistance that out-of-state prospects have received from the Governor's office.

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY ARE INVESTING $600,000,000, IN PERMANENT PLANT CONSTRUCTION

Business and industry are showing their confidence in Massachusetts by investing over 600 million dollars in new, permanent plant construction. Electrical and other machinery, chemicals, plastics, electronics, nucleonics, insurance, and finance companies are leaders in this impressive growth.

As a project of the Governor's Citizens Participation Committee, leading business firms cooperated with the Massachusetts Department of Commerce in sponsoring this convincing proof of their confidence in the industrial climate of Massachusetts.

FURCOLO

VOTE DEMOCRATIC

Congressman Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., 26 Russell St., Cambridge, Mass.

Furcolo Program For Retarded Children Major Accomplishment

It isn't very often that major social progress and money-saving can be combined in one program, but such a combination has been achieved in the Furcolo administration's new program for rehabilitation of retarded children, the Governor's supporters declared today.

The establishment of 21 day-teaching centers throughout the Commonwealth, with five more due to be opened before the end of next month, makes it possible for retarded children to enjoy both the warmth of home life and the type of guidance which can be given them only by specially-trained professionals, they said.

Perfect teamwork made Massachusetts the first state to provide this ideal system of care. As Governor Furcolo has done in many other instances, he called in a team of experienced and deeply-concerned private citizens to assist state officials in working out this program, it was stated.

(To do as much as humanly possible for the state's 110,000 retarded children had been one of the aims closest to the Governor's heart when he took office, they asserted.

State Board to Hear Atlantic Firm Appeal

The four-year-old appeal of the Atlantic Refining Co., which questions the city's legal right to assess its property on Route 128, Auburndale has been set for a hearing before the State Appellate Tax Board on Nov. 17.

The oil company operates a gasoline station on Route 128 where it also subleases property for a restaurant. The land is located in Auburndale. Atlantic Refining claims that the land is State-owned and that the city is overstepping its rights in assessing it for taxes.

Newton contends that the oil firm is liable to taxes on its assessment on a $198,000 valuation. The appeal which will go before the State board will be concerned with tax levies made by the city from 1955.

up about as rapidly as good quarters and personnel could be lined up. Three are already opened or in the process of opening in Boston—two at the headquarters of the Boston Association for Retarded Children, 42 The Fenway, and the other at the Dennison House in Dorchester," they pointed out.

Mrs. Kay Furcolo, the Governor's wife, was named "Woman of the Year" by the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Children, in recognition of her contributions to the group's work.

The Association is now conducting a $300,000 drive to finance its work, which is essential to full effectiveness of the whole program.

Besides the Day Centers and the special scholarships, the Governor and Legislature rang up another "First" for Massachusetts when a cooperative arrangement was set up with towns and cities, under which the commonwealth pays the communities half the cost of recreation programs for mentally retarded persons, his backers cite.

'SHOPPING AROUND WITH RITA'

October's bright blue weather... There is no denying it, this is Mother Nature at her best, and next weekend promises the highlight of the spectacular show of colors... Be sure and take plenty of colored film along for the never ending breathtaking sights... and for fast, efficient and courteous service on your colored films for slides, snapshots, or movies... depend on Atwood's Camera Shop in Newton Centre. Use the handy film drop on the rear door facing the Municipal Parking Lot.

Shopping around for three different papers gives me many opportunities to see good values, but I don't think I ever have seen a more exciting array of exceptional money saving values as I saw at the Newton Centre Sports Shop... The Hub Apparel Mfg. Co. manufactures high quality rain-secretaries of the Kennedy campaign in Newton.

Several hundred Newton residents turned out last week to hail the members of the Republican ticket, at a big, colorful rally here.

The Newton League of Women Voters will hold its annual Candidates' Meeting at the Meadowbrook School in Newton Centre at 8 o'clock next Wednesday night (Oct. 22), with the proceedings conducted on a non-partisan basis.

Twenty-four candidates will participate in the meeting which will be climaxed by a discussion by Congressman Laurence Curtis and Attorney John L. Saltonstall, Jr., of the issues in their Congressional contest.

wear and jackets, and in fact they have a difficult time meeting the demands of the better known Sport Shops and Department Stores throughout the country... now... they will make available at Newton Sport Center (which is their Retail Outlet)... the one of a kind, samples, and discontinued jackets made to sell at high prices in the very best stores, and now marked at 30% to 50% off for their local clients... Your outdoors man will appreciate knowing about these fabulous opportunities to save whether he is a College Football Fan who loves the warmth of the long, quilted jackets with zippered hood... or the Hunter who would want the Rainwear or heavy Parkas so enthusiastically endorsed by Ted Williams... There are the popular heavy Bomber Jackets, and lightweight campus jackets... in fact, there are jackets of every type and description for men, boys... and even a few for girls... So while they are out enjoying nature... keep them comfortable and warm at wonderful savings... Newton Sports Shop is the place to remember...

Pretty soon the "Trick and Treat'n" crowd will be on the prowl... Just don't let that creature from another world fool you... It is a neighbor's child with a costume from the racks of the B. S. Edward Store... If it is Zorro... I'll let you in on a secret... It is probably little 4 year old Kimberly Sweet... I hear her tell her Mother that she wanted to be Zorro... At the B. S. Edward she will have her choice of many things including this year's favorites "Man from Mars" or "Jet Man"... or the ever popular "Donald Duck" or "Scarecrow Man" and there are the cutest array of battery operated pumpkins, party favors and candies... Oh and by the way, all the costumes are flame proof...

This is the time of year to be "down on the farm"... and the best one I know of, is Esty's Farm on Dedham St. near the Newton-West Roxbury line... What a delightful place to go shopping for all the good things that harvest time can bring... And all the extras like homemade pickles and relishes... jams and Jellies... Oh my, I get hungry just talking about the place...

Debby's Pet Land was overwhelmed at the immediate response to their announcement of a new shipment of Tropical Fish... At times there were so many to be waited on that they invited the customers to take a net and go after the fish they liked the best... That kind of fishing sounds like fun. They wanted to let you know that they have even more to offer you this week... Want to go fishing...

The next time you are in Newton Centre stop opposite the Post Office and get acquainted with the Summer Frame Shop... They specialize on using unusual materials and ideas for the most amazing effects... Last week they took of all things, a delft ash tray and mounted it on blue velvet. Then they created an octagonal shaped frame that was antiqued with gold and silver... You never saw anything like it...

Another thing that is quite different from the ordinary gifts one finds in the stores is the Imported English Toby Jugs at Allets Gift Shop... For instance, you would love the pitcher with the colorful and lifelike face of Tony Weller... You remember the Coachman from Dicken's... Of course, this is just one of the many, many wonderful things to see at Allets.

You Can Burn Fallen Leaves If You Get Permit From NFD

Authorities frown on the idea but you CAN get rid of those dead leaves by burning them up in Newton—provided you get a permit from the fire department.

The permits may be obtained from any of the various fire houses of the city. They will be issued for periods of two days only and then only in the judgment of the fire officials that winds do not create a real hazard from fire in the open.

If you are fortunate enough to obtain a permit, Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., urges that you remember the following injunctions:

Do not under any circumstances burn on windy days. Provide some means of controlling or extinguishing the fire. (Keep the garden hose ready, for instance.)

Burn only small amounts of leaves at a time. Always watch while the fire is burning.

Make sure the fire is extinguished when you have finished burning.

Never allow children to play with the fire or come too close to it.

Call the Fire Department at once or sound the nearest street fire alarm if the fire goes beyond your control.

"WHICH SHALL I WEAR?" — Mrs. Kay Furcolo, Governor's wife, takes inventory of shoe supply as she plans a busy schedule of public appearances.

Hectic Schedules Need No Longer Wilt Milady

When it comes to dressing on-the-run, the fashion model who lives out of a hatbox has more time between changes than Mrs. Foster Furcolo of Newton, wife of the Governor.

Massachusetts' First Lady has an engagement book so crowded with official duties that take her whizzing around the state that she has to "dress out of a car-pack." It doesn't worry Kay Furcolo, though. There are widely-varied occasions and times of the day when she must make an appearance always dressed appropriately for the hour. But Kay has the formula for dressing smartly without a wardrobe that would meet the demands of the "10 best dressed" list.

Capsuled, it's the utilization of basics in fabrics that will go to early-morning breakfasts, post-lunches and even ribbon-cutting ceremonies at state fairs. Their lines are simple because like Mrs. Average American who is 5'4" she must depend on V-necks and long lines to add inches to her height. She avoids suits because they "cut her off." And jackets must be fingertip or longer for the same reason. Since Kay is constantly on the hop in pursuit of official duties, most of her dresses are made of material that doesn't rumple easily. Her clothes must be serviceable and neat.

"It must travel well," she explained, "and it can go from a late morning engagement on a television program right through to a club tea. Kay may be practical about her basics but like any other woman she has her pet 'fashion kinks'."

She has six pairs of shoes — size 7B — ranging from handsome white silk shoes that are later dyed to match her costumes (she's budget-conscious) to flexible, butter-soft calf pumps. Despite all the standing and walking she has to do she wears inch-and-a-half slender silhouette heels. "To make me look taller," she smiled.

The greatest casualty in her wardrobe? Gloves! She owns several pairs from white fabrics to exquisitely soft white kids.

"I really need them," she points out. "I wear them out hand-shaking. Big handbags are her pet fashion foible and she has several of them. 'All birthday and Christmas presents,' she said. 'And like most women I'm always digging around in the bottom of them to find my lipstick.'"

She collects handkerchiefs, too. She has 200, many of them hand-tatted and sent along with little notes from elderly ladies and admirers.

Unlike Hollywood stars, Kay can delegate very little time while traveling around the state to "getting glamorous." Efficiency is her fashion philosophy.

Into a car-pack go . . . in order . . . the dresses she needs for various occasions. During a recent four-day trip to Springfield her itinerary included two outings, two receptions and a dinner . . . to give you some idea of how varied her schedule can be.

Dark transition cottons saw her through the outings. Two silk basics, one in a handsome royal blue and the other in Quaker gray, went to the receptions. And a classic, semi-formal silk took her through the dinner.

One difficulty in being perpetually on-the-go is keeping her hair looking as though it were just freshly set. A once-a-week visit to the beauty salon is about all she can manage.

But on the back seat of her car is the inevitable small kit with hair spray, bobby pins, pomade for a touch of gloss and a hairbrush. "Thank goodness, my hair is short," she said. "I used to wear it long when Foster was campaigning for the Senate. But I cut it after that and it isn't too difficult to follow the lines and put up those limp ends."

"Naturally, it has to be a quickie set. I can't ride around with my hair up in curlers and a babushka tied under my chin," she laughed. When it comes to makeup it's the once-over lightly for the First Lady. Her skin is dry which precludes the use of too many cosmetics. A thin, lubricating foundation cream, a soft rose-red lipstick and just enough eyebrow pencil to slightly accent her brows are all she uses.

Skin freshener, cologne and pensive but both are in good taste.

Her favorite piece of jewelry is a bracelet with a medal of Our Lady of Fatima. Archbishop Richard J. Cushing blessed and gave it to her on Mother's Day and she is seldom seen without it.

Since she is in and out of automobiles so much (she often drives her two younger children, Hope and Richard, to school and does the family shopping) she likes short coats.

"I have two short coats and neither of them is new," she said. "The gray wool with the white alpaca lining is my go-to-market coat. And I have a brown boxy affair with a mink collar which can go about anywhere."

The First Lady also has a mink stole and a striking mink coat but these are kept for top brass occasions. Like every fashion-wise woman this fall, Kay has skirt-shortening problems. "Everyone of my hems has to be taken up," she said.

Who's the First Lady's most severe fashion critic? Not her busy husband, but her sons. Nicest compliment Kay can get is "Gee, you look nice tonight, Mom."

Doctrine Topic For Christian Science Service

Today's demand for practical application of the spiritual truths taught and practiced by Christ Jesus will be emphasized at Christian Science services this Sunday.

The topic of the Lesson-Sermon is "Doctrine of Atonement." The Apostle Peter's directive, "But as they which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation; Because it is written, Be ye holy; for I am holy" (1 Peter 1:15, 16) will be included in the Bible readings.

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following will be read (37:16-17, 22-25): "When will Jesus' professed followers learn to emulate him in all his ways and to imitate his mighty works? . . . It is possible, yes, it is the duty and privilege of every child, man, and woman, — to follow in some degree the example of the Master by the demonstration of Truth and Life, of health and holiness."

Furcolo Proclaims "Emergencies Don't Wait Week" October 10-18

As part of a national observance to arouse the public of the appalling toll in home accidents, Gov. Furcolo has joined the governors of other states in proclaiming Oct. 10-18 as "Emergencies Don't Wait Week" in Massachusetts.

Citing the tremendous toll of injuries and deaths caused by accidents in the home, Gov. Furcolo stated greater public awareness of safety in the home is necessary if the well-being of family members is to be fully protected at all times.

The governor's proclamation declared, "Family knowledge of first aid practices and availability in the home of first-aid supplies are essential in meeting emergencies that may arise suddenly and require prompt attention."

Next to highways, the home is the most dangerous place, according to Richard A. Grey, North Scituate, New England Johnson & Johnson divisional manager and Massachusetts state chairman of "Emergencies Don't Wait Week."

"Last year," he said, "there were 28,000 deaths in the home. A total of 4,200,000 persons were injured in home accidents. Most accidents in the home can be prevented by removing hazards."

The home, according to Grey, is a place where safety conditions depend on the individual, unlike business plants where there are controlled safety programs designed to reduce hazards and accidents.

"The fact that industry has cut its accidental death rate in half demonstrates what planned safety programs can do," Grey said.

Emphasis should be placed on the elimination of accident hazards, basic first aid knowledge, and maintenance of proper first aid supplies at all times, according to Grey.

Headlights and Highlights From Newton High School

By JUDY ARNOLD

HIGHLIGHTS . . . The legislative boards are getting to work now in preparation for this year. Lorraine Trifero is chairman of the Social Board and her committee will manage the Social Room, approve the schedule for Legislative dances and for school rallies. The Activities Board is a new committee this year. Its functions are to direct the work of the Assembly Committee, the Club Charters Committee, and to forward all club charters for Legislative approval. John Derr will lead this group.

Jean Winer heads the Music Board which will approve the Spring Musical, and sponsor Christmas Vespers. Closely associated with the Music Board is the Drama Board headed by Jan Lee Clement. Jan's group will approve the plays in the Drama Festival. They have already okayed the choice of the Senior Play. The Boys' and Girls' Athletic Boards supervise managers, enforce eligibility, manage presentation of awards and recommend appropriations.

In addition, the girls supervise the election of cheerleaders, drum majors and drum majorettes. The chairmen are Jim Gifford and Bette Anderson. The Civics Board is headed by Barry Wish. It recently chose two co-captains to head Orange Shield for this year. They are Jimmy Gifford and Clint Polack. Previously there had been only one chairman. The Finance Board directs the financial activities of the Student Body and is headed by Sue Fowler. Parliamentarian of the Legislature is Carol Chandler.

The Parent-Teacher-Student Association functions to bring the home closer to the school by including students in the usual Parent-Teacher Association. Members of the student portion are Minna Horowitz and Fred Posner, Girls' and Boys' Senior Representatives; and Buddy Rifkin and Margie Casselman, Junior Boys' and Girls' Representatives. Hal Cohen is the chairman.

This year's Newton Plan is being used in the history and biology departments. In United States History about 13 lectures are planned for the two sections of 90 Curriculum I Juniors and seven lectures are scheduled in Biology for three sections of 90 Curriculum I Sophomores. The best advantage of the Newton Plan System is that the teacher can present and emphasize the material by the use of slides. This produces better learning results.

A new language experiment is the use of a language laboratory which is comprised of tape recorders, machines for making records, and earphones; so that students may listen to their own voices. The purpose of this room is to help students learn to use the language conversationally and the Russian and French classes are using it. Some sophomore French classes are also using long-playing records which students take home at night.

An innovation in the school library is selling pocketbooks at reduced rates to students. Large racks of pocketbooks are put on display for students to purchase at any time. The librarians are selling the books now, but plans are being made for the Legislature to take over these sales. This venture has proven very successful.

City Tamadon is one of the exchange members spending the year in Newton. Julie Bergmark is City's hostess. The girl is from Turkey.

In past years, report card marks have been put on cards by teachers during class-room periods. This year all report cards will be fed into an IBM computer with the necessary information. Students have already filled out envelopes and the report cards will be mailed home. They will probably not require the parent signature on the report cards.

Mr. Kesselheim is teaching a special physics class this year. Almost all laboratory equipment is made by the students, and the students are urged to seek facts for themselves rather than by referring to memorized information from a textbook. This new course was devised by the Physical Science Study Committee which decided two years ago that an entirely new physics course was necessary for high school instruction. The course uses a special paperback book made by this committee. It is paper-bound because it is under constant revision. There are about 12,000 students in the U.S. taking these special courses.

A special testing program has been arranged to see how these students react to the course; where the course succeeds, and where it needs to be revised. The College Board is administering a special study to see how students in the new course compare with the old.

JOTS AND DASHES . . . The first senior standouts of this year were Howard Levine and Mary Auryansen. In the past, journalism classes have met after school, twice a week; and articles for the Newtonite were written by students from two journalism classes consisting of juniors and seniors only. This year there are three different classes open to the entire student body and a second-year class for the Newtonite editors. The classes are held during the school day now. Reporting, news writing, headlines, make-up, copy and proof-reading are some of the features offered in the class.

THE MARQUEE . . . This week-end old and new members of Newton High will have an opportunity to see the first efforts of the Centennial Class. "Anastasia," the senior play, will be presented in the high school auditorium tomorrow and Saturday nights. This year the cast members had only five. Instead of the eight weeks of rehearsal. This was done so that the play would be ready for the special homecoming week-end. The cast includes Bob Stearns as Chernov; Amy McAuliff as Vary; Steve Kaufman as Petrov; Lee Milner — Bounine; Jim Burdick, Sergio; Carol Oppen, Anna; Dan Krinsky, Drivinity; Steve Wolf, Sleigh Driver; Dorothy Gurvitz, Charwoman; Jay Mullen, Dr. Serensky; Barbara Fleischer, Empress; Julie Bergmark, Baroness; and Bill Morris, Prince Paul. These pupils had to learn their lines over the summer and attend rehearsals before school actually started this fall. They have been working under the guidance of Harriet Hoffman, Jan Lee Clement and Adele Lerman, the student directors.

Ushers for the week-end are Sylvia Keller, chairman; John McClintock, Head Usher; Elna Anderson, Judith Arnold, Arleen Bergart, Elizabeth Cohen, Mary Crosby, Nancy Doherty, Minna Horowitz, Wendy Hyman, Diane Lefkowitz, Marilyn MacLean, Judy Magner, Susan McCloskey, Martha Meaney, Mary Ann Metherway, Mollie Person, Ann Pokorny, Sally Rhodes, Ruth Sheppard, Amy Stellar, Carol Stellar, Lorraine Trifero, Helaine Warburton, Andrea Wragg and Paula Zibbell. These people will be leading you to your seats this week-end.

THE GREAT BIG WONDERFUL WHIRL . . . Planning the first dance for October 31 are Hal Cohen, general chairman of the legislature dance committee; Harriet Hoffman, assistant chairman; Sue Tudker, in charge of refreshments; Lorraine Trifero and her assistant Ann Pokorny heading the hospitality committee; Ed Paloen, labor chairman; Glenda Greene in charge of publicity, and Marcia Kerr, heading the music and entertainment committee.

Winners of the 28-car motorcade at the year's first Tigrera were Amy Sostillo, who received 75 gallons of gas; Mike Greenwald, Ruth Fish, and Mark Zimmerman, awarded 50 gallons; and Jack Fleming in third place, who got 25 gallons of gas.

The Newton YMCA will hold its Ninth Annual Committeemen's Dinner on Tuesday at the Association building, 276 Church street, according to George R. Strandberg, president of the "Y."

The affair is held each year for the more than 200 committee members, board of directors, trustees, staff, and their wives. It offers the various committees a chance to present in booklet form the complete program plans of their committee for the coming year. These plans will include policies and procedures under which the various departments of the Y will operate.

Graceful (But Ungracious) Swan Pays Mystery Visit

Forty pounds of grace and white feathers made a nice two-point landing on the second story porch of the home of Mrs. John E. Hopkins at 877 Commonwealth avenue, Newton Centre.

It was a swan and as fine a specimen as you'd find in anybody's lagoon. It was a curious swan. While Mrs. Hopkins made a long series of telephone calls for help, advice—or both—the visitor eyed her closely and didn't miss a word of the conversation.

It was also a love-sick swan.

Seems it was one-half of a happy two-some which has been sharing Bulough's Pond, Newton, with assorted Newton-bred ducks, as a temporary love nest. Which half of the two-some it might be wasn't immediately apparent.

Anyway, developments showed the pair had taken off for parts unknown together. The guess was hazarded that they might be looking for winter quarters in Aroostook Pond, near Westbrook, or in another pond at Little Compton, R.I. Both those ponds are on the top priority lists for swans who like to live it up.

They must have stopped to sow some wild oats along the way—possibly one last binge before settling down for the long winter. Whatever the reason they got separated and the visit to Mrs. Hopkins' apartment followed.

Mrs. Hopkins is ordinarily the most gracious of hostesses, quite able to rise to the occasion even when an unexpected guest arrives.

There wasn't a single reference in her Emily Post to the matter of entertaining swans. Besides, she had no facilities available—at least none that a swan might find attractive.

Accordingly, she got on the telephone and after interviewing both the police and fire departments she got in touch with the Animal Rescue League on Massachusetts avenue, Boston. They advised her to hold the fort or the swan until a rescue crew arrived.

The swan didn't go for the Animal Rescue crew, at all. The boys made six passes at her (or him). All were rejected. The visitor's indignation arose with every attempt. Then a bit of cloth was dropped over the visitor's head; there was a cloud of disengaged white feathers and pretty soon the visitor's legs were securely tied.

It was taken to the Animal Rescue League headquarters and given free board and room for two nights.

Meanwhile, search and inquiry was devoted to the whereabouts of the partner swan. They came to no productive end—much unlike the want ads in the Newton Graphic.

It was decided maybe the

PREPARE FOR SHOW — Models pose at the home of Mrs. Arnold Aron, of Newton, during the final meeting before the Jewish Women's Health Association "Sunshine Luncheon" to be held at the Somerset Hotel Oct. 20-22. captured swan would be able to find his or her partner if placed strictly on its own.

Accordingly, the big bird was brought to its starting place at Bulough's Pond. Under the supervision of Professor William Northrup Morse of 1110 Walnut street, Newton, it was released.

It preened a few recalcitrant feathers; tossed a meaningful look at its erstwhile captors and disappeared in the direction of some favorite cove to think things over.

During its visit to Mrs. Hopkins' home and during its time as an unwilling guest of the Animal Rescue League it uttered many a cry—one way or other. It was the most silent swan you'd ever meet.

Professor Morse explained there was nothing unusual about that. This, he said, was one of the mute species of swan. They don't trumpet; they don't whistle; they don't squawk. They just let their indignities boil up inside and fix you with a disapproving eye.

We'd like to report the two big love-birds finally got together and are living happily ever afterward.

B. C. Centre Named For Mr., Mrs. Roberts

Boston College has named its new field house and office centre, the Roberts Center, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts of Chestnut Hill, long friends of the college.

The Very Rev. Michael P. Walsh, S.J., president of the Jesuit university, announced the name at a patrons' dinner at B. C. Alumni Hall prior to a concert by the Boston Pops orchestra in the new building.

Father Walsh said, "we are honored to name this new building 'Roberts Centre' as a measure of deserved recognition for the genuine and inspirational loyalty of this exemplary Catholic couple to Boston College and to Catholic higher education."

Book and Author To Be Discussed At Temple Service

"Only in America" the book and the author, will be the subject of Dr. Albert I. Gordon's sermon at the first late Friday evening service of the season tomorrow night at Temple Emanuel in Newton Centre, starting at 8:15 o'clock.

A discussion of the relevance of Harry Golden's best-seller will include reference to the personal experiences of Mr. Golden and the public response to him.

Cantor Gabriel Hochberg will chant the liturgy, assisted by the Temple Emanuel choir, with Louis Siegel, director, and Dr. Robert Weiss, organist.

An Oneg Shabbat will take place in the Community Hall at the conclusion of the service.

Several Speakers On Education At Thursday Meeting

"Education for Citizenship" is the theme of the fall meeting of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs, which will be held in the Fellowship Hall of the Eliot Church in Newton next Thursday at 2 p.m.

Speaking on the subject will be Mayor Howard Whitmore, Jr., Mrs. Charles E. Shepard, first vice-president of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, and Harold Howe II, principal of Newton High School.

Mrs. Robert T. Toher of the Newton Recreation Department will also speak briefly about the display of handicraft work which she and Mrs. Allen R. Barrow, committee chairman of the Federation, have arranged.

Proclamation By Mayor Whitmore

Mayor Howard Whitmore, Jr. of Newton has issued the following proclamation concerning "United States Day" on Oct. 23:

Whereas, it is profitable for all citizens of the United States of America to pause, reflect, re-appraise and evaluate their heritage as members of a free society under the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution of the United States, and

Whereas, under the stress and strain of modern living with its many distractions, there is a tendency to accept our freedoms and opportunities without due regard to our responsibilities to protect, defend and maintain them for the future generations, and

Whereas, there is much propaganda circulated among us designed to persuade us to compromise and surrender our sovereignty, and thereby our freedoms hard won by our forebears for our benefit and for the benefit of future generations, and

Whereas, only by keeping our Country strong, united and sovereign can we best serve our interests and be able to effectively cooperate with and befriend other peoples and nations, and

Whereas, THE OBSERVANCE OF UNITED STATES DAY on October 23 has become an established custom in many communities throughout the length and breadth of our land,

Now, therefore, I, Howard Whitmore Jr., Mayor of the City of Newton, do hereby proclaim October 23, 1958 to be "United States Day" and devoutly thank God for our matchless government, and reverently pray to HIM to help us keep the REPUBLIC sovereign and our freedoms inviolate. I further request all our citizens to reaffirm their allegiance to the United States of America and rededicate their lives to the support and maintenance of the Constitution upon which it is founded.

Horace Mann Cubs Will Meet Friday

Members of the Cub Scout Pack 6, of the Horace Mann School in Newtonville, will meet tomorrow night (Friday) at 6:30 p.m. at the school to view a father-son exhibition and to receive awards.

Homecoming Day, Senior Play to Mark Start of N.H.S. Centenary

The centenary program marking the establishment in 1857 of Newton High School gets under way this week with the first of the formal events planned for the 1958-59 school year.

Scheduled for this week will be the presentation of the senior class play at Newton High Auditorium on Friday and Saturday nights. The Friday night show will be primarily for students; that on Saturday night for N.H.S. alumni.

On Saturday afternoon on the occasion of the Newton-Watertown football game, Alumni Home-coming Day will be observed with a special program before and during the half of the game.

The senior class play chosen for centenary year presentation will be Marcella Maurette's "Anastasia."

Big events for 1959 on the centenary agenda will be an art festival with exhibits and performances at the High School throughout the week of March 30 and April 4, and the 100th anniversary alumni banquet to be held May 28. Plans for the distribution of tickets for both events will be announced later.

In a letter addressed to all members of the Newton High Alumni Association, Mayor Howard Whitmore, Jr., has called for the cooperation of all living graduates in obtaining success of the centenary program.

"Our high school in Newton has been a leader among American public schools," reads the Mayor's letter. "As it enters its second century of service, I hope that all alumni will become re-acquainted with the school and lend it their support and interest.

"I look forward to seeing you at the football game Oct. 18 and subsequent affairs."

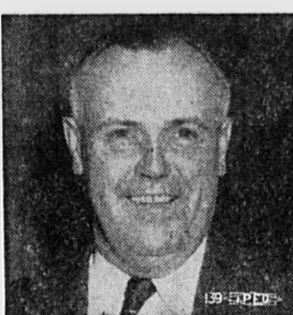

For the first time since Newton high's "small-school days" and all-school assembly will be held today (Thursday) at Dickinson Stadium. The program will consist mainly of a spirited football rally and a build-up for centenary class plans.

The Centenary committee is inviting all former Newton High football captains to the Watertown game on Home-Coming Day.

Herter and McCormack Waging Most Exciting Election Race

The battle between Christian A. Herter, Jr., and Edward J. McCormack, Jr., for the right to serve as the next Attorney General is one of the State's most exciting struggles.

Both Herter and McCormack are "name" candidates. Herter is the son of former Governor and present Under Secretary of State Christian A. Herter. McCormack is the nephew of Congressional Majority Leader John W. McCormack.

Each is regarded as a rising young public leader in his political party. Their fight is a critical one for both Herter and McCormack. The victor will be catapulted into public prominence. The loser will be tumbled out of office and will be forced to start all over again in some future campaign.

McCormack has been pointing for this election for almost two years. He began working and planning immediately after his defeat by the late George Fingold in 1956.

Herter started out last January as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. Midway through the balloting at the GOP convention at Worcester in June, however, he withdrew from the contest and moved the nomination of the late Attorney General Fingold by acclamation.

It was Herter's intention at that time to run for reelection to the Governor's Council, but Fingold requested him to accept the nomination for Attorney General, and Herter agreed to do so in order to strengthen the Republican State ticket.

To some degree this contest will determine whether

Housing For Older Folks Is Discussed

"Any kind of multi-family housing in Newton, whether it is for senior citizens or families, has to be considered in the light of Newton's past history," Lorenz Muther, executive director of the Newton Taxpayer's Association, told a group of United Church Women of Newton last Friday morning.

The group is currently studying the problems of moderately priced apartments for older people who, after raising their families in Newton, contributing to making it the kind of a city it

Participation of All Urged As Newton Plans 18th Halloween

If the good hob-goblins are to take wing over Newton Halloween Night; if the plans to Make Newton's celebration one in which every child in the city has a fine time; if Newton is to maintain its reputation for showing the rest of New England how to make Halloween uproariously happy without a hang-over of shocking vandalism next morning — your help's needed.

Just in case you haven't seen the letter sent out by Dr. R. Emerson Sylvester, general chairman for Newton's 18th annual Halloween celebration this is a reminder.

In a letter addressed to "Dear Newton Neighbor," Dr. Sylvester points out that the celebration means "orderly fun and participation for all." In connection with the 400 parties for over 16,000 children, the doctor reports that over 2400 men and women are volunteering their services to make this year's effort the best ever.

"Your contributions are urgently needed," reads his letter.

"The school population is greater than ever. The total expense of these parties, although moderate for such a vast undertaking, will be somewhat greater than ever this year."

Each child pays a small "token fee," the recreation department takes care of part of the expense and the balance has always been made up by the generosity of Newton citizens and business firms.

Sponsors of these city-wide Halloween parties include the Recreation Department, the School Department, the Fire Department, the Police Department, the Chamber of Commerce and other civic groups.

New Road Plan To Route 128 Sets Off Storm Of Protests

Plans of the State Department of Public Works for the construction of a new system of access roads to Route 128 in the Grove street area of Newton Lower Falls, drew the sharp opposition of Mayor Howard Whittemore, Jr., and a delegation of Newton residents at a Boston public hearing.

Purpose of the proposed change, according to officials explaining the plans for the first time, would be to permit the widening of Route 128 to make it a better and safer highway for to provide a direct route from 128 and from Washington street to the MTA parking lot for high speed traffic. Also concerned with the plans are of under construction at the end of the new Highland branch.

Five Brandeis students had to be taken down ladders from a second story apartment as the result of a two-alarm fire which broke out yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock in a business block at 1383-1389 Washington street, West Newton.

The fire started in Charley's Baby Shop at 1383, which was gutted and spread to Bob's Lunch, next door, which was also badly damaged.

The Brandeis students tried to get down the stairs but the smoke was so thick that it was impossible and firemen raised ladders to get them to the ground.

Schools Line Up Drive For Smith House Funds

On the eve of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Dr. Samuel Francis Smith, author of the hymn "America", nearly thirty parent-teacher associations in Newton have agreed to assist the Samuel Francis Smith Homestead Society, Inc. in its drive for funds in the Newton Schools.

The society is conducting a drive to raise approximately $50,000 to purchase the home of the famous author of the hymn "America", located at 1181 Centre Street, Newton Centre, and to convert it into a national shrine.

Walter J. Kreske, president of the society, announced at the third fund drive meeting of the group that Newton school children in all thirty of the city's public schools are participating in a week-long drive which started on Monday, Oct. 20.

Altogether, about 17,000 Newton school children are expected to participate in the drive. Mrs. Leonard Baker, chairman of the school solicitation committee, reported that envelopes carry-

Lt. Charles B. Lynch Killed In Turbojet Crash in Turkey

Lieutenant (j.g.) Charles Barry Lynch, 25, of Newton was one of four young U. S. Navy officers killed in the crash of a turbojet bomber as it was making a takeoff from the air base at Adana, Turkey.

Lieutenant Lynch was the son of Mrs. Margaret (Barry) Lynch and the late Attorney Donald F. Lynch. He made his home with his mother at 26 Lewis street, Newton.

Word of the tragedy came to his mother from the U. S. Navy Department at Washington.

The young officer was a nephew of John Barry, former Boston newspaperman, now an executive of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston, and a grandnephew of Mr. Robert F. Barry, pastor of St. Clement's Church, West Somerville.

He was a member of the 1951 graduating class at Newton High School and he received his degree with the 1955 class at Boston College. He graduated from the Officer Candidate School at Newport, R. I., in 1956 and completed his jet pilot training course at Pensacola, Fla., the same year.

At Newport he studied at the Navy's School of Justice and his recent assignment abroad was a legal officer at Port Lyautey in North Africa.

and Miss Margery Lynch of Newton, and two brothers, Jerome of Waltham, and Midshipman Donald F. Jr., of Massachusetts Maritime Academy at Buzzards Bay.

Wild Throw At B.C. Got Action

An overturned baseball in Loyola Hall at Boston College struck a sensitive part of the metal skin of Fire Alarm Box 892 and almost before the recalcitrant ball could be recovered several pieces of apparatus were on hand. The alarm was sounded at 5:50 p. m. Dismissal was ordered at 5:14 after some red-faced students admitted poor control of a throw from an imaginary outfielder to an imaginary Yogi Berra.

Road Plan-

ferred three alternative plans for carrying traffic to the MTA parking lot. None of his plans would require further land-takings.

DPW officials said they have studied two of the Mayor's plans and are still considering a third plan.

The DPW plan calls for two big curving access roads to serve the northbound lane and two additional ramps for serving the southbound lane. For the bigger and wider turns required for high speed traffic two existing ramps would be abolished.

The DPW seeks to have contracts for its planned construction let out by Dec. 1. If this can be done, it believes the project could be completed before Dec. 1, 1959. The Federal Government would pay 50 per cent of the cost.

Aligned with Mayor Whitmore in his opposition were a number of residents of the area. Among others from Newton attending the hearing was Public Works Director Willard S. Pratt. The Mayor and the other protestants emphasized the traffic flow increase which would be imposed on the area of the Hamilton School, which would be 200 feet from the proposed access road from Grove street to Washington street. It was emphasized that Grove street has no sidewalks. It serves for the foot passage of all children going to the school from the eastern end of Grove street.

"The interchange as proposed by the DPW," warned Joel B. Leighton, 31 Colgate road, "like antibiotics may have side effects that are worse than the disease."

Explaining the DPW plans and answering questions propounded by the Newton group were Associate DPW Commissioner Lewis J. Fritz, Chief Engineer Leo DeMarsh of the project, and Arnold Katz, Chief Engineer of Highway Engineers, Inc., a consulting firm.

DeMarsh, after explaining the side of the ramps, said the DPW is designed to meet top safety specifications and to cut down the number of cars getting off and on Route 128. To do this the DPW plans a road link between Grove street and Washington street, immediately west of and parallel to Route 128. The Grove street section just east of 128 would become a State highway and would be widened.

"We would prefer," Mayor Whitmore said after pointing out the purposes of the changes were obviously designed to accommodate the MTA, "no change at Washington street and Route 128." He cited as one objection Washington street turns which would be made necessary by traffic headed for Quinobegun road.

The Mayor pointed out that Grove street would face the burden of more traffic. It is a narrow street, he told the hearing, and parts of it cannot be widened.

Traffic from Wellesley would flood over side streets," objected President Robert McCourt of the Newton Lower Falls Improvement Association. He said that this traffic would be particularly heavy at the very

Melia Making Strong Fight For Senate

John F. Melia, well known Brighton business man, was waging an energetic campaign this week for election to the State Senate from the senatorial district which takes in Newton.

Melia had the endorsement of all three Newton Democrats whom he defeated in the September primary — Robert W. Gallagher, Lawrence C. Sullivan and Dr. Roland A. Barrette.

Alderman Joseph G. Bradley was among the Newton leaders urging Melia's election.

Melia spoke at a number of meetings and house parties held in his behalf in various sections of Newton.

hours that Hamilton School pupils would be going to and from school.

The difficulty of making traffic step as it comes off the long straightway parallel to Route 128 was emphasized by Patrolman John F. Lovely, 11 Waverley place, Newton Lower Falls.

It was urged that Waverley place would be blocked off under the DPW plan. Further the plan of the State to connect Waverley place with Hamilton and Atherton streets would require fire apparatus and all other traffic to come through a right-of-way less than nine feet wide.

Also listing objections were Eben S. Reynolds, 41 Colgate road; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Anderer, 496 Grove street; Colonel and Mrs. Philip Cibotti, 510 Grove street; W. H. O'Donnell, 490 Grove street and others whose homes may be taken or who fear their children may be endangered by heavier Grove street traffic.

Saltonstall Making Forceful Campaign for Congress Seat

Attorney John L. Saltonstall, Jr., of Brookline, Democratic nominee for Congress, this week vigorously pressed his campaign for election in the 10th congressional district. Saltonstall emphasized five main themes in his campaign talks, at the same time hitting hard at the Washington administration and at his Republican opponent. The issues which Saltonstall stressed were:

1. Restoration of economic prosperity and control of inflation; 2. Aid to education and housing; 3. Strengthening of civil rights; 4. Immediate strengthening of the armed forces; and 5. Restoration of United States leadership abroad and strengthening of the United Nations.

Saltonstall assailed his opponent's voting record on these issues charging that the GOP incumbent had voted in 1958 against Federal loans to cities and towns to build schools and hospitals as a means of fighting the economic recession.

"I favor Federal aid for construction of roads, schools, hospitals and other badly needed public facilities, particularly when our economy needs a boost," declared Saltonstall.

He declared that his opponent had voted in 1955 against holding down the price of gas

Cochairmen for the sale, Mrs. John Crandon of Chestnut Hill, and Mrs. Gilbert Freeman of West Newton are assisted by Barbara Hovey Beach, Mary Sutton Furman, both of Wellesley, and Dorothy Knowles of Weston.

Waban Couple's Aid To Bombed School Accepted

The County School Board with jurisdiction over the Clinton, Tenn., high school, wrecked by a segregationist's bomb Oct. 5, has voted to accept a financial contribution made by Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Isaacs of 92 Varick road, Waban.

The Waban couple sent a check to the board and also wrote to 40 friends in various parts of the country suggesting they also send contributions and urge others to do likewise.

Nearly $800 was forwarded to the school board following the example set by Mr. and Mrs. Isaacs. Engineers estimate that $250,000 will be required to repair the damage caused by three pre-drawn dynamite blasts.

Mr. Isaacs is a former associate editor of Newsweek Magazine. Mrs. Isaacs is membership chairman of the Newton League of Women Voters.

Community Council Hears Hospital Facilities Discussed

One hundred and three delegates from agencies, clubs and organizations in Newton attended the fall delegate meeting of the Newton Community Council last Thursday at Usen Auditorium, Newton-Wellesley Hospital. A panel of officers from the hospital discussed their services, facilities and finances to those present representing more than 40 member organizations of the Community Council.

Panel members included Thomas E. Shirley, President of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital, Louis S. Pilcher, M.D., President of the Hospital Medical Staff, Richard Wengren, Treasurer and William S. Erines, Director of the hospital. Panel moderator was Nell W. Swinton, M.D., Vice President of the Community Council.

The hospital, with a $7,000 a day overhead is community owned and is presently a three million dollar a year operation. Mr. Brines told the group. Of the total expenses, he continued, about 65 percent is for personnel.

Each year approximately 16,000 patients enter the hospital, of these about half are regular admissions and half come in through the accident service. Hospital capacity will be 295 beds with the completion of the recently opened facilities.

The School of Nursing was reported by Mr. Shirley who said there are 162 students, 11 full time faculty members and one part time member. The school costs the hospital about $100,000 annually but a large proportion of the students remain at the hospital after graduation.

The medical staff reported by Dr. Pilcher includes 150 active physicians and approximately 200 courtesy physicians. This year there are eight interns and eight residents in surgery, medicine, X-ray and pathology. This is a full quota and is unusual for a community hospital.

The hospital corporation is made up of 75 trustees who select 12 individuals as a Board of Governors. The Board meets monthly and has several active committees on building, personnel, finances and publicity.

Community Council President Harry L. Walen, opened the meeting by introducing Philip K. Brown, United Fund area chairman for Newton. Mr. Brown spoke of the great need for generous giving to the United Fund residential campaign in Newton.

The new executive director of the combined Newton Community Chest and Community Council, Miss Constance S. Garbutt, was introduced. Three current activities of the Community Council include plans to initiate a homemaker service in Newton, a home care program for patients released from the hospital and for further coordination between the physical planners at the City Planning Department and the social planners in the Community Council, Miss Garbutt said.

The combination of the Community Council and Chest under last spring's reorganization was explained by Mr. Walen. Mrs. Philip A. Segal, Vice President of the Community Council was program chairman. Mrs. Riley J. Hampton and Mrs. Harry L. Walen helped with refreshments and Mrs. Seymour S. Getter provided the table decorations.

Truman to Speak at Testimonial For Atty. Gen. McCormack Tonight

Attorney General Edward J. McCormack, Jr., will be feted tonight (Thursday) at a big testimonial banquet at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

Featured orator at the event will be former President Harry S. Truman who is to speak for Attorney General McCormack and the other members of the Democratic State ticket over a New England-wide radio and television network.

At the request of Boston College, McCormack has arranged for former President Truman to address the student body there this afternoon.

The banquet is being held to honor McCormack for his election by the Legislature to fill the unexpired term of the late Attorney General George F. F. Gilmore.

If McCormack is elected Attorney General Nov. 4, his supporters point out, he would be the first native of South Boston to hold a constitutional State office by vote of the people.

During the time he has served as Attorney General, McCormack, nephew of Congressional Majority Leader John W. McCormack, has established two new divisions to protect the interests of the people of Massachusetts — the Division of Civil Rights and the Consumer's Council.

McCormack declared that he envisions the Division of Civil Rights as safeguarding the fundamental freedoms guaranteed by the State and Federal Constitutions.

The Consumer's Council, headed by the Assistant Attorney General, he said, will speak for the public at hearings before the State Department of Public Utilities and other regulatory agencies on petitions for rate increases on electricity, gas, telephone, and transportation, among other things.

"Something must be done to ease the public's ever-growing burden of rate increases and I intend to make every effort to do so," McCormack said.

"The purpose of the Division of Civil Rights is to see to it that plaintiffs and defendants alike are accorded the due process of the law, that the rights of accused persons and prisoners are respected and that all citizens of the Commonwealth, regardless of color, creed or national origin, are granted equal opportunities to worship freely and work wherever employment offers itself."

Two committees of distinguished citizens have agreed to serve without pay as advisory bodies to the Division of Civil Rights and the Consumer's Council, he stated.

McCormack said he set up the two new Divisions in his office to make the functions of the Attorney General "more sensitive and responsive to the needs of our citizens."

Mayor, Officials Re-Appraise City's Traffic Safety System

Even as the city was honored by the National Safety Council for the excellence of its school traffic safety program in its public, parochial and private schools, Newton officials, including Mayor Howard Whitmore, Jr., have initiated a re-appraisal of its traffic safety system.

The re-appraisal got under way following the listing of the city's seventh highway fatality for 1958.

The Massachusetts Safety Council which presented the national award praised Mayor Whitmore and local officials for their initiative.

"This is the first time," said Bruce Campbell of the Safety Council, "the chief official of any city has taken the time to sit down and go over the anti-accident recommendations made by the Massachusetts Safety Council."

Mayor Whitmore and Police

Chief Philip Purcell spent five hours with Council representatives studying and discussing the recommendations.

Principal suggestions of the State group were:

(1) Establishment of a traffic commission consisting of city officials to review suggested changes in the city's traffic pattern before such proposals go to the Board of Aldermen.

(2) Establishment of a citizen's traffic committee to act as a liaison between citizens and city officials on traffic questions.

(3) Use of radar speed traps.

(4) Use of chemical tests to determine whether a driver is under the influence of liquor.

(5) A "no-flx" system of enforcement.

(6) Increase the number of channelized intersections with traffic islands and traffic lights. (7) Fewer left turns permitted at crowded intersections and prohibition of parking at certain places during rush hours.

Your Privilege—To Help

Another United Fund campaign is under way. In the weeks ahead you and I in the Greater Boston area will be hearing of the imperative need for the campaign's success.

There will be those among us who'll exclaim "Again." There will be those who'll say, "I really don't know how much I'll give this year."

It is for such people that the campaign will be directing most of its educational work in the days ahead. Unfortunately, the poor are still with us. We have not yet reached that glorious millennium when some child is not in danger of being denied the chance to know a bit of happiness; when some parent does not know the torture that goes with denial to offspring of everything beyond the bare necessities of existence.

We have evolved many terms in recent decades to describe the drear mandates of poverty. Maybe it's because we have not the courage to examine poverty.

Have you ever seen a child's face pressed against a frosty shop window with eyes studying the outlines of a toy? Only a pane of glass separates those chubby hands from the brightness of the toy. Yet, for that child the gleaming object might just as well be a star in the far-off heavens.

It can never be here—unless someone helps.

The United Fund Campaign isn't undertaken to put a toy in the hands of every toy-less child. The United Fund Campaign isn't something that tries to make sure that everyone will be relieved of the wants which poverty imposes.

The United Fund Campaign is a sort of modern concept of doing the most good in the most expeditious, satisfying manner.

The United Fund Campaign is merely a vehicle to enable you to do what you would want to do for your fellow being if you knew about his plight.

It's a gigantic task. It calls for many volunteers and many hours of hard—often thankless—work.

Figures would only bore you. You can't use figures to translate into sensible realization the tasks that every dollar, every cent you contribute to the U.F.C. carry out.

The term underprivileged will be heard often as the campaign progresses. It will have many meanings. It will refer to that aged man whose world is a dreary room—whose only recreation is a book or paper he cannot read for lack of glasses. It will refer to that young mother and widow whose welfare check doesn't include a few summer days in the sun for a brood of children who can't understand why they are different from other youngsters.

It will refer to that boy crippled from birth who cannot know the blessing of physiotherapy which would permit him to earn his living as others do.

The U. F. C. is your expression of doing something for someone who can't do for themselves.

Alone, you could not do it. Joined by many others you can help immeasurably.

You can bring happiness to that little face pressed against the cold glass window of the toy shop.

Political Highlights

a candidate is helped or hurt by rugged preliminary clashes prior to the main election bout. That is a question on which sound political observers often are in disagreement.

McCormack engaged in one pitched battle after another before getting into his present position to make his bid for the Attorney Generalship.

He emerged as the victor from a bitter three-way struggle for the endorsement of the Democratic convention has June, winning on the fourth ballot over former Governor's Councilor Endicott Peabody and ex-Representative Joseph D. Ward.

That was the convulse that lasted two sessions, the first being adjourned after a near-riotous demonstration in Mechanics Building on a Sunday morning, with a subsequent flurry of acrimonious charges and counter-charges.

In the September primary McCormack beat back a determined challenge by Peabody and after a hard fight gained the right to run as the Democratic nominee for Attorney General.

Close on the heels of his primary conflict, he won a third-ballot victory in the State Legislature to achieve election there as the interim Attorney General who will serve out the term of the late George Fingold.

McCormack was the winner in each of those fights. His victories commanded attention and helped to place him before the public eye. Each of them, however, produced a certain amount of rancor and bitterness. Whether that offset the momentum given his campaign is uncertain.

Herter is regarded as the strongest member of the Republican State ticket and the one with the brightest prospects of winning election Nov. 4. He was the top vote-getter in the September primary. Conversely, McCormack is considered to have the toughest fight of anyone on the Democratic slate.

Herter and McCormack each has certain factors working for and against him.

McCormack should be helped along by the Democratic tide, although some students of politics believe that tide may not be running as strongly in Massachusetts as in some states. Whatever Democratic tide is flowing whether it be potent or slight, McCormack is pulling with it, Herter against it.

Herter should benefit from the fact that this is a non-Presidential election, when the Republicans traditionally make their best showing in Massachusetts,

About Missing Swan

Editor,

Newton Graphic:

May I add some information to the most interesting story of the wild Mute Swans, which appeared in last week's "Graphic" on the last page?

Distinct credit should be given to the Recreation Department City of Newton for their interest in safeguarding the wild swans on the first record of visit of this species to Newton. Mr. C. Evan Johnson, Recreation Commissioner of Newton, telephoned to the Animal Rescue League asking them if they would return the swan, which had alighted on Mrs. Hopkins' porch, to Bullough's Pond, near the Newton City Hall. The pair of swans had been contented there for several weeks till something or someone terrified them to the point where they flew out of the pond and alighted in the middle of Commonwealth Avenue, stopping for a time all traffic. My theory is that, as happens with other flying water birds, in their frightened state they mistook he sun-glazed wide pavement of Commonwealth for a pond and were amazed on finding themselves on a hard pavement amid heavy traffic.

It is not unusual for this type of wild swan, the last species in New England (though formerly the trumpeter swan and whistling swan existed in quantities till exterminated by hunters) to take a sightseeing trip after nesting and rearing season, then returning to their breeding place in Southern New England. This swan has now established itself as an all-year resident of Massachusetts.

The Recreation Department telephoned me it had found the missing mate of our swan last Thursday in Chandler's Pond, Brighton, adjoining the Commonwealth Country Club. I visited the pond Friday and Saturday and found it in happy condition. As frigid weather comes on we believe, after consultation with the Massachusetts Audubon Society, that both swans will return to their wild life sanctuary, either alone or together.

Than you for your interest in conservation of our diminishing wild birds. They need all the protection we can give them.

Cordially yours,

William Northrop Morse.

Wigglesworth Says Herter Would Do Excellent Job as Attorney General

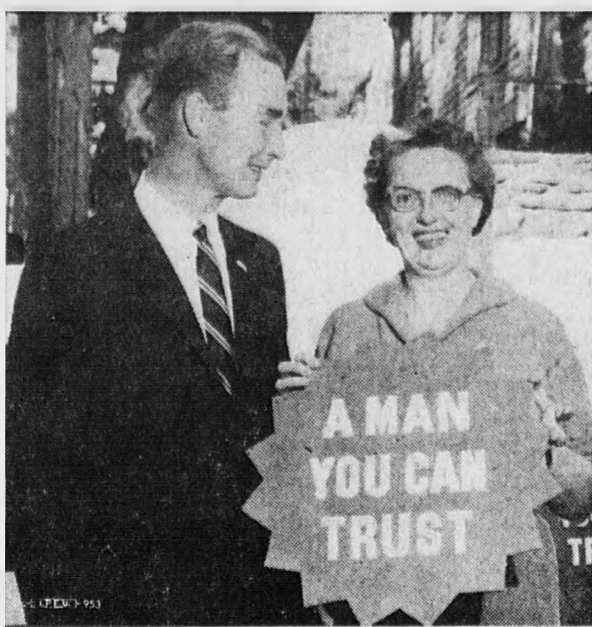

Congressman Richard B. Wigglesworth today warmly endorsed the candidacy of Governor's Councillor Christian A. Herter, Jr., and vigorously urged his election as the next Attorney General of the Commonwealth.

Wigglesworth praised Herter's ability as an attorney, cited his qualifications for the office he is seeking and paid special tribute to the job Herter did for two years as general counsel for the Foreign Operations Administration in Washington.

"I have known Chris Herter, Jr., all his life," Wigglesworth declared. "His distinguished father and I have been friends ever since college days. I have followed his career closely. It has been a highly successful one."

"It has included graduation with honors from Harvard College and from Harvard Law School."

"It has included a fine war record starting as an enlisted man in the army and ending with service in the 11th Armored Division, in the course of which he was wounded in action and decorated for bravery, beyond the call of duty."

DEMOCRAT CREATES HERTER SLOGAN — Mrs. Mary Nardella of Worcester, a lifelong Democrat, shown with Christian A. Herter, Jr., Republican candidate for Attorney General, said she was voting for Herter because, "He is a man you can trust." From this was born the official Herter campaign slogan.

"It has included experience as an active and successful practicing attorney and as general counsel for the Foreign Operations Administration in Washington with its world-wide problems."

"It has included also a fine record as a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives and as a member of the Governor's Council."

"Chris Herter has demonstrated that he has the character, the ability and the experience to do a top job for the people of Massachusetts as their Attorney General."

"I am glad to endorse the candidacy of Christian A. Herter, Jr., for Attorney General and to urge his election on November 4th."

Governor's Councillor Herter, campaigning at a tremendous pace, told his listeners at rallies and meetings this week that their vote for Attorney General will be one of the most important they will cast in the coming election.

Herter declared that the post he is seeking "is the least political of all offices in the State."

"Only by using your vote wisely," he told his audiences, "can you be sure of having an Attorney-General who will fight crime and corruption of every kind and defend you and your family against injustice of any sort."

Herter pledged himself "to run the office of Attorney General with absolute honesty, free of all outside influence."

"I give you my solemn word that as your Attorney-General I will work with every ounce of ability and energy at my command," he said.

Councillor Herter quoted charges by former Governor's Councillor Endicott Peabody that the supporters of Edward J. McCormack, Jr., tried "to buy and steal" votes at last June's Democratic convention in Mechanics Building.

"Those charges were made by a prominent Democratic leader," Herter declared. "They were published in the newspapers throughout Massachusetts for everyone to read. But they have never been answered."

Herter asserted that the safety and well-being of the people of Massachusetts depends too closely upon the proper administration of the office of Attorney General to turn that position over to any political machine.

"With the depression days of the 30's this philosophy changed, and rigid building codes and zoning laws were enacted to protect Newton as a city of single homes. In the early 50's the zoning laws were re-studied, and Zone E, which allowed for apartment buildings was dropped, except for a few spots. It is believed that at least 5% of the residents of Newton now live in illegal apartments."

"Newton has never tried to enforce its zoning, except when individuals have protested in writing about illegal adaptations of older houses for several families. We desperately need a complete re-examination of our zoning laws, and real enforcement of ordinances, or else changes in them as they now stand."

Charles Downe, vice president of Economic Development Associates, and consultant to the Newton Planning Board, re-emphasized Mr. Muther's statement that Newton still considers itself a city of single family residences. He explained in some detail the entire zoning picture in Newton. Less than 5% of the city area is available for building, and very little of that is zoned for building multi-family facilities. Is it time for Newton to re-think its entire zoning problem? Older homes in many sections are falling into disrepair but they cannot be remodelled for the older people, or any other type of multi-family occupancy, under existing ordinances.

Following an active question period, the women decided to study further into what church and social groups in other parts of the country have successfully done to meet the needs of older people whose income is greatly reduced in their sunset years. Mrs. Thresher will have other experts to discuss this with the group in two weeks.

Tomorrow, Friday, Oct. 24, at 9:30, the group will hear reports on the work being carried on in Newton now to meet the problems of racial discrimination in housing.

To Attend "Work Day"

Mrs. Joseph C. Skinner of West Newton, president of the Rivers Country Day School Parents' League, will be on hand with her son, Richard, for the annual Work Day of the school on Saturday. Many other Rivers parents from the Newtons are expected to attend.

On Wednesday, Nov. 19, a luncheon will be held for members in good standing at the home of Mrs. Bernard Cohen, 33 Wachusett road, Wellesley Hills. The highlight of the afternoon will be a musical produced and directed by Mrs. Harry Berly of Newton Centre.

School Officials Feted at Meeting

Members of the Emerson School PTA, Newton Upper Falls, tendered a reception to the new acting principal, Joseph A. Gattuso and to Raymond Cook, the former principal, last Wednesday evening.

Following the business meeting, PTA president, Mrs. Herbert B. Downs presented Mr. Gattuso, who in turn introduced the new teacher, giving a short resume of the background and teaching experience of each.

The group then proceeded to the gymnasium where each parent personally congratulated Mr. Cook and his wife on his promotion, at the same time bidding farewell to a principal who, for eight years, worked unceasingly to improve the Emerson School.

Each parent was then presented to Mr. Gattuso and his wife, exchanging a few words of welcome and wishing him success in his new assignment.

Mrs. Downs, on behalf of the PTA, presented Mr. Cook a gift in remembrance and appreciation of his service.

Federation Of Women's Clubs Meets Oct. 27

This report is based on notes taken at the annual meeting in May, of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, from Mrs. Jesse Hoyer Butler's special public speaking classes. Mrs. Butler, public speaking chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, emphasizes the keys to effective speaking in public and the need for training in this field for all leaders.

"America" author's 150th anniversary are being distributed to the school children throughout the Newton school system.

Distribution is being handled in most schools by the home room mothers of the respective parent-teacher associations. In all cases, distribution of the envelopes was timed for Monday of this week, which is also the 150th anniversary date of the birth of Dr. Samuel Francis Smith. Collection of the envelopes will occur today and tomorrow.

The Newton School Committee, by unanimous vote, has authorized full participation by the school children in the campaign. Furthermore, during this week, special programs and assemblies are being held in all Newton schools.

Mr. Kreske reported that Irving J. Helman, president of the Newton P.T.A. Council, had been most cooperative, and instrumental in making it possible for the P.T.A. organizations in Newton to help in the campaign.

The children's enthusiasm for the Smith House undertaking is exemplified by David Curtis, a seventh-grade student in Weeks Junior High School in Newton. David made a special point of attending the third fund drive meeting of the society to volunteer his services and the services of the student cabinet, of which he is a member, to distribute and collect the fund drive envelopes.

Mr. Kreske further reported that Professor Ernest Skilliano will be in charge of solicitation in the Catholic parochial schools in Newton and that Mrs. Harold R. Keller will supervise solicitation of funds in the private schools in Newton.

There will be a fourth fund drive meeting at the Newton Centre Playground House on Tyler Terrace on Thursday, November 6, 1958, at 8:00 p.m. This meeting is open to the public and all persons interested in assisting in the drive to save the home of this famous author are welcome.

Tiger Sophs Win On Mabey's Run

Dick Mabey found clear going around end for a 10-yard gallop against the opposition to hang up the only score in a game between the sophomores of Newton High and Belmont High on the Concord avenue playground, Belmont. The trek enabled the young Tigers to hang up a 6-0 win on their Belmont hosts. Newton got two more scoring threats under way later in the game but they were erased by fumbles deep in Belmont territory.

Tigers Seek to End Potent Arlington's Victory Streak

With their own aspirations for a Class A championship damaged beyond repair, Newton's Tigers go over to Arlington Saturday to see what they can do about regaining a major share of their lost prestige.

They will trot on to the turf of Pierce Field decided underdogs. If they can manage a win over the Spy Ponders, they'll be atoning for the two big black marks on their own record as well as astounding the odds-makers.

For this Arlington machine is being touted as the best edition turned out by the Big Red in years. Right now it shares with Lawrence the top rung in Class A competition. It has been returned a winner in four starts, and the scores have left no room for dispute.

Last week will give an idea of what the Tigers face Saturday.

The Arlington boys entertained Everett High — if a thorough steam-rolling can be considered entertainment. It was the same Everett team which got Newton off on the wrong foot right at the start of the season when it nipped Bud Hawkes' boys 19-18.

Everett showed a lot of disdain for the Arlington reputation right off the bat. It took the kickoff and marched 80 yards to score. Then it scorned the conventional placement for the point-after. It went for the rich two-point pay-off and got it.

Up to that point it appeared that Arlington had been overrated. However, once the second quarter got under way Arlington took supreme charge. It was actually no-contest after that. Although it ceded eight more points to the invaders it ran up touchdowns with sickening regularity until the fourth-stringers found themselves working on a 52-16 lead going to the final whistle.

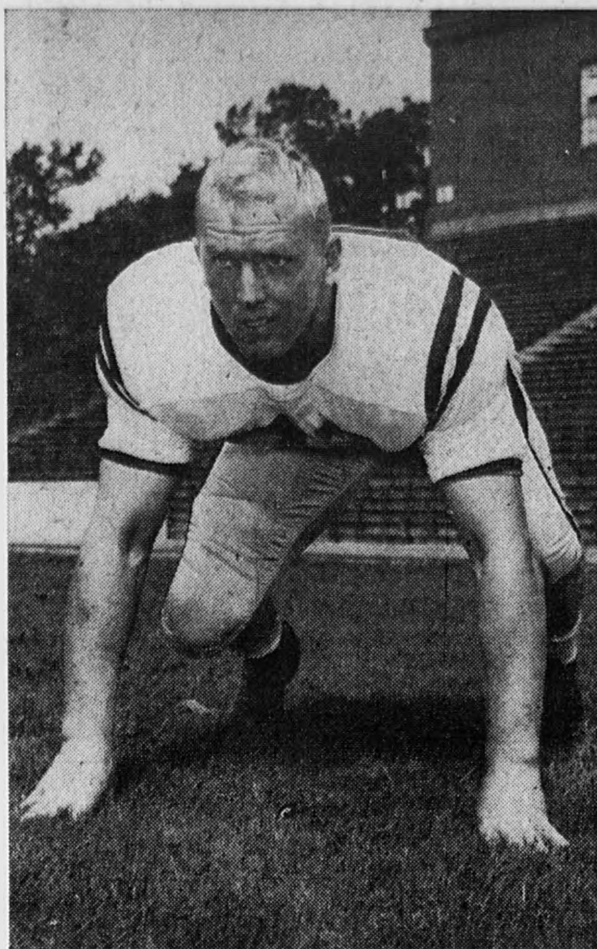

As was expected, Newton got back on the winning path rather emphatically before a Homecoming crowd at Dickinson Field.

Watertown provided the opposition such as it was. The Tigers turned in their best performance of the season winning 36-0.

Pete Thompson, giving the old grade in the stands a demonstration of how a half-back can really go to work, scored three TD's. On top of that he rushed successfully three times to get 6 points in conversions.

Fullback Dave Rand and Quarterback Tony Lavelly got the rest of the points for Newton. All of the Newton scoring was made on short punches through the line. Watertown's sol marker came on a forward pass in the fourth period with Quarterback Ronnie Migliaccio pitching to left end Hal Deragian.

Furcolo Reviews His Work In Field of Public Health

In the field of public health, as in promotion of industrial growth and educational expansion, Governor Foster Furcolo has aimed at close coordination between government and the leading private citizens who are most concerned, he declared today.

A case in point is the Governor's plan for establishment of a Psychiatric Research Institute, which will give the State's abundance of medical leaders additional opportunities to study the problems of mental diseases, mental retardation and the criminal mentality.

This program is set up to make it eligible for federal assistance, Furcolo explained.

Governor Furcolo has used political machinery to provide physical and financial means, and has then given recognized private experts some voice in actual conduct of the programs.

Realizing that the high cost of medical, dental and nursing education has kept many promising young people from selecting those professions, Governor Furcolo sponsored a public scholarship board to encourage and assist them.

The state Medical, Dental and Nursing Scholarship Board was set up and given an initial state appropriation of $50,000. Thanks to this, some 200 excellently-qualified students were helped in entering the professional schools this fall.

The Furcolo administration also helped to obtain salary increases and nighttime pay differentials for nurses in our state hospitals, the Governor asserted.

Also Furcolo-sponsored was the establishment of three geriatrics clinics to promote the welfare and happiness of senior citizens.

The fight against alcoholism has been intensified. Eleven alcoholic clinics are operating fulltime throughout the commonwealth. The program will continue to expand.

The opening of Cushing Hospital for care of the elderly was accomplished years ahead of schedule, and the institution is being enlarged and improved. This has taken a great load off municipal hospitals and has wiped out what Governor Furcolo termed the "shameful practice of caring for elderly people in state mental hospitals, even when they had no mental illness."

A critical shortage of medical secretaries in state hospitals is being overcome by an in-service training program at the Lemuel Shattuck Hospital.

Staffs of state hospitals have been increased, and conditions have been further improved by placing many patients in other institutions which were better suited to their needs.

Congressman Curtis Declares Issue Is Experience Versus Experiment

Congressman Laurence Curtis declared today that one of the issues involved in his contest for reelection is "experience versus experiment."

Curtis said that his six years of service in Congress and his 12 years in the State government, successively as State Representative, State Senator and State Treasurer, have given him a broad experience in meeting the problems which arise on Washington's Capitol Hill.

Santa will have a wonderful time filling his bag to the brim at Allets.

Though spring seems far away, now is the time to plan for that too... Tulips, and early spring flowers can not grow unless you plant them now... Clapper's is the one outstanding place to shop when you are planning next year's tulip display... or in fact for any gardening need... It is a gardener's Garden Shop so to speak, a place that you can depend on to have the very best. Add excitement to your own Spring Flower Show by selecting some of the exotic sounding bulbs... like the "Queen of Night" which promises a satiny jet black flower... or the delicately Curtis' service in Congress has been commended as outstanding by such leaders as Senator Leverett Saltonstall and ex-Governor and present Under Secretary of State Christian A. Herter who preceded Curtis as the Congressman from the 10th district.

A former State commander of the Disabled American Veterans, Curtis has won recognition in Washington for his sympathetic understanding and handling of veterans' problems.

The lollipop crowd are getting impatient. Mom is plagued with "When," "How Soon"... "Can I get my costume today, Mom?... Huh Mom, can I...? Don't keep them in suspense any longer, take them to Edwards in West Newton. There is free parking and they are open Friday night, and best of all they have everything to make it a "Whooping Good" Halloween. They have the grandest array of masks, make-up kits, wigs, costumes, and, of course, all of the party supplies, decorations and goodies for tiny visitors...

Here is good news for you Mom... To introduce the new personnel, Albert's Beauty Studio will have a very special offering each month... beginning with a wonderfully low price of permanents. Chances are that you planned to have one before the busy social calendar begins, and this will give you an excellent opportunity to save money and to meet the new manager Miss Parkhurst, who is responsible for the nice things that are happening at the shop. Miss Paula is the other charming Miss who is anxious to attend you, and if you are an old friend of the shop you can renew your acquaintance with Mr. Ralph... and Mr. Russo. Be sure to watch for the spectacular specials each month... Outdoors, crisp fall weather, and football, just naturally go together. It is interesting to notice that the exclusive Sport Shops not only at nearby B.C., Harvard and MIT... but in college towns all over New England have a standing request with the Hub Apparel Mfg. Co. to deliver as many quilt lined Parkas as possible. These boys surely have an eye for rugged good looks, and comfort. The students can save considerably by shopping at the handy Newton Sports Center which is the retail Outlet for the company. There are wonderful savings on samples, one of a kind and discontinued numbers with a variety of styles and sizes for everyone from the campus style for small fry to the heavy hunting jackets for the sportsman... The bright orange "N" or any school letter is available also, so remember Newton Sports Centre in Newton Centre.

Debby's Pet Land have set the scene, bringing country outdoors right into their window. The window is filled with corn stalks, pumpkins and gourds as a lovely setting for their nice selection of feeders for wild birds... Wander down Bowers St. by the Newtonville Railroad Station and see this wonderful window display... and enjoy feeding the wild birds, or bring springtime in to your home with a singing canary...

Something to think about... (an old favorite)... I had no shoes and I wept... until I met a man who had no feet...

Rep. Whittemore Praised for Aid To The Elderly

JOHN W. WHITTEMORE

State Representative John W. Whittemore of Newtonville was praised this week by a prominent official of the senior citizen movement for his outstanding legislative support on behalf of the aged.

In a letter to Representative Whittemore, released from the offices of the Senior Citizens and Associates of America, Charles C. O'Donnell, national president of the organization, cited Whittemore as a politician, leader possessing both "good common sense and a generous portion of the milk of human kindness."

"The text of the letter said in part: 'A most pleasant task has been assigned to me, that of extending to you the sincere appreciation of the Officers and Members of the Senior Citizens and Associates of America for your outstanding support of legislation designed to make life a little more pleasant for our retired elders in the twilight of their lives.'

"Your legislative record," the letter continued, "is one to be proud of. It is distinct proof that you are possessed of one of the rarest of human qualities, good common sense, and that also your heart contains a generous portion of the milk of human kindness."

Long one of the most respected leaders in Newton political life, Whittemore is seeking reelection to a second term as Representative from the Fourth Middlesex District comprising Wards 1, 2, 3 and 7. Prior to his 1956 election to the Legislature, he served two terms as a member at large on the Newton Board of Aldermen.

The new Alice Gobel on NBC-TV's "The George Gobel Show" is vivacious Phyllis Avery. Though she was born in New York, her childhood was spent alternating between France, California and New York. When an agent saw her in an amateur production of a Noel Coward play, he sent her to see Josh Logan who cast her in "Charlie's Aunt," in which she played nine months. But the next season wasn't exactly rewarding as she appeared in three plays which all quickly failed. Phyllis, not one to give up, kept plugging and landed a part in "Wonder Victory" in which she landed Don Taylor, whom she later married.

Because of his career, she gave up her job and became a housewife and mother. But the marriage didn't work out so now, Phyllis divides her time between her two daughters and her renewed acting career. TV audiences knew her as Mrs. McNulty on "The Ray Milland Show." Gibbs Warns of Crushing Tax Burden Unless Line Is Held

State Senator Donald L. Gibbs warned today that the people of Newton and elsewhere throughout Massachusetts will be crushed under the burden of taxes unless they elect public officials who will endeavor to hold the line against rising costs of government.

Gibbs expressed the belief that the saturation point has been reached in the amount of taxes the people can stand and that waste and extravagance in the operation of the State government must be eliminated.

Senator Gibbs, who is seeking re-election to a second term in the upper branch of the State Legislature, declared that on the bills which have come before the State Senate he has voted to protect and preserve the jobs of Massachusetts workers.

Gibbs quoted figures compiled by the Associated Industries of Massachusetts showing that an alarming number of industrial and manufacturing plants have gone out of business, throwing thousands of workers out of employment.

"What is too often forgotten," Gibbs said, "is that when a plant or factory closes down and moves to some other section of the country, the persons who suffer most severely are the workers who lose their jobs."

"The top executives usually move along with the company, but the rank and file of workers can't pull up stakes and move. They must search for some new means of earning a livelihood," Gibbs said that he is one of the Senators who has battled and opposed the very laws which the Associated Industries of Massachusetts asserts has resulted in a dwindling of employment opportunities.

"I realize full well the gravity of the figures made public by the Associated Industries of Massachusetts," Gibbs stated. "I know the impact the closing of manufacturing and industrial plants has had upon the prosperity of our Commonwealth. I know, too, what it has meant in terms of hardship for many thousands of workers and their families."

"But this trend, which is making Massachusetts a less and less prosperous State, will not be stopped unless and until a majority of the people recognize the seriousness of the situation and elect public officials who will do something about it," Gibbs declared.

"It must be apparent to everyone that if we make it impossible for plants in competitive fields to operate successfully in Massachusetts they will move somewhere else," Gibbs continued. "That is exactly what they have been doing. Our State has suffered, and most of all our workers have suffered because of the short-sighted attitude of office-holders who have failed to face up to their own responsibilities."

Gibbs said that the biggest problem confronting the State government is that of taxes.

"Some elected officials seem to forget," he asserted, "that when they vote to spend millions of dollars the money must come out of the pockets of the taxpayers. There isn't any magic or painless way of getting it."

"We are in for real trouble next year," Gibbs added, "unless legislators are elected who will try to hold the line for the taxpayers."

Senator Gibbs accused Governor Furcolo of "irresponsibility" in some of the programs he advocated, declaring that it was clearly shown that the Governor's $50 million make-work program was not needed.

"We have a responsibility not to throw away the people's money," Gibbs asserted. "I lived up to that responsibility for the past two years, and if I am re-elected I will live up to it for the next two years."

Mack, presented seven gourmet dishes.

Following a brief intermission during which prizes were awarded, A&P Stores gave an interesting demonstration of their Super-Right Meat Department. After seeing this presentation, no housewife could possibly think buying and cooking meat is a dull matter.

The fresh meat cuts which were used to illustrate the Super-Right story were awarded as door prizes to some of the lucky ladies in the audience.

At the close of the cooking and meat demonstrations, Jeanne Ambuter, who acted as Mistress of Ceremonies for The Newton Graphic, conducted the drawing of the door prizes. All food cooked at the Cooking School was awarded, some of the foods being packed in hand-some Pyrex containers.

Mrs. Goodwin's prize topped the list of winners, however. A handsome Caloric Gas Range, this modern and popular 36" model, with spacious oven and wist-high broiler, features instant lighting top burners, with one equipped with a modern thermo-set control, the famous "burner with a brain".

Foods will not burn because this thermostatically controlled burner ends scorching, sticking and burning. It automatically takes the guess work out of cooking jobs like warming left-overs, or frying bacon and eggs.

Buckley to Hire Handicapped If Chosen Register

Edmund C. Buckley, popular Democratic nominee for the office of Register of Deeds, declared today that if he is elected he will consider hiring handicapped persons to work in the Registry.

Buckley pointed out that "the hiring of the handicapped is sometimes forgotten in the hard give and take of political campaigns."

"I will follow the humanitarian principles of the party with a heart," he asserted.

Buckley said he also plans to organize the Registry into an efficient and businesslike organization for the public convenience, utilizing all the modern scientific office equipment such as micro-film apparatus and electronic card indexing systems to speed operations for the benefit of the public.

Buckley, a liberal Democrat, was educated at the Boston Latin School, the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance and the Suffolk University Law School.

Protect Your Job — Safeguard Your Security

Re-elect Your State Senator

DONALD L.

GIBBS

Gibbs has worked intelligently and industriously to preserve the prosperity of Massachusetts and the employment opportunities for its citizens. He has continuously and consistently fought the measures that have caused the closing of business establishments and the loss of thousands of jobs in Massachusetts.

WE NEED DONALD L. GIBBS IN THE STATE SENATE

Ernest Ancevine, 95 Prince St., West Newton

30,000 INDUSTRIAL JOBS LOST IN MASSACHUSETTS

WILL YOURS BE NEXT?

Industry — the most vital, the most important source of jobs in Massachusetts — is leaving the state in growing numbers.

And the situation is becoming so acute that your job could very well be the next one affected.

How extensive is the loss?

There has been a net loss of 30,000* manufacturing jobs in Massachusetts between 1947 and 1958. The frightening part is that 21,703 of these jobs have been lost since January 1, 1957 alone. In terms of payrolls, here is a loss of more than $119,250,000 every year.

These lost jobs, remember, are not just temporary layoffs, or seasonal losses. They no longer exist in Massachusetts because of the many companies which have closed their doors permanently or have moved to another state.

Why?

Because our State Legislature, over the objections of the more far-sighted members, has continued to pass laws which make it more costly and burdensome to operate a manufacturing plant in Massachusetts than in any other state.

Consider this:

Massachusetts imposes higher taxes on corporations than any other state.

Massachusetts takes more than twice as much of its state income from taxes on business as the average taken by all other states.

Massachusetts has run up the highest state debt in the nation — $733,000,000; which, by the way, is 13 times more than it was just 12 years ago.

Is it any wonder that so many businesses are forced to close; that so many others are moving away?

Specifically, what can you do about it?

When you vote in the coming election next month, make certain that you vote for candidates who will put an end to this massacre of jobs in Massachusetts. Make certain you vote for men who know industry's problems and will insist on laws that will make it possible for industry in this state to compete with the rest of the nation. Make certain you vote for men who are going to help YOUR employer keep YOUR job in Massachusetts.

It's already too late for 30,000 jobs.

Animal Hospital Asking For Help

An appeal has been made to all Newton residents for discarded blankets and cotton cloth to be used in the care of sick animals at the Angell Memorial Animal Hospital of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Society officials said that the present supply of blankets and cloth is nearly depleted, and "we find it necessary to replenish our needs if we are to provide maximum care and comfort for the many animals that are brought to us daily for hospitalization."

Gifts of blankets or cloth may be sent to the Angell Memorial Animal Hospital, 180 Longwood avenue, Boston.

Girl Scout Brownies in Newton turned in a splendid civic performance when they helped distribute 11,000 Goodwill Bags throughout the city this week. These containers known as "Good Turn Bags", filled with discarded and wearable clothing and household articles, shoes and toys, will be called for by the Goodwill Industries truck.

Citizens are asked to fill out the card enclosed in each bag or the receptacles may be placed in the collection box in Newtonville. As a result of the clothing collection campaign, more than 300 handicapped workers will receive employment at the Noyes Center in Boston.

Much commendation has been received city-wide for the fine spirit of co-operation shown by the little ladies in Brownie uniform as they diligently performed the task of unloading and distributing the Goodwill bags.

though he makes his home in Newton.

Herter is widely regarded as the strongest member on the Republican State ticket and is considered to have an excellent chance of winning election next Tuesday.

Governor Furolo is rated slight favorite over his Republican opponent, former Speaker Charles Gibbons, although the two apparently are coming down the home stretch in a fairly close race.

In one of the most interesting of the 1958 election battles Congressman Laurence Curtis, seeking re-election to a fourth term, is being challenged by Attorney John L. Saltonstall, Jr.

Although Saltonstall is a second cousin of U. S. Senator Leverett Saltonstall, the Senator is campaigning actively for the re-election of Curtis.

A number of ADA members in Newton are working energetically for Saltonstall who is a former State chairman of the ADA.

Both Curtis and Saltonstall have put on energetic campaigns, and their race is commanding more than usual attention.

Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles Rudolph F. King is expected to win the seat in the Governor's Council being vacated by Christian A. Herter, Jr. King is being opposed by Edward J. Cronin of Watertown, a namesake of the Secretary of State.

State Senator Donald L. Gibbs of Newton is being challenged by John F. Mella of Brighton.

This is a return match for Gibbs and Mella who also were opponents two years ago when Gibbs won by a rather narrow margin.

The four Newton legislators all are faced with contests.

In the 4th Middlesex district Republican Representatives George E. Rawson and John W. Whittemore are being opposed by Democratic Candidates Alfred R. Guzzi and Francis M. Morris. Guzzi is a former Alderman.

In the 5th Middlesex district Republican Representatives Arthur G. Heaney and Irene K. Thresher have Democratic Candidates Harold Rosenwald and Robert Shaw.

Kennedy, Furcolo, McCormack Back John Saltonstall for Congress

Top Democratic leaders joined this week in endorsing Attorney John L. Saltonstall, Jr., and urging his election to Congress from the 10th congressional district.

Saltonstall is standing for election as the Democratic candidate in the district which takes in the entire city of Newton.

Those championing his cause include U. S. Senator John F. Kennedy, Governor Foster Furcolo and Congressional Majority Leader John W. McCormack.

Saltonstall has maintained a strenuous campaign pace in the closing weeks of his drive for election, shaking hands and meeting hundreds of persons in Newton and other sectors of the district.

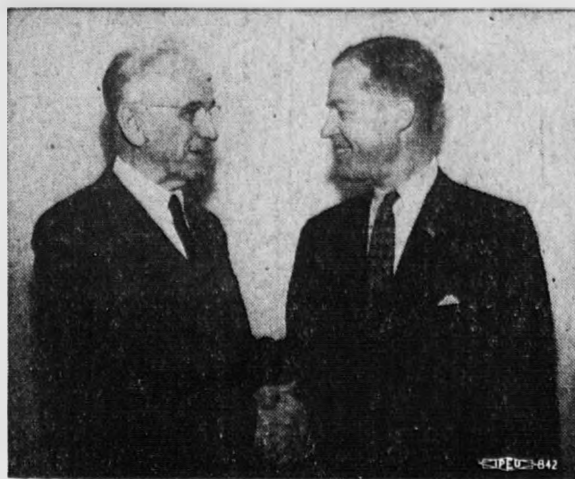

"I am enormously encouraged by the response I have received everywhere from persons in all walks of life," said Saltonstall. "The people are genuinely interested in what a candidate has to say. They want to know his views on the recession and high prices, national defense, and the cold war.

Saltonstall outlined the following points in his platform:

"1. Restoration of economic prosperity and control of inflation. 2. Aid to education and housing. 3. Strengthening of civil rights. 4. Immediate strengthening of the armed forces. 5. Restoration of United States leadership abroad and strengthening of the United Nations."

Saltonstall is a graduate of Harvard College and the Yale Law School. He specializes in federal litigation in his Boston law practice.

Newton Centre Business Meeting Launches Season

The stringing of Christmas lights through the business district to add color to the Yule season and the sponsoring of a "Newton Centre Days" promotion in January were discussed at a successful opening meeting of the Newton Centre Business Association held at the Woodland Golf Club last week. President Bernie Dresner conducted the meeting.

The new fall and winter season was auspiciously launched by the meeting and considerable enthusiasm was registered for the proposed sales and carnival planned for early in 1959.

Speaking at the meeting were, Albert Tocci, assistant vice-president of the Newton National Bank, and Nathan I. Greene, senior vice-president of the Newton-Waltham Bank. Their topic was, "Bank Credit for the Businessman."

President Dresner stated that the fall and winter business season was launched with genuine enthusiasm and pointed to the plans for Christmas lighting and a January promotion as indicative of an energetic business agenda for the district.

During this tour Baram discussed the subject personally and at length with hundreds of Mississippians from the governor to the Negro in "Catfish Alley."

Tuesday and You!

In all due charity something can be said for the large number of Americans who do not bother about casting a vote on Election Day.

Most of them DO know they are doing something wrong. The conscience stab may be vague or quick to pass. The fact remains that for a true American, supposedly enjoying the great rights every American holds inalienable, there is something very wrong about the willful neglect to cast a ballot.

A large percentage of those persons who do not bother about going to the polls have a quick, ready-made pill to ease the conscience and kill that pang.

They'll tell you or themselves — "So what? My vote wouldn't count anyway."

No charlatan ever handed out a more phony pill. First of all, that ballot would be counted. It would count quite as much as the vote of anyone else. In a national election, for instance, it would count just as much as the vote cast by the President of the United States.

However, there's more to this business of staying away from the polls than the loss of a single vote.

The ballot you don't cast can do a lot of things. None of the things is good. Most of the things that non-cast ballot does are bad.

Abraham Lincoln was a pretty good politician. He was also a pretty fair philosopher. He had an idea you would be pretty safe in going along with the majority opinion of Americans. When Americans expressed a majority opinion, that was it as far as Abe was concerned.

They might make a mistake, now and then, he felt, but in the long run they were right.

So much for the expression of a majority opinion by Americans.

Consider some of the by-products that go, with the non-cast ballot; with the willful failure of Americans to cast any opinion when the time comes on Election Day.

That failure—multiplied many times by others reaching for that same phony pill—can place in public office men who are inferior to the demands that you as an American can be expected to make upon them. The assumption of public office by inferior men can be costly to you.

It can be directly costly in the matter of taxes; it can be both directly and indirectly costly in the matter of services you have a right to expect; it can be costly to you in your entire mode of living.

In 1956, a presidential year, approximately 60.4 percent of those American citizens who commanded the right to vote actually went to the polls. That means that nearly four out of every 10 remained at home, went about their business chores or did something else.

They just couldn't find the comparatively short time required to exercise the right which was theirs.

Most of them told themselves — "So what? My vote wouldn't count, anyway. What difference would one little vote make?"

There is something wrong about a philosophy which permits democracy to operate with 40 percent of its motor power missing.

If at times, we have had government; if at times things don't go the way we think they should in the all-important field of politics—you can probably find the real answer with the 40 percent more or less who stay away from the polls on Election Days.

When Abe Lincoln was speaking of his confidence in the opinion of the American people as a whole, he was speaking of the opinion of a majority of all Americans — not a mere 60 percent.

In recent years we have seen various systems of pre-election polling make remarkable recoveries from such setbacks as the Literary Digest suffered with the advent of Franklin D. Roosevelt on the national scene; and in '48 when pollsters were practically unanimous in consigning Harry Truman to an overwhelming defeat.

Some of these systems have been able to boast of a margin of error in forecasting election outcomes reduced to fractional percentage points.

Yet, wouldn't the average American rise up in wrath if it was suggested — "Never mind going to the polls! The professional pollsters will decide who the next recipients of your votes would be."

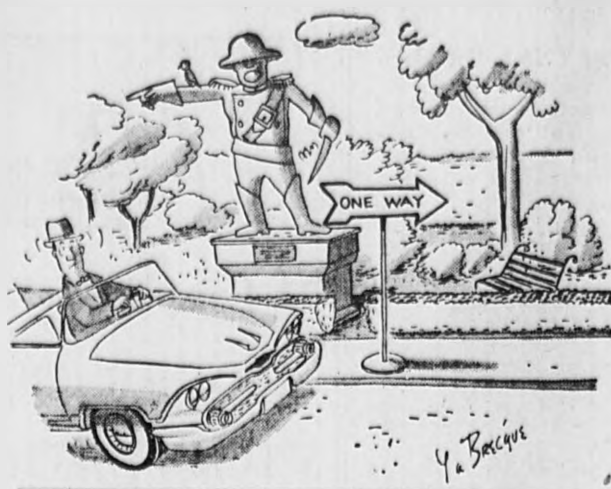

Isn't that what you do when you stay away from the polls because you consider the outcome a foregone conclusion?

The Russians have enslaved countries by the simple expedient of sending communists to the polls when unwary populaces have sat back on Election Days. On such gimmicks of minority rule they have wiped out the concept of free elections as far as millions are concerned.

Next Tuesday is an Election Day.

It is an important Election Day.

Vote as your conscience and your judgment dictate. It is your duty. It is your privilege. However, strong and mighty her ability to defend herself may become, whatever heights she may scale in a nuclear world — America's real secret of power will remain in the ballot box of a free election system.

Political Highlights

in Massachusetts are the sharp drops in the voting lists in the Democratic cities and the fact that this is a non-Presidential election, when the Democratic turnout usually falls off more heavily than the Republican vote.

As against that, however, is the obvious fact that the GOP campaign was disrupted and temporarily thrown out of gear by the sudden and tragic death of the late George Fingold which deprived the Republican party in Massachusetts of the man who had been chosen to lead it into this election battle.

As the hard-eyed gentry, who make the gambling odds on elections and then back up their opinions with cold cash, put it, more things will be working next Tuesday for the Democrats than for the Republicans.

The surest winner in this election is U. S. Senator John F. Kennedy. But whether his plurality over Vincent J. Celeste will be of the staggering proportions that Kennedy's followers desire in order to push him into the forefront as a Presidential prospect for 1960 is a question only the returns will answer.

Kennedy has made a vigorous bid for Republican and Independent votes, and the indications are that he will get more of them than any of his running mates.

To some extent he has campaigned on his own. His followers have staged a series of receptions for him at which he was the only member of the Democratic State ticket in attendance. He is virtually certain to be the top Democratic vote-getter.

Governor Furcolo is rated as a favorite to win reelection over former Speaker Charles Gibbons. Furcolo displayed solid Democratic support in the September primary. He appears to have gathered increased strength since then. The weaknesses one expects when a Governor is standing for reelection, especially after he has taken stands on controversial issues, have not shown up in Furcolo's campaign.

Yet, Gibbons has stumbled with such force and vigor, particularly during the past week, as to create the impression that he may be making some headway and to cause a certain amount of uneasiness in the Furcolo camp.

Gibbons, in the closing stages of his campaign, has hammered hard at statistics compiled by the Associated Industries of Massachusetts showing the number of manufacturing and industrial plants which have closed down in Massachusetts during the past 22 months and the number of jobs which have been wiped out.

It is impossible to tell what impression that is making upon the workers of the State, but it is the issue to which Gibbons now is hitching his bid for election as Governor.

As Furcolo and Gibbons move into the closing and critical days of their race, Furcolo definitely is the favorite, Gibbons the underdog who is waging an uphill struggle against heavy odds.

Gibbons has been faced with about every handicap confronting a candidate bidding for the Governorship. He got off to a late start. He has been hampered by the lack of funds. He has been attempting to swim against the political tide. He is striving to unseat a man who is a masterful and convincing campaigner.

The Furcolo camp understandably is confident as to the outcome of the election. The Gibbons adherents are hopeful of an upset.

The fight which looms as the tightest of all the State-wide election clashes is the one between Attorney General Edward J. McCormack, Jr., and Governor's Councillor Christian A. Herter, Jr., for the right to serve as the next Attorney General of the Commonwealth.

McCormack is considered to have the toughest battle of any member of the Democratic State ticket.

Herter looms as the strong man of the Republican slate. He showed that in the September primary. He has waged an energetic, hard-driving campaign in which he personally has met thousands upon thousands of voters. But the Democratic tide is running against him just as it is against all the other Republican candidates.

McCormack unquestionably is a stronger candidate today than he was two years ago when he lost a close race to the late George Fingold. He has the title of Attorney General and the power and prestige of the office behind him.

If Herter wins election as Attorney General, he will have to defeat a more potent opponent than Fingold nosed out in 1956.

McCormack has been through three hard battles, one at the Democratic pre-primary convention in June when he gained the endorsement of the conclave, the second in the September primary when he defeated former Governor's Councillor Endicott Peabody, the third in the State Legislature in September when he achieved election as interim Attorney General. Each of them was a bitter struggle, but McCormack emerged the victor from all of them.

The Herter-McCormack contest has turned into a rugged, bruising clash in its final stages. Each has waged a positive campaign, but each also has raked the other with a series of salvos.

The stakes are high in this contest. The winner will come out of the election a big political figure. The loser will be relegated temporarily to private life.

The outcome of the Herter-McCormack race may hinge on the force with which the Democratic tide is running.

The contest between Lieutenant Governor Robert F. Murphy and former Republican State Committee Chairman Elmer C. Nelson probably will follow the trend of the Furcolo-Gibbons encounter. If Furcolo wins, he undoubtedly will carry Murphy back in with him. If Gibbons scores an upset, Nelson is likely to be the next Lieutenant Governor. Only once in the last dozen State elections have the voters elected a Governor of one political party and a Lieutenant Governor of another.

In the fights for State Treasurer, State Auditor and Secretary of State the odds favor the Democratic incumbents.

Congressman Curtis Favorite Over John L. Saltonstall, Jr.

One of the most interesting congressional contests being waged anywhere in Massachusetts is that in the 10th district between Congressman Laurence Curtis and Attorney John L. Saltonstall, Jr.

Congressman Curtis, who has won three successive fights in the district over formidable opponents, is rated as a favorite to win a fourth term. Saltonstall, however, is regarded as a sturdy underdog.

Saltonstall is conceded a chance of scoring an upset because of three reasons: 1. A Democratic tide is believed to be running. 2. He has a name which may attract some Republican support even though he is an all-out Democrat. 3. He has energetic ADA support.

Attorney Saltonstall and Senator Leverett Saltonstall are second cousins. But politically the two are poles apart, and the Senator has campaigned strenuously for the reelection of Congressman Curtis, speaking for him and issuing statements in his behalf.

Another unusual aspect to this race is that Saltonstall has never held elective office. He is a politically unknown quantity. There are no past performances by which it is possible to anticipate what he may do next Tuesday. Saltonstall has filled appointive positions of high responsibility in the federal government.

Curtis has a long public record and a good record. He is a man who devotes his entire time, effort and energy to public service. He served in the Boston City Council, both branches of the State Legislature and as State Treasurer before going to Congress. He has kept in close touch with his district and has steadily built up his strength in it.

Saltonstall, even though he has what is generally considered a Republican name, is a liberal and militant Democrat. He served as State chairman of the ADA. He has taken an active part in numerous Democratic campaigns, although this is the first time he has struck out on his own, and he has marshalled pretty solid support from most of the Democratic office-holders in the district.

Curtis should emerge a victor from the race—unless the Democratic tide is flowing with great force. And if it develops on Tuesday that the Democratic tide is so strong and so swift as to carry down to defeat GOP candidates of the stamp of Congressman Curtis and Governor's Councillor Herter, it will also leave the Republican party in Massachusetts in shambles.

Local Girl Scout Activities

Camp Mary Day was the scene of the David Neighborhood round-up of the Newton Girl Scout Council when four troops and their leaders enjoyed a cook-out on the beach, followed by teaching games and camp-craft skills. A camp fire and songs completed the enjoyable scouting event.

Mrs. Richard J. Roche was neighborhood chairman, while troop leaders included Mrs. Thomas Hayden, Mrs. Charles Munson, Mrs. David Sheprow and Mrs. Carl Highower.

Many Newton Girl Scout members attended the Newton Community Council fall meeting at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital recently. A panel discussion of hospital services, facilities and finances were presented by officers of the hospital.

Monday marked the organization of the second integrated troop in the Newton Girl Scout Council. All Girl Scouts from the fifth grade up in the Hamilton neighborhood met as one troop under the direction of Mrs. Robert Clinton.

The girls were formed into patrols under adult advisors Mrs. Buntin, Mrs. Cibotti, Mrs. Garfinkle and Mrs. Hindman for grade five, and Mrs. Robertson and Mrs. Chabot for grade six. The girls will meet Monday evenings from 6:30 to 8.

As part of the current training program for Newton Girl Scout leaders, Mrs. Norman A. Smith gave a talk on nature study for badge work and service projects for Brownies and Intermediate Girl Scouts at this month's Angier-Beethoven neighborhood meeting.

A Halloween party will be given tomorrow night (Friday) by about 15 Newton High School senior, junior and sophomore Girl Scouts at Perkins Institute. Industry Head Says Election Vital One for Massachusetts

Massachusetts will stand at the crossroads when its citizens go to the polls to vote in next Tuesday's election, President Robert W. Stoddard of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts declared in a statement issued this week.

Stoddard asserted that next Tuesday will not bring "just another election," asserting that by the votes they cast the people of Massachusetts will decide whether this Commonwealth will continue to be a leading State.

The A.I.M. president said that Massachusetts cannot be a leading State without its vital manufacturing industries. He cited facts and figures to show that nearly half the non-government jobs in this Commonwealth are in industry.

Stoddard went on to say that while industry is the backbone of the State's prosperity, providing jobs for some 700,000 persons, bills have been passed by the State Legislature and signed into law which have forced many industrial plants to close down and move elsewhere and have thrown many thousands of persons out of work.

(While Stoddard did not name any specific legislators or single out either political party, Newton's State Senator and House members repeatedly have pointed to official records to show that the votes they cast were intended to keep industry in Massachusetts and to protect the jobs of manufacturing and industrial workers.)

A.I.M. President Stoddard in his statement on the significance of Tuesday's election said:

"November 4, 1958, will be a crucial one in the history of Massachusetts."

"Election day this year is not 'just another election,' because the Bay State stands at the crossroads. And the voting citizens of this State will decide whether Massachusetts continues as a leading state, through the men and women they elect to state office, men and women who will be voting for the future of Massachusetts and the future of every citizen as well.

"Here are three facts which every citizen needs to consider before he marks his ballot:

FACT 1: Massachusetts cannot survive as a leading state, without its vital manufacturing industries. Nearly half of the non-government jobs in Massachusetts are industrial. This means that more people work in manufacturing plants than anywhere else in the State.

"FACT 2: While almost the entire State depends on industry and the 700,000 jobs which it provides, the State Legislature—by majority vote—has passed laws which make it more costly and more burdensome to operate a manufacturing plant in Massachusetts than in any other state, simply because most other States do not have such costly laws.

"FACT 3: Because of these laws, the State Legislature—by majority vote—has forced many industries to leave Massachusetts. Over 30,000 manufacturing jobs have already been lost in Massachusetts between 1947 and 1958. These are jobs lost permanently and this figure does not include temporary or seasonal layoffs. And it means that new jobs in our electronics industry are not replacing the total number of jobs lost in other kinds of industries.

"If this situation is allowed to continue, the State of Massachusetts will slide into bankruptcy and it means that the job security of every single employee in Massachusetts is at stake on Nov. 4, when the citizens of this state select the people who can do something about this crisis.

"The voters will decide this. But to decide it intelligently, they must consider factors like these:

(1) Is the candidate for further state spending programs? If he is, a vote for this candidate is a vote against Massachusetts, which already has the largest state debt of any state in this nation—$733,000,000.

(2) Is the candidate for more and more benefits in unemployment insurance and on-the-job accident insurance or workmen's compensation? If he is, a vote for this man can help to drive more industry out of the state, because Massachusetts already has the most expensive and liberal programs of this kind in the entire nation.

(3) Is the candidate for more laws designed to further restrict labor-management relations? If he is, a vote for this man will surely reduce the chances for industrial growth in Massachusetts because this state already has laws which make it more difficult to conduct a business here than in most other states.

(4) Is the candidate really concerned about your job security or is he more interested in programs designed to get more votes at election time? Most people would prefer to have the promises of bigger and better hand-outs.

"In Massachusetts, the old slogan about votes for 'labor' or votes for the 'common man' are obsolete. The candidate who sincerely wants to work for the future of the Commonwealth is the one who will protect the jobs which are still here, and on which we are so dependent, by making Massachusetts a desirable state in which to operate a business, as compared to what it costs to operate the same business in other states.

"If the voters of Massachusetts elect a State Legislature which is 'anti-business' they are electing a legislature which is anti-Massachusetts. Nearly half of the non-government jobs in the Commonwealth are at stake.

"The old slogans and the old party labels need to be reassessed. Today, it is the duty and it is in the self-interest of every citizen of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to make certain his vote is cast for the man or woman who will encourage the growth of industry in Massachusetts, regardless of party affiliation.

"That is why the election on Nov. 4 is crucial."

Heavy Bail For Postal Burglar

Paul E. Evans, 49, of Randolph, allegedly seized in the Chestnut Hill postoffice on Oct. 9, as he prepared to rob the safe in the office, was held for the grand jury in $20,000 bonds by Judge Donald E. Mayberry in Newton District Court.

Evans pleaded not guilty to breaking and entering in the night time with intent to steal and having burglar tools in his possession.

He is also being held in $15,000 bail on similar charges for a hearing in Federal Court.

Gibbs Says Jobs and Taxes Big Issues in His Campaign

State Senator Donald L. Gibbs of Newton declared today that the issues in his fight for reelection are clear-cut and extend beyond the bounds of party lines.

"If you want a Senator who has voted and will continue to vote to protect the jobs for our workers, you should cast your ballot for me," Gibbs asserted.

"If you want a Senator who will vote for the measures which are causing industrial and manufacturing plants to leave Massachusetts, throwing thousands upon thousands of men and women out of work, you should cast your ballot for my opponent," Gibbs stated.

"If you want a Senator who will vote against higher taxes—against waste and extravagance in our State government—then you should mark your ballot for me," the Newton Senator continued.

"But if you want a Senator who will vote for increased expenditures, to spend more money and, inevitably, to impose more taxes upon you, then you should mark your cross for my opponent," Gibbs asserted.

Gibbs said that the city of Newton—with 90,000 residents—should have a member in the State Senate to speak for it.

Even more important than that, however, he declared, is the sharp difference between his attitude and that of his opponent on such matters as taxes.

Senator Gibbs stated that early in his present term he recognized the seriousness of the situation which the Associated Industries of Massachusetts is now calling to the attention of Massachusetts.

"There is no question," Gibbs asserted, "of the accuracy of the statistics being presented by the Associated Industries of Massachusetts."

"That is a non-partisan organization which has no ties with either political party but which is interested in keeping business and industry in Massachusetts and in protecting the jobs of our workers."

Gibbs said that if industrial sociated Industries of Massachusetts justify beyond any dispute the votes which I have cast in the State Senate," Gibbs asserted.

"On every measure affecting business and industry in our Commonwealth I have voted to keep industry in Massachusetts and to safeguard the jobs of our workers," he said.

"Sometimes I have been criticized by unthinking persons for doing so, but it is now being made very plain that my votes were votes to protect the prosperity of our State and to preserve the jobs of our workers."

ever a plant closes down in Massachusetts every person in the Commonwealth is hurt to some degree.

Senator Gibbs, in reviewing his record, said that he has worked in behalf of the City of Newton and its residents during the past two years.

"I have voted on every measure in the way I felt would best serve the interests of the people of Newton and of Massachusetts," he said.

"I deeply appreciate the trust and confidence the people of Newton placed in me, and I have lived up to that trust."

"No member of my family has rented any station wagon to the State public works department or to any other branch of the State government," Gibbs said, "and that is a statement which my opponent is unable to make."

Gibbs said that he will continue to stand squarely and solidly against reckless spending by the State.

"What too many officials seem to forget," he added, "is that every dollar spent by the State must come out of the pockets of the people of Newton and the other cities and towns throughout Massachusetts."

"That is something I have never forgotten and never will forget."

Senator Gibbs pledged that if he is elected he will continue to vote in a manner that will protect the prosperity of Massachusetts and safeguard

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT

Every man and woman who works for a living in Massachusetts has a vital interest in the coming election.

Why this election, more than any other?

Because since January 1, 1957 a total of 21,703* jobs in Massachusetts industry have been permanently lost — because our State Legislature, over the objections of the more far-sighted members, has continued to pass laws which make it more costly and burdensome to operate a manufacturing plant in Massachusetts than in any other state.

How?

Massachusetts imposes higher taxes on corporations than any other state.

Massachusetts takes more than twice as much of its state income from taxes on business as the average taken by all other states.

Massachusetts has run up the highest state debt in the nation — a fantastic three-quarters of a billion dollars, which is larger than that of even California or New York.

The net result is that in Massachusetts these laws create a greater handicap than industries have in the other 48 states — all of which are competitors for more business and new industry.

These competitors are thus given an edge in the form of lower costs. And too often this has been enough to force our industries to pack up and move, or close down completely. Every time this happens, Massachusetts loses a little more of its economic strength.

The only effective solution — a solution which you can help bring about — is the election of state legislators who will halt this massacre of jobs in industry.

If you feel deeply about this grave situation, if you value your job security, if yours was one of the 21,703 jobs now gone, you will put an X beside the name of the candidate who:

- ☒ will view with a wary eye any proposals for new state spending programs.
- ☒ will vote against further legislation which will make it even more difficult to conduct business in Massachusetts.
- ☒ will vote for legislation which will encourage Massachusetts industry to grow, attract new industries and create new job opportunities.

If the present trend of jobs permanently lost in this state is not reversed, there will be another 21,000 jobs gone forever in the next 21 months.

The WAY you vote may save YOUR job.

Whitmore Is Lauded For His Legislative Job

Representative John W. Whitmore of Newtonville was lauded by letter this past week by the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce in appreciation of his outstanding cooperation during the current legislative session.

A letter to Representative Whitmore from William F. Malloy, legislative counsel and agent for the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, said in part, "Your votes both relating to your own community and the entire State, have indicated an awareness of the close relationship between a favorable business climate and the creation of more prosperity and more jobs." The letter further stated that "We owe you a debt of gratitude and we hope your constituents realize your fine record and your value in the State Legislature."

A few weeks ago Representative Whitmore was praised for his outstanding work in aiding the elderly. Charles C. O'Donnell, National President of the Senior Citizens and Associates of America cited Representative Whitmore for his outstanding support of legislation designed to make life a little more pleasant for our retired elders in the twilight of their lives.

Representative Whitmore has long been active in civic work in the City of Newton before he was elected to represent Wards 1-2-3 and 7 of the City of Newton in the State Legislature.

He has been a resident of Newton for over 30 years and has been a most active citizen. He was a member of the

JOHN W. WHITMORE

Board of Aldermen for four years under the present Mayor or as Alderman at Large from Ward two. In this capacity he served on many committees, some of which were Public Works and the Municipal Parking Committee. On being elected to the State Legislature two years ago he led the ticket over all the candidates for this office in the primary. Again this year in his bid for re-election, he was way out front of every other candidate for State Representative from Wards 1-2-3 and 7.

His attendance record at the State House is one to be proud of. He has also been very active during the past two years in the State House as a member of the Aeronautics Committee.

In business life, Representative Whitmore is the secretary-treasurer of the Eastern Commercial Travelers Accident and Health Association. He is also executive secretary of the International Federation of Commercial Travelers Insurance Organizations.

Representative Whitmore vigorously opposed the Toll

Road coming through the Heart of Boston which would divide the City and necessitate the rebuilding of churches as well as the re-location of families, that are located along the route of the New York Central Railroad.

In his bid for re-election for a second term, Representative Whitmore has stated that he will continue to work for the interest of his City and State. He has long been interested in the youth of the City, and since the start of Little League baseball he has sponsored a team. He has also been very active in the Halloween celebration in the City that the youth of Newton may have every opportunity to share in the fun.

Representative Whitmore is a member of the Newtonville Improvement Association; a Director of the Ward 2 Republican Committee; a member of the Newton and Boston Chamber of Commerce; a member of the Newton Republican Club, Middlesex Club and the Ancient and Honorable Artillery.

Representative and Mrs. Whitmore reside at 43 Otis street, Newtonville.

Rapid Growth Of Fair Housing Committee Reported in Newton

The amazing rapid growth of an active committee of Newton citizens to help insure the community's being one where fair housing practices prevail was described to the Housing Study Group of the United Church Women of Newton last Friday morning by Mrs. C. Leon Hopper, Jr., secretary of the committee. This was the third in the series of meetings conducted at the Union Church in Waban, by Representative Irene Thresher, chairman of Christian Social Relations for the United Church Women.

"Last spring a group of citizens came together to discuss the need for such a committee," Mrs. Hopper said. "There were people of many races, varying religious backgrounds, different points of view. There were business men, teachers, college professors, religious leaders, politicians, and housewives. We decided a Newton Citizens' Committee on Fair Housing Practices was needed, and we defined it as a committee dedicated to enabling any person of good character to secure housing without restrictions based on race, religion, or national background. Now, just a few months later, the committee is functioning, with active, working sub-committees headed by concerned and dedicated people."

Co-chairmen of the main committee are former Senator Richard H. Lee, an attorney, and Samuel Turner, a Newton teacher.

Mrs. Hopper spoke briefly of the six main sub-committees. Heading the one to work with realtors are Dr. Paul Deas, professor at Boston University School of Theology, and Mr. William Jones of the Harvard faculty. Careful studies in many other places have shown that it is a myth to believe that allowing members of a minority group to move into established neighborhoods will pull down real estate values.

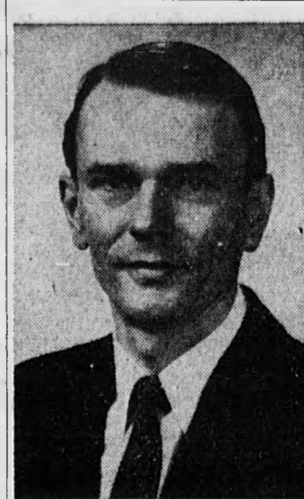

"Occasionally," Mrs. Hopper warned, "When one family from a minority group moves into a neighborhood, irresponsible real estate dealers, frequently from outside the community, will try to start a 'scare' campaign. In such cases, there few unscrupulous dealers will telephone neighbors of the new family, try to frighten them into selling their homes quickly for a low price in the fear that values may drop. Then the irresponsible dealer will resell the property at a profit. I believe," Mrs. Hopper assured the group, "that Newton is too sophisticated and sensible a community for this sort of thing to happen."

The sub-committee on public awareness, headed by Dr. Donald E. Bowen, is making a careful survey of minority group housing in Newton. Another sub-committee, headed by Mrs. John C. Campbell and Mr. Luther Manning, Jr., is listing Newton property for sale on an unrestricted basis. Those wishing to find property in Newton should register their needs with this committee.

Chester Smith and Mrs. Ruth Salinger are heading a sub-committee to smooth out any tensions which might arise in developing fair housing practices. Another sub-committee will look into discrimination in financing. The sixth sub-committee on Legislative Action is being formed with Mr. S. Roy Remar, attorney, as chairman.

Mrs. Hopper announced an open forum, "Integration and Our Suburbs," sponsored by the Fair Housing Practices Committees of Newton, Natick and Wellesley on Nov. 13 at Dana Hall School in Wellesley.

Next week the United Church Women will hear Dr. William C. Loring, Jr., of Wellesley, who will tell them what church and social groups in many places have done to help provide moderate-priced, attractive housing for senior citizens.

SPEAKER—The Rev. Dr. David M. Stone, former missionary in China, and present educational secretary of American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, will speak at the First Church (Congregational), Newton Centre, Sunday, November 2, at 11 a.m.

Rep. Rawson Seeks Reelection On Record of Public Service

Representative George E. Rawson today pointed to an impressive record of public service as he asked reelection to the House of Representatives from the 4th Middlesex district which takes in Wards 1, 2, 3 and 7 of Newton.

Rawson, who has served 16 years on Beacon Hill and is rated as an expert on many forms of legislation, pointed out that he has acquired a "know-how" which is valuable to his district and its people.

GEORGE E. RAWSON

The energetic Newton legislator opposed the Toll Road Act of 1952 at its very inception, because he believed that it provided too broad a grant of power and that it would eventually lead to trouble. He declared then that he was against giving so much authority to anyone.

Representative Rawson has been in the forefront of many fights in behalf of Newton and its citizens. He battled proposals for the construction of the turnpike through Newton because of the serious damage and destruction it would cause in the city.

Rawson was one of the leaders in the drive to prevent the abandonment of the Highland Branch of the Boston & Albany railroad.

He has fought tooth and nail against measures which have damaged the business climate in Massachusetts and have caused many industrial firms to leave the State, throwing thousands of men and women out of work.

Rawson is the senior member and former chairman of two important legislative committees—the committee on election laws and the committee on public safety.

A recognized authority on the election laws, Rawson was the author of the "Corrupt Practices Act" of 1946 and the Pre-Primary Convention Act of 1953. He also was House chairman of a recession commission which made a careful study of the election and presidential primary laws.

He was co-author of the Public Safety Act of 1943, adopted following the Coconut Grove disaster, was sponsor of the elevator safety acts of 1956-57 and sponsor of the new law adopted last year covering firearms and other dangerous weapons.

Under Rawson's guidance and direction, many revisions and improvements have been written into the election, building safety and fire prevention laws. He also has been active in the enactment of legislation beneficial to veterans.

Rawson was one of the leaders in the fight to block the imposition of proposed taxes on savings and cooperative banks and also on the Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

He has been an advocate of economy in government and a consistent critic of any form of waste and extravagance.

A large number of Newton residents this week joined in endorsing his candidacy, publicly expressing the opinion that his record of public service warrants his reelection and his retention in office.

Why new 1959 Cars of The Forward Look can do what they look like they can do

The smell of a new car is heady stuff.

And when it's a new 1959 Car of The Forward Look, the beauty of it makes it tough to be hard-headed.

But the best part comes next—These cars are engineered to be driven.

Here's why they can do what they look like they can do:

All the controls are at your fingertips. The pushbutton driving controls are all in one handy cluster of buttons, just under your left hand. (Easy for you to get at—keeps your right hand on the wheel. And the youngsters can't reach 'em!) Another set of buttons to your right controls the heater and air conditioning. And instruments on the new panel are where you can see them, without looking too far away from the road.

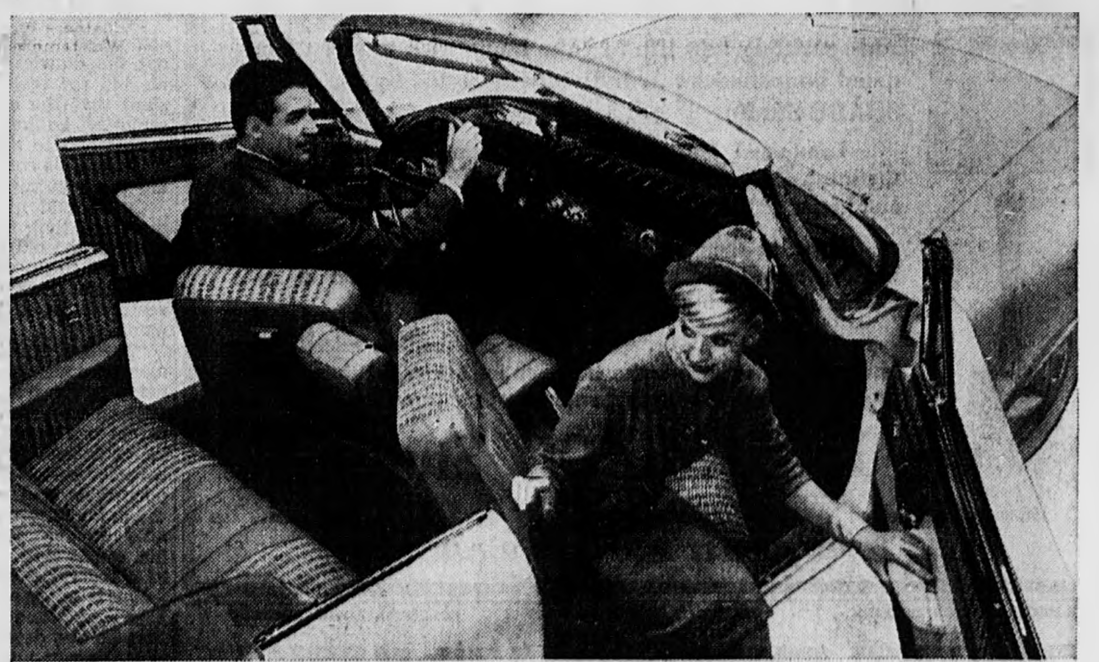

The steering works for you full time. We call it Constant-Control full-time power steering, because it doesn't just "cut in" at sharp turns, the way some power steering does. Ours helps you all the time, so you have a constant, steady "feel of the road." It makes these the best-driving cars in America.

They don't bob their noses or scrape their tails when you stop and start fast... and they take corners flat and steady as if they were on rails. Only the cars from Chrysler Corporation have Torsion-Aire Ride. It gives you a firm, sure-footed ride, even over railroad tracks and rough country roads. (For '59 you can get The Forward Look cars with added air units in the rear. This gives you automatic leveling—so even if you have a heavy load in back, the car rides level.)

The seats swivel to let you in and out. These are the easiest cars you've ever seen to get in and out of. As you can see in the picture, the seats turn like an office chair, on noiseless nylon bearings. They lock in place while you drive—and adjust to suit your driving comfort. Our new, roomier body design for '59 gives you extra head and knee room besides—especially in back.

Constant-Control full-time power steering. Steering that works for you full time, never has that "on-and-off" feeling—makes parking easier than ever before.

New swivel seats, available only on Cars of The Forward Look, make them the easiest cars to get in and out of you ever saw Mirror and headlights adjust themselves for night driving. You've never driven a car that did so much to make you feel secure at night! The headlights dim automatically when another car approaches from up front. And the rear-vision mirror adjusts itself electronically to take the glare out of lights coming at you from behind.

A few of the other safety features: an outside fender mirror you can adjust from inside the car... electric windshield wipers that don't slow to a gasp on hills or when you step out to pass... Safety-Rim Wheels designed to keep the tire from jumping the rim if you ever have a blowout.

New Mirror-Matic Electronic Mirror and Automatic Beam Changer give you new night driving security.

Compound windshields that sweep all the way across and curve up into the top of the car, so you have clear, unobstructed vision—can even see overhead signals. And there's safety glass in every window.

New power up front—and brakes with the muscle to hold it. You may remember that Chrysler Corporation cars walked off with top performance honors in the famous Mobilgas Economy Run for the past two years straight—with every other major car in America pitted against them. The new '59 models are available with new engines—even better than those that set the pace in 1957 and 1958!

And they've got the brakes to go with 'em—Total-Contact brakes. Two hydraulic cylinders up front, where other cars have only one. And the brake makes contact all the way around the drum—not just part of the way, as in other cars. Touch the brake pedal—and you STOP.

The Look that started the trend is handsomer than ever in cars of The Forward Look for '59. There's no mistaking them on the road, with their true aerodynamic design that helps keep them steady on the road.

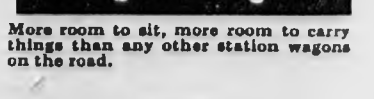

And to protect their looks, new "Lustre-Bond" super-enamel finishes, so tough and glossy, a light wash and wipe makes your car look like you spent the whole weekend polishing. Inside—new textured upholstery is more durable and beautiful than ever before.

And the quality of workmanship built into these cars is apparent everywhere you look—inside and out. America's biggest, best-looking wagons. We build our wagons family-size, with more sitting and carrying room than any others.

More Chrysler Corporation pioneered features too—third seat that faces back, spare tire hidden in the fender, window that rolls down into the tailgate, seats that fold flat to the floor in less time than it takes you to read this sentence.

More room to sit, more room to carry things than any other station wagons on the road.

Take a new 1959 Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto, Chrysler or Imperial and put it through its paces. Pick the roads you know are toughest. One drive will convince you—these are the cars that can do what they look like they can do!

Mrs. Manley Albright, wife of the late Rev. Manley Albright, the minister of the Allston Congregational Church for 30 years, will speak on a "Trip Through Our Missions in Africa" at the monthly meeting of the Women's Benevolent Society of the First Church, Congregational, in Newton Centre on Tuesday at 1:15 p.m.

This past summer Mrs. Albright, on a tour of Congregational African missions, spent a week at Lambarene as the guest of Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the world famed humanist, had a visit with Ndabaningi Sithole, a former worker at First Church, and visited Ghana.

Mrs. Herbert G. Farnum and Mrs. Carter H. Hoyt are the luncheon hostesses and Mrs. Frank J. Hill will conduct the worship service.

Congressman Curtis Is Praised By Saltonstall, Herter, Martin

Congressman Laurence Curtis' record of service to the people of his district during the past six years was warmly praised today by a number of outstanding public leaders and spokesmen for veteran organizations as they urged the reelection of Curtis on next Tuesday.

Those paying high tribute to Curtis included U. S. Senator Leverett Saltonstall, former Governor and present Under Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, who preceded Curtis as the Congressman in the 10th district, Congressional Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, Jr., and National Commander David B. Williams of the Disabled American Veterans.

Each of them expressed the conviction that Curtis has done an outstanding job in Congress and that his reelection would be in the public interest.

Said National Commander Williams of the Disabled American Veterans: "Larry Curtis is an active veteran, a Legionnaire and a past National Senior Vice Commander of the Disabled American Veterans. His sound Americanism is beyond reproach. We need him in Congress."

Congressional Minority Leader Martin stated: "Larry Curtis has given a fine account of himself in Congress. He has won the esteem and respect of his colleagues as an able and hard-working member of that body, and was recently promoted to the important Committee on Foreign Affairs."

Former Governor Herter said: "When I left Congress in 1952, I had every confidence that Laurence Curtis' experience and ability would enable him to render outstanding service as my successor in Congress from the 10th district. My confidence in him has been fully justified."

Declared Senator Leverett Saltonstall: "I strongly endorse Laurence Curtis for reelection to Congress. His integrity, character, intelligence and capacity for public service, coupled with his experience in both the state government and the Congress, make his continued service in Congress of value to every citizen of the 10th district and throughout the Commonwealth."

"He has a distinguished war record of active service during which he was seriously injured. He has a full and sensitive understanding of the problems of our veterans."

"I hope that the voters of the 10th district will join with me in support of his candidacy and reelect him for another term which he has earned by excellent service to the district and its people," Senator Saltonstall stated.

Congressman Curtis, who campaigned actively throughout his district this week in his bid for reelection, emphasized that the experience and seniority he has gained will enable him to be of increased service to his constituents during the next two years.

Curtis told his listeners at meetings that there is great truth in the old political proverb that the people of a congressional district have an investment in their Congressman.

"The fact is that a Congressman becomes increasingly valuable to the people of his district as he acquires additional experience and seniority," Curtis explained. "As he attains a better understanding of the operations and procedures of the national government, he is able to be more help to his constituents on problems of a federal nature."

Curtis stressed that he has been a full-time Congressman, that he has devoted his entire time, energy and attention to his congressional duties and to serving the people of the 10th district.

On commenting on his own platform, Curtis said that the most vital issue before the country today is how best to maintain the national security and the world peace "in the face of the new Soviet political, diplomatic and economic threat."

"I favor a strong national defense and collective security, and have supported the President's policies," Congressman Curtis stated.

"On the home front," Curtis said, "we must consolidate and improve measures relating to health, education, welfare and slum clearance, with due regard to the rights and duties of the states and local government. In this age of abundance, the long-fought battle against poverty must be relentlessly waged."

Curtis announced that he will continue to fight for civil rights, for equal opportunity for all citizens, for the end of segregation, and for a fairer immigration law.

"Problems of special interest to Massachusetts and the 10th district always receive my undivided attention," Curtis declared. "These include reasonable protection of local industries and securing for Massachusetts its rightful share in federal programs relative to highways and other projects."

As he neared the close of his campaign, Curtis said that he is standing for reelection on his legislative record in Congress and on his record of unwavering personal attention to the needs of the 10th district and its people.

"It has been my privilege to represent the 10th district in Congress for the past six years," he said. "My legislative work and my incessant, untiring personal attention to the needs of the 10th district and its people are a matter of record. On the strength of that record I most respectfully ask for reelection and the privilege of serving the citizens of the 10th district and their Congress for the next two years," Curtis said.

Dr. Ell's Portrait To Be Re-Touched

A portrait of Dr. Carl S. Ell of Newtonville, retiring president of Northeastern University, has been returned to noted painter Alfred Jonnaux for improvement. The portrait which was to have been unveiled at a testimonial banquet at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel, Boston, was considered by some of the N.U. trustees as making Dr. Ell appear "too elderly."

Federal Post For Dr. P. B. Everett

Dr. P. Bernard Everett, director of instruction in the Newton public school system, has been named chairman of the regional interviewing committee on teacher exchange by Dr. C. C. Axvall of the Division of International Education of the State Department.

Dr. Everett attended a conference last weekend in Washington to meet others cooperating in implementing the International Educational Exchange Program.

His Committee submits a report to the Office of Education after a personal interview with each candidate. The committee evaluates the teacher's ability to meet people effectively; his purpose in seeking a grant to teach abroad, and his probable adaptability to live in another country.

CAMPAGNING FOR THE REELECTION of Congressman Laurence Curtis, right, is U. S. Senator Leverett Saltonstall, left. "We need Laurence Curtis in Congress," Saltonstall told gatherings at meetings this week. The two were photographed shaking hands in front of a campaign poster showing Curtis' portrait.

N.H.S. Swaps Its Weekly With Soviet Magazine

You can pick up a copy of the Newton High School Weekly publications "The Newtonite" if you happen to be in Moscow and happen to drop in on the offices of the Soviet's "Friendship Magazine."

"The Newtonite," you see, gets around. On its mailing list are schools in Juneau, Alaska; Taipei, Formosa, and Melbourne and Rosebud, Australia.

This year it has penetrated the Iron Curtain mainly through the enterprise of Miss Patricia Donahue, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Donahue, 2352 Washington street, Newton Lower Falls. Pat is the exchange editor of "The Newtonite."

Last Spring Pat and John Harper were discussing ways and means of getting an exchange of publication with some high school level groups on the other side of the Iron Curtain. That led to a swap of letters with the Russian embassy in Washington.

It developed that the Russians have no high school publications similar to those in this country. They did, however, have a publication in English called the "Friendship Magazine." A final OK came through for the exchange.

"Friendship" features articles on John Reed, the American who participated in the 1917 Russian revolution, a very slanted fairy tale obviously patterned after Robin Hood and, of course, some very self-satisfied references to Sputnik.

Difference between the two publications is quickly obvious. "The Newtonite" is by young people for young people.

Local People At Hub Fall Meet

Four Newton residents will take part in the Nov. 1 Fall Conference of the New England Camping Assn. at the Hotel Statler-Hilton.

Mrs. Barbara Learoyd of Clarke avenue, Auburndale, is executive-secretary of the association.

Other local delegates include Dr. Joel Bloom of Annawan road, Waban, Vern Harper of Freeman street, Newton, and E. M. Clarke of Mossfield road.

Dr. Bloom is director of Camp Powhatan, Oxford, Me.

Harper is associate secretary of the New England Area, YMCA, and directs Camp Becket in the Berkshires.

Clarke is principal of Bowes School and affiliated with the summer session of the Harvard Graduate School of Education.

Edw. J. Sullivan In Strong Bid For Court Post

Edward J. Sullivan, former Cambridge mayor, has been waging a strong campaign for the office of Clerk of Courts in Middlesex County.

Always a powerful vote-getter, Sullivan polled more than 200,000 votes for this job in 1952, only to lose by a small margin in the Republican sweep.

This time, he has carried his campaign into virtually every town and city in the county.

A life-long Cambridge resident, Sullivan is serving his fifth two-year term in the city council. He has topped the council ticket in the last three municipal elections and by council vote served as the city's mayor in 1956 and 1957.

The September primary indicated Sullivan's popularity in his home city of Cambridge. In a nine-man field, he received 10,547 of the 15,760 Democratic votes cast. He won the county nomination by a 11,127-vote margin over his closest rival.

Sullivan is a veteran of four years' service with the Navy Seabees during World War II. He is president of the Sullivan and Twomey Insurance Co. of Cambridge and Belmont, and president of the M. A. Sullivan Trucking Co. of Cambridge.

chamber" for a moment?
Don't be frightened... we're just referring to the series of rigorous tests your TV set goes through before it leaves the manufacturer's premises. To check its quality and performance under adverse conditions, the receiver is taken right from the production line and hooked up in this specially-constructed testing room. And "torture chamber" is an apt description. The receiver is operated in 100-degree temperatures and at 100 per cent humidity. Then, after it cools down, it is operated at below-zero temperatures.
That isn't all. The set must now go to a "shake table," where it is vibrated vigorously to be sure that it is built properly and that there are no loose connections or parts.
Everything is done to guarantee the best possible reception.
Of course, the manufacturer has no control over receiving conditions in your particular location... but it stands to reason that the same careful attention should be given to the adjustment and installation of the set in a specific place... making sure the right antenna is used and in the right place... and that the set is accurately tuned to receiving conditions in the home.
All this detailed attention is doubly important when you choose your new color TV set... so be certainly careful to choose it from the equipment and the desire to

American Education Week—Nov. 9-15

Public Schools Preserve Democracy And Provide Opportunity For All

By ERIC N. DENNARD
Superintendent of Schools

Two basic reasons for the founding of the public schools of America were: (1) the preservation and perpetuation of a democratic form of government; and (2) to provide as nearly as possible the maximum opportunity for each individual youth to grow and develop mentally, physically, spiritually, socially, and emotionally, in keeping with his capacity.

Education is a bed rock cornerstone in the growth of America. The people of no other nation have used education so extensively in developing a democratic and humanistic way of life.

Each year finds a larger per cent of school-age youth enrolled in the elementary and secondary schools and colleges and universities of America. According to the Report of the President's Commission on Education Beyond the High School, more than 40,000,000 adults in this country are enrolled in some formalized course in education. Approximately 50% of the population of America goes to school. The people believe in education.

With the rapid growth of school attendance of both youth and adults, it is no wonder that the American people should be assessing and evaluating educational programs, personnel and facilities more carefully. In terms of the number participating, education is the biggest business in America.

American Education Week is sponsored by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, the American Legion, and the National Education Association. This year the week of November 9-15 has been designated for this important observance. Community, from the largest city to the smallest hamlet, will open its classrooms to the people.

Since Newton is in the heart of the birthplace of American education it is both appropriate and obligatory that we give special recognition to Education Week. Open houses, assemblies, poster displays, and other means will serve as part of the observance. We extend a very special invitation to every voter, taxpayer, and parent to visit one or more classrooms to see his school program in action.

The program seeks to obtain 100 per cent compliance with the city's food sanitary code. In cases where improvements are indicated necessary by inspectors' reports a re-inspection will be conducted three weeks later.

No licenses are issued or renewed by the licensing Commission without the approval of the Health Department.

Federal Officials Commend Herter's Legal Background

Governor's Counsellor Christian A. Herter, Jr., Republican candidate for Attorney General, declared today that his opponent has repeatedly refused to answer questions regarding his qualifications for the office he is seeking or concerning the events which transpired at the Democratic pre-primary convention last June.

At the same time Herter, in one of his final appeals for support at the polls next Tuesday, reviewed his own public record in the House of Representatives, the Governor's Council and as general counsel for the Foreign Operations Administration.

As Herter neared the close of a long and vigorous campaign, a large group of noted attorneys warmly praised his legal ability, top federal officials paid high tribute to the job he did for two years as counsel for the Foreign Operations Administration and leading spokesmen for veteran organizations called attention to his "outstanding war record."

U. S. Senator Leverett Saltonstall and Congressman Richard B. Wigglesworth and William H. Bates joined in a statement asserting that Washington authorities were tremendously impressed by the legal talents, the ability to grasp complicated problems and the unwavering integrity Herter demonstrated while general counsel for the For-ign Operations Administration.

They said that Herter proved by his work in that position that he is capable of doing an outstanding job for the people of Massachusetts as their Attorney General.

Meanwhile, Herter sharply criticized his opponent for remaining silent concerning charges which were levelled against him by members of his own party.

"Former Governor's Counsellor Endicott Peabody charged publicly that supporters of my opponent attempted to buy and steal votes at the Democratic pre-primary convention last June," Herter asserted. "Mr. Peabody said that delegates were corrupted and coerced."

"Mr. Peabody was quoted in the newspapers as charging that the supporters of my opponent forced the adjournment of the first session of the Democratic convention at Mechanics Building in order to give them a second opportunity to obtain what they were unable to buy or steal at the opening session."

"Former Representative Joseph D. Ward charged that an attempt was made to rig the convention."

"Those allegations were not made by me," Herter asserted. "They were made by Democratic leaders — by members of the same political party as my opponent."

"But I believe that any man asking the voters to elect him as the Attorney General and the chief law officer of this Commonwealth has a moral obligation to answer those charges," Herter declared.

Governor's Counsellor Herter, who is seeking election as the next Attorney General, was the top Republican vote-getter in the September primary.

He is 39 years old, married and the father of three children, and is an honor graduate of Harvard College and the Harvard Law School.

Herter is a combat and decorated veteran of World War II. He entered the army a private and came out of the service with the rank of major and with several decorations for valor, including the Croix de Guerre and the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster.

He was wounded in action while serving with the 14th Armored Division, and the Purple Heart was conferred upon him.

Herter is regarded as one of the outstanding young public leaders in either political party in Massachusetts.

In one of his closing appeals for support at the polls next Tuesday, Herter offered assurances to the voters of Massachusetts that he has no entanglements with any political machine.

"I pledge to the people of our Commonwealth," he said, "that if they elect me as their Attorney General next Tuesday, I will serve them with honor, integrity and to the utmost of my ability and will do everything within my power to see that their safety and security is protected and that they receive justice on all matters."

About the same number of persons were killed in auto accidents in 1937 as 21 years previously, according to the National Safety Council. However, the number of deaths per 100 million the mileage death rate (number of deaths per 100 million vehicle miles) dropped from 15.1 to 5.9 in 1957.

Gibbons Makes Six Indictments Against Present Administration

Charles Gibbons, candidate for Governor, today summarized the major issues of the present campaign as workers began the final steps to election day next Tuesday.

In urging Massachusetts citizens to vote November 4, Gibbons said, "six major indictments of the present administration should be kept in mind by all voters".

CHARLES GIBBONS

On taxes: "It is certain that after election day, the Governor will seek to impose new and drastic taxes to pay for his 'paper palaces' and to meet current state needs," Gibbons said.

The business climate: "More than 100 vital industries have already left the State, creating a vacuum where there should be job opportunities. (Their loss must be made up in taxes by those who remain)," Gibbons added.

Spending: "The present administration has already spent more money than any other in our history—mainly to create a vast machine concerned solely with the Governor's re-election. This has led to a serious drain on revenues which should, by law, be allocated to cities and towns."

Housing for the elderly: "The present Governor persists in taking credit for a program begun under the administration of former Governor Herter and passed by the legislature while I was Speaker of the House."

Suppression of public records: "The present Governor has willfully suppressed far too many vital facts which, when made public, will reveal the extent of the political skulduggery which has been so flagrant during his administration."

On patronage: "In appointing ill-equipped political cronies to public office, the present Governor has seriously weakened government and forced state employees to face the threat of payless paydays and lack of direction from their bosses who work only for the Governor's re-election," Gibbons said.

"All through the present regime, we see ample evidence of the Governor's often quoted dictum: 'spend now — think later'," Gibbons emphasized.

In his statement to voters Gibbons outlined a carefully prepared program to "Restore decency to government and end the financial irresponsibility of the present administration."

"We must cut spending and learn to live within our income," Gibbons said. "We

State Derives Millions From Pari-Mutuels

One of the questions which will appear on the ballot in next Tuesday's election is whether the pari-mutuel system of betting on licensed horse and dog racing will be continued in Massachusetts.

Those urging a "Yes" vote on that question point out that the State would lose millions of dollars in taxes it now receives annually from those services in the highly improbable event that horse or dog racing should be outlawed.

Following are some of the reasons why they urge that legalized horse and dog racing be continued:

Since the year of its inception in 1935, Massachusetts racing has provided the following:

1. Pari-mutuel revenue to the Commonwealth amounting to $160,000,000.
2. Additional state, local and Federal taxes totaling $48,250,000.
3. 1953 Worcester Tornado Relief Fund from racing: $750,000.
4. Donations to recognized charities: $3,300,000.
5. Employment for 4100 persons annually.
6. Wages and salaries amounting to $47,500,000.
7. Entertainment for 70,750,000 patrons.

Massachusetts racing with its outstanding stakes events attracted thousands of tourists to the state each week of the racing season. Through the years millions of tourist dollars have been spent in hotels, restaurants, department stores, and other business establishments, as a direct result of the national publicity Massachusetts receives from these prominent stakes events, the supporters pointed out.

must recreate a business climate which will restore the faith in Massachusetts industry and encourage others to locate here. Business and wage earners alike must be assured of 100 cents in service for each tax dollar. I will abolish the present system of hiring personnel by political whim."

"Finally," Gibbons observed, "the rental or hiring of non-state equipment must be free from the taint of influence and politics."

In conclusion Gibbons asserted that a continuance of the present administration "will lead irrevocably to a disaster that our grandchildren will still be paying for in the next century".

According to the Navy's "Hurricane Hunters," hurricanes normally move at a speed of 10 to 20 miles per hour, but they may travel much slower, particularly when changing course.

McCormack Blasts at Herter On Federal Agency Contract

Attorney General Edward J. McCormack, Jr., today disputed his opponents claims to "decency and justice" and to being "a man you can trust."

McCormack lashed out at Christian A. Herter, Jr., in connection with the award of a contract by the Foreign Operations Administration for the construction of a grain elevator in Pakistan.

"My opponent Christian A. Herter, Jr. made a deliberate misrepresentation of facts to me and to a television audience (in the course of a debate with me on Monday, October 20th, 1958)," McCormack said. "In that debate" asked my opponent to explain why as General Counsel to the Foreign Operations Administration he approved a foreign aid contract accepting a high bid of 2½ million dollars, a million dollars higher than the lowest responsible bidder, submitted by a phantom corporation, a company formed the day the bids were opened. He denied that he was General Counsel on the day this contract was approved.

"He suggested that I acquaint myself with the facts. I did that before making my accusation. Now let me acquaint him with the facts."

"He was named General Counsel to the Foreign Operations Administration in September, 1954. As such, he had to review and approve contracts."

"Bids for the construction of the grain elevators arrived in Washington on October 6, 1954. The decision to award the contract to the phantom corporation, the highest bidder, was made December 22, 1954."

"I submit that my opponent was General Counsel of the FOA during that period and that he knew the phantom corporation was the high bidder, that it was a Los Angeles firm but had incorporated itself in Delaware — with only $1,000 in assets — and that it was formed practically the day the bids were opened."

EDW. J. MCCORMACK, JR.

"The fact is, therefore, that my opponent, Christian A. Herter, Jr., approved a proposal that would have cost the taxpayers close to $1,000,000 more than necessary on a bid of less than $2,500,000."

"Is this decency? Is this justice? Is this the man you can trust?"

"Fortunately, the Senate Committee on Government Operations forced the rejection of the bid and saved the taxpayers' money — but not without opposition from my Republican opponent. He not only absented himself from the Senate Committee hearings — he refused to allow a subordinote to accept an invitation to appear before the Committee.

"The subordinate, Howard P. Morrison, had to be subpoenaed and then testified that he didn't agree with the award of the contract to the high bidder."

"Doesn't that seem like a good reason for my opponent's refusal to permit Morrison to testify?" McCormack asked.

"The operation of the Foreign Operations Administration during the period of my opponent's tenure as General Counsel was described by the House Committee on Government Operations as 'inadequate, inefficient and incompetent.'"

"As a consequence," the committee declared, "achievement of the objectives of the foreign aid program has been impeded, the cost to the U. S. taxpayer has been increased and the dignity and prestige of the U. S. government abroad have suffered."

"This is a sample of what the Commonwealth of Massachusetts would be subject to if my opponent were elected Attorney General," McCormack declared.

Scholarship To Paul C. Bassen

Paul C. Bassen of 128 Warren street, Newton, has entered Harvard University to do graduate work in philosophy on a Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship. He graduated in June 1958 from Cornell University.

He is one of the thousand prospective college teachers in the United States and Canada who are entering graduate school this fall as Woodrow Wilson Fellows.

Mr. Bassen entered college intending to become expert in some phase of zoology. He found a job in his spare time, assisting a Ph.D. candidate to keep a collection of field mice and opossums for use in experiments. During his second year at Cornell, his interests changed from animal life to philosophy and literature, which he plans to study at graduate school in preparation for a career in college teaching.

He was on the Varsity Debating team as a sophomore, and devoted much of his later extracurricular time to the Cornell Writer, of which he was managing editor in his senior year.

John Harvey Set To Retain Post As Probate Register

John V. Harvey, Register of Probate in Middlesex County, is waging an active campaign for re-election on Tuesday. A career man, he served as assistant register before assuming the leadership of the business Probate office in the Commonwealth.

The father of two children, the 34-year-old Register makes his home in Belmont. He was graduated from Boston College, Boston University Law School, and the Babson Institute. Harvey became an assistant Register of Probate in September of 1953, four years before his elevation to the top post. The register of probate is the official custodian of records concerning wills, estates, adoptions, guardianships and similar matters. He also handles the probate court trial list.

At Boston College, Harvey was a hockey and golf star and is considered one of the leading amateur golfers in the state. He served during the war with the 26th Infantry Division in France and Germany and was awarded the purple heart. A lawyer, Harvey scored a plurality of 27,000 in the primary election last September.

By JUDY ARNOLD

HIGHLIGHTS... Sophomores are making the news as they head into their first major events of the year. Primary elections for their officers were recently held. Last Thursday the winners of those elections spoke at the sophomore assembly. Final elections will be held soon. Running for president are Peter Sahlin, Richard Aborn, Hiram Gordon, and John Bilczkian. Mark Peters, Sue Glickman and Ray Frieden, are competing for vice-president. Campaigning for secretary are Peter McKenney, Elaine Shapiro, Diana Berg, Levenson, Diane Averbuck, and Peter Lynch are the candidates for Treasurer. Frances Witly, Stephen Egbert, Carol Jagers and Robin Kaufman are the choices thus far for Associate Representative. Heading the assembly was Steve Kaufman, chairman of the election committee for the Civics Committee.

A special event for the sophomores was planned earlier in the year by the Legislature Dance Committee, headed by Hal Cohen. It was the annual get-acquainted sophomore dance. Larry Yeo greeted the students and an afternoon of games, dancing, and cheers was led by members of the Senior Class, Tigerama, and Dance Committees.

Sponsoring the activities at the half-time in the Newton-Watertown football game during the Homecoming Week-end were Paul Daly, Al Maycock, Geoff Davidson, Bob Levenson, Bob Neilson, Steve Wolf, Marilyn Saltz, Goldy McCullough, Sue Williams, Mary Auryansen, and Faith Copeland working under the leadership of the senior class officers and Miss South. Imitations of past cheerleaders were given by Mary Ellen DeStefano, Sue Fowler, Judy Dean, and Robin Marsh. The speakers included Mayor Whitmore, Alfred Stafford, Julius Kohler, and Bill Doyle. Mr. Doran and the band provided the musical atmosphere. And a special feature was the introduction of several past football captains who participated in a short football exhibition. The ex-captains represented various classes from 1892-1952.

Last week a Scholarship Qualifying Test was administered to about 70 seniors. The test will be used by several national and local groups for giving out scholarships to members of this year's graduating class. JOTS AND DASHES... The Newtonite, after a good deal of effort, made plans to exchange an issue with a Soviet journal. Although no newspapers are printed by school in Russia, this monthly magazine is published in English by a youth organization to help the study of English at the Russian schools and, according to the Russians, "to contribute to the growth of friendship between our youngsters and the young people of the English speaking world." The Newtonite has already received the magazine.

THE OUT DOOR TYPE... For the first time, Newton High has opened membership in its rifle club to girls as well as to boys. Karin Jansen is the first female member of the group. Karin is the club's secretary this year. Barry Wish is the president; John Derr the Treasurer; and Philip Phillips and Robert Shriberg the vice-presidents. All the members shoot five hours a week. The top ten shooters, as determined by these practice sessions, will constitute the Rifle Team which will be chosen in another few weeks. The faculty advisor of this club is now Mr. Willard, although it has been under Mr. Ethier's guidance in past years. Mr. Ethier was forced to resign because of his many new responsibilities as head of the French Department. This club develops skills with the rifle for its members. All practices are held at the Newton Armory, and securing N.R.A. awards, attending the Legion Tournament, and the annual outing are some of its major activities in addition to the regular practice sessions.

Field hockey teams have recently been selected for the girls. The varsity members are Betty Anderson, Elina Anderson, Flora Butterfield, Jan Capello, Caryl Crosby, Nancy Doherty, Katie Evans, Debbie Greene, Pat Greene, Joan Meyer, Diane Rote, Priscilla Watts, Andrea Wragg, and the manager of the team, Sue Cotter. Mabel Ashenfelter, Barbara Bobbin, Ginna Barnes, Charlotte Conrod, Sally Erickson, Ruth Goran, Marie Hawkes, Ann Jarrell, Jean McGuffin, Linda Merrill, Vicki Moran, Barbara Parkhurst, Bonnie Schlossberg, and Kathy Tom are the players on the junior varsity team. The girls compete with other schools' hockey teams.

The Aviation Club officers this year are Frank Dahl, president; Frank Manley, secretary; and Robert Heckman, treasurer. This group functions to teach boys to fly. It has been doing this for thirty years.

"Book Week" To Start Monday

Although boys and girls explore the wonderful world of books all through the year at the Children's Libraries in Newton, next week will be a special one as Book Week will be observed at that time.

During the observance, colorful posters will call attention to many of the fine books that have been published for children and young people during 1958. Old favorites that have survived the test of time will also be on display.

Parents, teachers and boys and girls from kindergarten to junior high are invited to see the new books. The main Boys and Girls Library at 120 Vernon street in Newton will be open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Most of Newton's branch libraries children's rooms will be open each weekday from 1 to 5:30 p.m. The library staff has issued an invitation to one and all to visit your nearest library during Book Week.

Epilepsy Will Be Discussed Monday

On Monday at 3:30 p.m. Dr. Bernard A. Berman of the Seizure Unit, Children's Medical Center of Boston, will discuss epilepsy at Newton City Hall. The program was arranged by Dr. Harry P. Phillips of the Newton Health Department, and is intended to bring a better understanding of the problems involved in the treatment of epilepsy to the Newton Public Health and Visiting Nurse Association nurses.

FitzGerald Maintains Register Of Probate Should Be Appointed

Warren J. FitzGerald of Belmont, who has been making a strong campaign for election as Register of Probate, told a meeting in Newton last night that in his opinion the position should be an appointive one.

A well known and highly respected attorney, FitzGerald has served as Assistant Register of Probate for Middlesex County for the past 16 years. FitzGerald not only has had a private practice of the law but also was formerly employed by a large insurance company which handled probate bonds.

He told his Newton audience that in his long experience he had come to realize more and more that an office such as the Register of Probate is more than a mere administrative office but is highly technical and exacting.

Mr. FitzGerald pointed out that it is not a policymaking office but is a judicial office carrying out the mandate of the Probate Judges and is governed strictly by statutory edicts.

He has made a career in the field of probate law and believes that it would be in the WARREN J. FITZGERALD public interest if all the personnel of the Registry of Probate were career men and women.

Elected Secretary

Geoffrey Stein, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Stein, 63 Rosalie road, Newton Centre, was elected secretary of the third form this week by his classmates at The Fessenden School, West Newton.

Beethoven PTA Meeting Marks Local Service

A panel discussion at the opening meeting of the PTA at the Beethoven School centered around the contributions made by PTA to the home, school, teacher and community. Mrs. Robert Hull of the Newton PTA Council called the organization the "essence of democracy" and stated that a school system without interested parents would not be a good system.

Frank Gervais, principal of the Beethoven School described PTA as the "great right arm of the public schools" whose prime function was to provide information to a public on facts about the public schools. He also cited the material benefits which a school may receive from PTA, such as the 800 books in the newly organized Beethoven library.

Speaking for the teachers, Richard Pratt, 6th grade Beethoven School teacher called attention to the social aspect by saying that PTA meetings gave parents and teachers an opportunity to know each other on a person-to-person level, and thereby make possible better understanding of both pupil and teacher by teacher and parent. PTA meetings, he said, are usually the only opportunity for a teacher to meet the fathers of their students.

Jerome Grossman, vice-president of the PTA Council declared that good schools benefit the community as a whole by making it a better place to live. Good schools, he said, help decrease delinquency while increasing property values.

The treasurer of the Beethoven PTA, Louis Morrison completed the panel and told of the many things accomplished with the money raised by PTA. Alvin Caplan, program chairman, arranged the meeting.

The meeting was presided over by Richard Jarrell, president. The group adopted a motion to be submitted to the Board of Aldermen that a button-operated traffic light be installed at Beacon street and Beethoven avenue, with the stipulation that the services of a policeman still be retained.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Louis Shrair and her hospitality committee, composed of Mrs. Stanley Weinberg, Mrs. Morris Brodie, Mrs. Harry Thompson, Mrs. Howard Rubin and Mrs. Louis Sones. A display of more than 200 books has been arranged by Mrs. Sidney Stogel, Mrs. Paul Nation and Mrs. Dexter Hyman, co-chairmen of the Book Fair scheduled for November 14 through November 18.

Plans have also been completed for the annual Turkey Trot to be held at the school on Saturday, November 15. Mrs. Larry Bear is chairman of this event.

Other events in prospect, as announced by Mrs. Jarrell are the Halloween Party under the chairmanship of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Phillips, a December open house and a March science fair.

Temple Shalom Sisterhood to Meet Wednesday

The Sisterhood of Temple Shalom of Newton will hold the second meeting of the season at the Temple, on Wednesday afternoon, November 5.

The speaker will be Philip Marson who recently retired as master of the English Department of Boston Latin School, after teaching there for thirty-one years, to devote himself to lecturing on the problems in education. His topic, a subject most vital in these times, will be, "How and When Do We Start Preparing Our Children for College?" Mr. Marson is the author of "The American Tragedy—Our Schools", and has another book in the offing.

There will be a coffee hour at 1:00 p.m. followed by the meeting at 1:45 p.m. Mrs. Jack L. Fisher, president of the Sisterhood, will present Mrs. Milton Rosenthal who will give the opening prayer. Mrs. Saul Hirschberg is the hostess of the day, and will introduce Mr. Marson. There will be a baby sitting service.

Rosenwald Is Campaigning On Fiscal Issues

Harold Rosenwald of 11 Greenwood street, Newton, is campaigning for a place in the House of Representatives from the 5th Middlesex district on issues of fiscal responsibility.

Rosenwald is standing for election in the district which takes in Wards 4, 5 and 6 of the city.

He told a capacity audience at the Meadowbrook School at a meeting sponsored by the League of Women Voters that he favors a withholding system as a means of increasing the efficiency of collecting State income taxes.

Rosenwald also declared that a sales tax may be inevitable if other present sources of revenue prove inadequate.

He asserted that adequate revenue must be raised by the Commonwealth to meet the cost of necessary public services without increasing the indebtedness of the State. Rosenwald expressed the belief that the problem of inflation is local as well as national and that a sound fiscal policy for the State requires a balanced budget.

Des Moines—American farm yields have increased more since World War II than in the previous 60 years, Twentieth-Century fund surveys indicate.

Party Lines Wav As Big Question Is Party Lines Give

In a display of true bipartisanship, the Democratic and Republican City Committees in Newton have decided to share the cost of providing coffee and donuts for workers at the polling places on election night.

Arrangements are being made with a local caterer to have refreshments delivered to the 30 voting precincts in Newton where the warden at the polling places will take the orders for his workers. Sandwiches will also be available, but the political harmony ends with the coffee and donuts and the workers desiring more substantial fare must pay for it themselves.

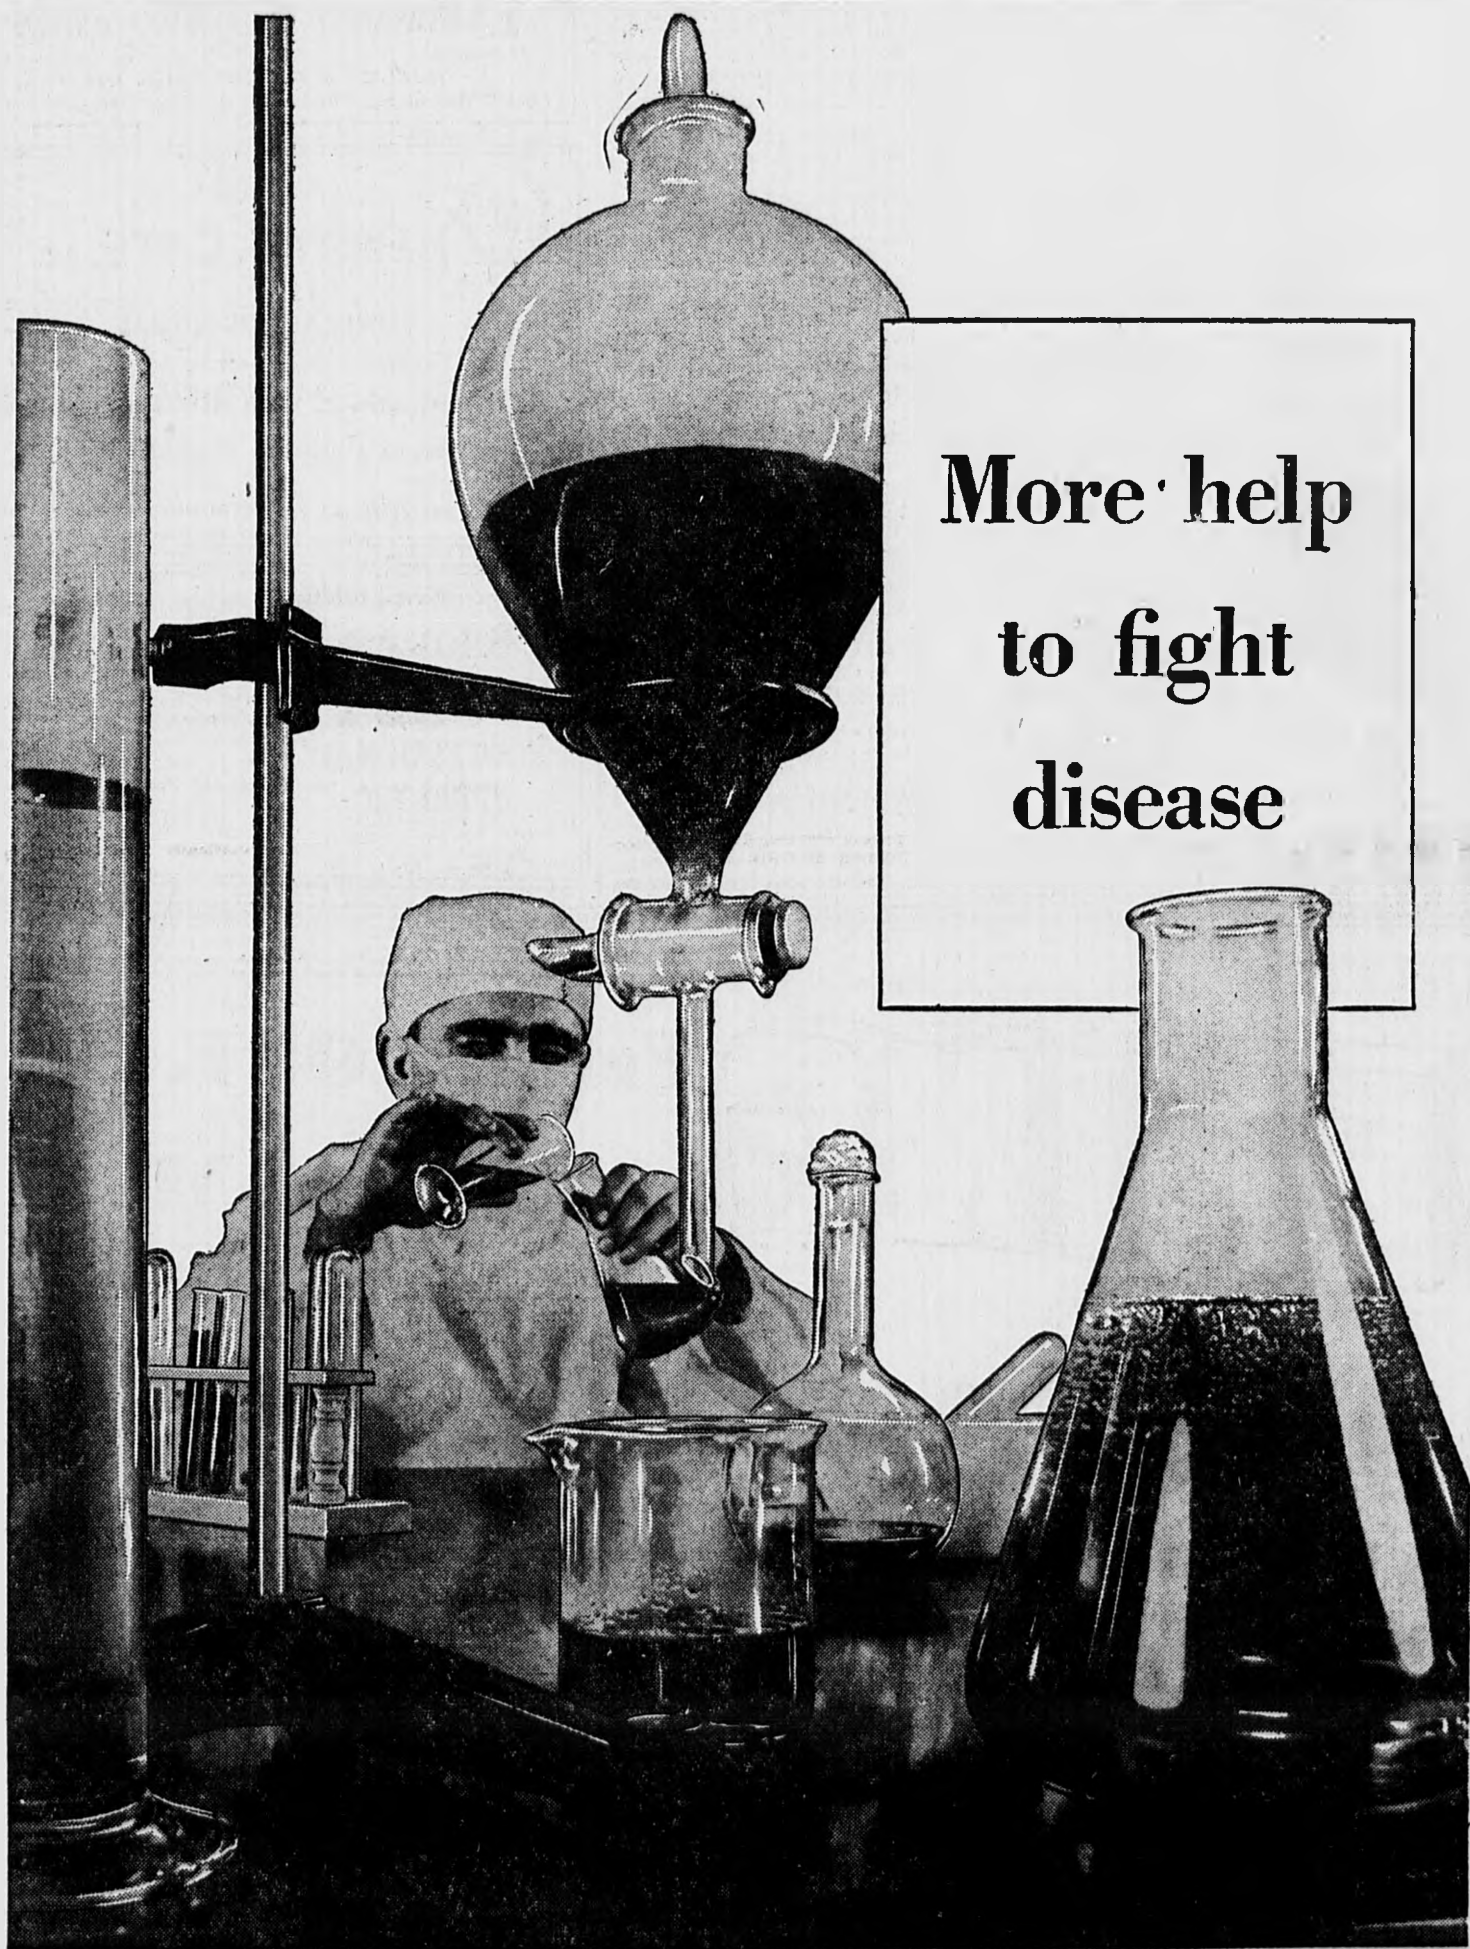

Auburndale Tea Aids NAACP

The Newton Community Fellowship will hold a silver scholarship tea for the benefit of the Educational Fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People on Sunday at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Loy L. Long, 1830 Commonwealth avenue, Auburndale.

Mother's Rest Club Meets On Wednesday

The Mothers' Rest Club of Newton will hold its November meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. William M. Breed, 102 Homer street, Newton Centre. Assisting with the luncheon will be Mrs. Joel M. Barnes, Mrs. Grosvenor Calkins, Mrs. John M. Colony, Mrs. George H. Crosby, and Mrs. Carl S. Ell.

Woman's Club to Sponsor Silver Tea, Book Review

Two important events are scheduled for next week at the Newton Centre Woman's Club. The first on Monday, November 3rd, will be a Silver Tea and book review sponsored by the literature and drama committee for all club members and their friends. Mrs. Harold R. Keller will be hostess for the social hour. Mrs. Leonard D. Baker, committee chairman, will present the speaker, Mrs. Edward D. McTayer, who will review some of the current best sellers. Mrs. McTayer is well known throughout New England for her dramatic reviews.

Wednesday, November 5th, is the date set by the ways and means committee for their special event of the year. This will be a luncheon and bridge party for the benefit of the scholarship fund. The committee has gone all-out in its efforts to make this a gala day for the club members and their guests.

Luncheon, at 12:30 p.m., will be served on both levels of the clubhouse. The luncheon committee will be headed by Mrs. Robert B. Purinton and Mrs. Kurt Schorr with Mrs. Purinton having charge of the food preparation and Mrs. Schorr supervising the waitresses.

Following the luncheon, bridge and canasta will be played and prizes will be awarded to the winners at each table. There will also be door prizes.

Co-chairman for the card games will be Mrs. Florence Downing and Mrs. Lester Menkes. Mrs. Louis M. Marks will be in charge of prizes.

A variety of delectable home-cooked foods will be offered for sale at a table where Mrs. Harold R. Keller will be chairman with Mrs. Walter D. Stewart as co-chairman. At another table an attractive array of felt articles will be displayed for interested buyers. These unusual items, very popular for gift giving, are designed and made by Mrs. Edward Levine.

Reservations may be made by calling the ticket chairman, Mrs. William R. Martineau at DE 2-4635.

Motor vehicle accidents take the lives of a person every 14 minutes, according to the National Safety Council. One person is injured in a motor vehicle mishap every 23 seconds.

Mrs. Brewer Will Head Board of Public Library

Mrs. George F. Brewer of 1090 Walnut street, Newton Highlands, was elected president of the board of trustees of the Newton Free Library. She will succeed Judge Thomas Weston, who continues as a member of the board while resigning the duties of its presidency.

Mrs. Brewer was named a member of the board by Mayor Howard Whitmore, Jr., in 1957. She has served as chairman of the dedication committee for the Newton Highlands Branch addition and more recently was a member of the committee which screened candidates for the post of city librarian.

She is currently serving as vice president of the Newton Community Concert Association and chairman of the Pop Concert Committee for the scholarship fund of the Browne and Nichols School, Cambridge.

She is a former member of the boards of the PTAs of the Mason and Weeks Junior High Schools.

Newton Fighter Takes 16th Win

It took Newton fighter Joe DeNucci just 2:12 of the first round of a scheduled 10-rounder to leave Lem Miller of New York wilted on the canvas, as he chalked up his 16th win in as many fights before a large crowd at the Boston Arena.

DeNucci got to his man in the early seconds of the fight, starting with a chopping left hook and following with every punch in the book. The stunned visitor never had a chance to get an offense going before he awoke to the count of 10.

DeNucci, much improved over his more recent fights, finished his man with a straight right to the jaw. He weighed in for the bout at 166 while Miller tipped the scales at 162.

First Baptist Church Plans Study Meetings

"Neighbor Voices" will be the theme of three missions study meetings starting Sunday, November 2 at the First Baptist Church, Newton Centre. The meetings are planned for family participation. Each will begin with a casserole supper and social hour at 5:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall. Group meetings in the various departments will begin at 6:30. Guests are cordially invited.

On November 2 a film, "Out of the Dust", will be viewed by the adult and senior high groups. Photographed principally in Cuba, this 45-minute movie deals with the Church's attack on social problems in Latin America, and shows the trials and persecutions as well as the inspiring accomplishments of our missionaries there.

The program on November 9 will include an address by Dr. Thomas Eugene West, pastor of Grace Baptist Church, Somerville. Dr. West has visited all American Baptist missions overseas, including those in the Caribbean and in Central America. His subject will be "Concerns of a Continent."

On November 16 a play, "Stolen Goods", will be presented by the church drama group under the direction of Mrs. Donald L. Willis. The play illustrates how a young man escaped wearing the tag of "juvenile delinquent" when he was helped to attack and solve his problems through the channels of Christian love opened up by a minister's interest in him.

Cronin Campaign Is Nearing End

Supporters of Governor's Councillor candidate Dr. Edward J. Cronin report the active aspirant for the post from the Third Councillor District, which includes Newton, climaxed his campaign with an intensive drive to insure a maximum turnout of voters throughout the district.

One of the highlights of the campaign, according to Cronin workers, was a well attended reception staged by his friends and supporters at the Meadows in Framingham, where United States Congressman Thomas P. O'Neill was the guest speaker.

According to the Cronin for Governor's Council committee, candidates for offices at all levels throughout the Third Councillor District have made public their endorsement of the young nominee, who expressed his thanks to committee members for their assistance.

Hon. Charles J. Artesani presided as toastmaster, and Rt. Rev. Msgr. William J. Daly offered the benediction.

Cronin workers stressed the importance of voting the entire ballot at the urging of their candidate. It was noted that frequently the offices of Governor's Council has been neglected on the ballot.

Younger groups will meet with the following leaders: Nursery—Mrs. Clara Boone; Primary—Mrs. David Weaver; Junior—November 2, Mrs. Norman Gottwald; November 9, Mrs. Herbert Gezork; November 16, Mrs. James Burns; Junior High—Mr. David Weaver.

Central Little League Banquet Saturday Night

The Newton Central Little League will hold its annual banquet at the Normandle Room Saturday night. All twelve year old boys as graduates of the Little League will receive jackets.

Sponsor Book Review

Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter D.A.R. will sponsor a book review by Mrs. Marion T. Rudkin on Monday, November 3, in the Workshop, Newton Highlands, to benefit the scholarship fund.

Coffee will be served at 10 a.m. by Mrs. Arthur J. Anderson Jr. and Mrs. William Beetham, and a variety of home cooked foods will be offered for sale by Mrs. Raymond Phelon, chairman, Mrs. William Albert, Mrs. Vincent Hammersten, and Mrs. Sterling G. Thomas. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Backyard Gardener

By HAROLD E. MOSHER

Department of Horticulture, University of Massachusetts

AMHERST—The acid smell of burning leaves is in the air. Yes, the severe frosts of the past week or two have started the tree leaves downward. To children, this is a joyous situation—leaves to scuff through—leaves to gather into piles and jump into—leaves to collect and sort according to color or shape.

To adults whose minds no longer wander back to the youthful joys, the falling leaves present a problem—how to get rid of them. The simple answer for many people is to burn them; but others think this is a tremendous waste and save the leaves in a compost pile. You may ask how I feel about this matter. I straddle the fence on this one.

Soil texture and water holding capacity is improved by the addition of organic matter. The farmer achieves this by plowing under soil or the litter of a previous crop. The home gardener can add organic matter to his garden soil by spreading under garden litter, leaves, commercial peat or animal manures. This may be expensive or impractical.

The making of a compost pile is namely a way of reducing organic materials to a more easily handled state. The pile can vary in size and shape according to your need or desire. Choose some out of the way or inconspicuous corner of the garden. Leaves, grass clippings, weeds, straw and plant refuse from the vegetable garden or kitchen can be composted. Avoid diseased or insect infested materials—these should be burned.

Put down a 4" layer of leaves or other organic material, scatter a handful or two of any available fertilizer containing nitrogen over the leaves and add a 12" layer of soil. Build up alternate layers of soil and organic matter as you wish but keep the top flat or dish shaped to collect moisture. Nitrogen in the fertilizer hastens decomposition and the soil helps keep the pile moist.
